Egyptian Renounces Any Role By Soviets

Remark Made Regarding Any Future Israeli War

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad said today his country had renounced the use of Soviet or any other foreign forces in case of any new war with Israel. Riad said war could break out again after the Feb. 5 cease-fire unless the Big Four powers intervene.

In Jerusalem, U.N. negotiator Gunnar V. Jarring went into a second round of talks with Israeli officials while Egypt and Jordan complained Israel was stalling the Middle East peace talks.
in Jordan between government troops and Palestinian guerrillas.

Riad spoke at a news conference in Paris to complete a four-day visit to France in which he conferred with President George Pompidou.

"We will never ask for participation of Soviet forces or of any other forces," Riad said. "This is our battle, this is our land. We are asking for the support of all governments, their moral support and to sell us arms to defend our country.

"I have no hope that on Feb. 5 Israel will withdraw, so in order to save peace, the Big Four powers must interfere to impose peace on Israel and to save Israel," he said.

"It is our duty to liberate our country," he said.

The heaviest fighting between government troops and Palestinian guerrillas since the September civil war was reported underway in Jordan. Government forces were using artillery and tanks, guerrilla sources said, and guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat appealed to Arab leaders to stop the "massacres" he said were aimed at wiping out the Palestinians.

Jarring, who arrived in Israel Friday and promptly held two hours of meetings with Prime Minister Golda Meir, Foreign Minister Abba Eban and other top-level officials, was holding a working luncheon with them today at Eban's official residence. The first round of talks was described as "positive and constructive."

At the United Nations in New York, Egypt and Jordan in a joint protest charged Friday night that Israel was stalling the newly resumed peace talks to buy time to create new Jewish settlements in territories seized from the Arabs in the June, 1967 war.

In a jointly signed letter to U.N. Secretary General Thant, Egyptian Ambassador Mohammed Hassan el-Zayyat and his Jordanian counterpart, Muhammad H. el-Farra, said Israel plans to "absorb the occupied territories by creating new realities."

They said "Israel is clearly buying time to complete these plans of absorption" and referred to "hasty construction of what is called the master plan of Jerusalem which calls for an additional 200,000 people to be settled in the next five years in and outside Jerusalem."

They said the plan was not limited to Jerusalem but also involved the West Bank of the Jordan River, the Gaza Strip, the Golan Heights and the Sinai Peninsula where "new settlements are being hastily constructed with the intention of becoming permanent Jewish villages."

In Jordan, the fresh fighting was reported around Palestinian refugee camps and the areas where the guerrillas withdrew to following the nine-day civil war. Egyptian Brig. Ahmed Abdel Haid Hilmy, military chief of the Arab truce team, said the Jordanian army was engaged in "large scale operations" against most guerrilla positions in the country.

He reported to Cairo that he personally had heard orders issued in the headquarters of the Jordanian high command calling for the army to push the guerrillas out of their positions and destroy their homes.

Nixon's Birthday Wish On Economy

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon celebrated his 58th birthday today with an optimistic outlook on the economy and a pledge to announce further troop withdrawals from South Vietnam by mid-April.

The Western White House said Friday Nixon would announce a decision on the next reduction in U.S. force levels in South Vietnam around April 15. The President awaited an assessment of the war by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, who is on a current fact-find tour of Southeast Asia.

Nixon previously announced 150,000 more troops would be pulled out by May, 1971, leaving a force level of 284,000 troops in Vietnam.

In a move apparently to dampen speculation rising from Laird's prediction of an end to the U.S. combat responsibility by the end of the summer, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler cautioned that Nixon has made no final decisions on future troop reductions.

As for the economy, Nixon is taking a rosy view. He said Friday 1971 will be a good year and 1972 will be even better for American working men and businessmen.

The assessment was a reaction to the announcement that unemployment in December rose to six per cent. While "concerned" about unemployment, Nixon believes "the nation is moving from an economy which was inflationary toward the goal of having an economy with price stability."

The President signed several bills Friday, including the legislation providing $2.2 billion in pay boosts for four million white collar government workers and men in military uniform.

He also signed another bill that will raise pensions of former and future presidents including himself from $25,000 to $60,000 a year. He was expected to return to Washington next Thursday.

Friday afternoon he flew by helicopter with his daughter, Tricia, and his close friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo to Caalina Island where he spent 90 minutes chatting with squealing children and admiring adults. He signed autographs, passed out presidential pens and invited about 30 youngsters to look inside his private jet helicopter.

"That's neato," said one little girl after she toured the helicopter.

"He sure lives in style," said a teen-ager.

Mayor Harvey H. Cowell, a Democrat, said the President's visit to the 22-mile long picturesque island in the Pacific was a big surprise.

The last President to tour the island was Calvin Coolidge, who was a guest at the Wrigley hilltop estate.

I-J RIOT CASE

Six Convicted, One Acquitted

I-J Special Report

FAIRFIELD — Six men were convicted and one was acquitted yesterday on charges arising from the Valentine's Day labor rally against the Independent-Journal that grew into a riot.

A Solano County Superior Court jury of 10 women and two men brought in guilty verdicts on 18 of the 34 charges on which the demonstrators were tried. Four of the men were convicted of felony charges.

The six men found guilty will return to court at 10 a.m. Feb. 5 for hearing of probation reports and sentencing.

The felony charges involved carry maximum sentences of five and 10 years in state prison.

The defendants and the jury's findings were:

John J. DeMartini, 47, of Mill Valley, guilty of remaining at the scene of a riot after being warned to disperse, a misdemeanor. DeMartini is vice president of San Francisco International Typographical Union Local 21, which struck against the I-J Jan. 7, 1970. He was the only striking I-J employee on trial.

He was found innocent of participating in a riot, participating in an unlawful assembly, a second count of refusal to disperse, of battery on San Rafael police officer Harold E. Pennington and of resisting arrest.

Alvis Dean Bailey, 43, of San Francisco, guilty of participating in a riot, participating in an unlawful assembly, failing to disperse and resisting arrest — all misdemeanors — and of possessing a blackjack, a felony. He was found innocent of a battery charge.

Bailey is a member of Newspaper and Periodical Drivers Local 921, and a delivery truck driver for San Francisco newspapers.

Nimmes H. Shelton, 41, of San Francisco, was found guilty of participating in an unlawful assembly and of possession of a slingshot, both misdemeanors, and of possession of a blackjack, a felony. A deaf-mute, he is a member of the printers' union.

Joe Earl Reese, 32, of Hayward, was found guilty of participating in a riot, unlawful assembly, both misdemeanors, and of felony battery upon California Highway Patrol Officer John Campion. He also is a

Order On Welfare Withdrawn

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Nixon administration officials have withdrawn an order cutting off nearly $700 million in federal welfare funds for California. In Sacramento, Gov. Ronald Reagan charged federal officers had made a bureaucratic "blunder."

John D. Twiname, head of the Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) Department's Social and Rehabilitation Service, said Friday the agency had rescinded a cutoff order mailed Thursday after receiving a telegram from the Republican governor.

Twiname said Reagan promised to expedite changes in California welfare regulations that had been challenged by the federal government. The federal official said he had decided to give California "one last opportunity to solve its problem."

But Reagan disputed Twiname's version. He said California had not bowed to the threat to cut off funds. He said the maneuvers by federal officials apparently were carried out because officers in HEW had not informed HEW Secretary Elliott Richardson California had filed a court suit seeking to

Envoy's Car Window Smashed In Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI)—One U.S. diplomat found the window of his car smashed today and three others reported they had been "accosted" verbally by Russians on the streets in the Soviet campaign to put retaliatory pressure on Americans, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said.

The incidents, which involved no violence aside from the apparent automobile vandalism, were reported by the embassy in connection with the Soviet diplomatic threat that the safety of U.S. citizens in Russia is jeopardized by the attacks upon Soviet facilities in the United States.

The window smashing, assumed to have been the work of Russian vandals, was the first report of property damage since the Soviets began sending protest delegations to the embassy Wednesday.

The street encounters—two incidents involving three diplomats Friday night and this morning—followed two previous incidents in which a diplomat and a businessman were harassed in the streets.

The embassy spokesman declined to release the names of the diplomats involved and would give only these details of the incidents:

—One embassy officer discovered the front windshield of his personal automobile smashed out this morning. It had been parked overnight "on a Moscow street."

— Two embassy officers "were accosted by a group of Russians who upraided them verbally about the situation in the United states" as they were leaving a downtown Moscow building where they had attended a lecture Friday night.

—One embassy officer out jogging this morning near his Moscow residence was closely followed by Russians on foot and in an automobile who shouted "a few words" at him. It was not disclosed what the words were.

The incidents followed a bombing of a Soviet office in Washington, D.C., and an angry protest over it communicted by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko to U.S. Ambassador Jacob D. Beam that left Americans in Moscow wondering "what next" in the Soviet retaliation campaing.

Previously the Soviets had limited themselves to a stream of protest delegations visiting the embassy and the two street encounters.

In Washington, State Department officials were studying a request field by the Soviet Union for the U.S. to play for the bomb damage to the building — the Soviet Cultural-Commercial office.

By MARY LEYDECKER

Three friends and a relative yesterday were given unlimited visiting privileges with Angela Y. Davis at Marin County Jail after they were termed "investigative legal support workers" by her attorneys.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court approved the list of four persons, including Miss Davis's sister, Fania Davis Jordan; Frank Alexander, national coordinator of the Free Angela campaign; his wife, Kendra, and Cassandra Davis (no relation to Miss Davis), who is regional coordinator of the Free Angela campaign.

Miss Davis's attorneys had asked Tuesday in a court appearance that persons investigating her case be allowed to visit freely with her.

Sheriff's Capt. Harvey Teague said yesterday that his department is running a routine check on the four, since no one with a felony conviction on his record is allowed to visit jail inmates.

If the four have clean records, they will be given the visiting privileges as directed by Judge Wilson, he said.

Miss Davis is being held in the jail under charges of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy stemming from the Aug. 7 shoot-out at the Civic Center in which Judge Harold H. Haley was killed.

Meanwhile, Marin County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney yesterday received a telegram from the State Department in Washington saying that Soviet scientists have not replied to an invitation to her trial.

The wire was in response to a letter sent by Maloney to Martin J. Hillenbrand, assistant secretary of state for foreign affairs, warning that Marin courtroom seats are limited.

Hillenbrand wired back that he will let Maloney know immediately if any of the 14 Russians indicate any interest in attending the trial.

Hillenbrand earlier, with President Nixon's approval, had written the scientists, who had expressed concern over a fair trial for Miss Davis, that his department would help them come to this country to observe it.

Gardiner Quits As Juvenile Court Judge

Joseph G. Wilson, presiding judge of Marin Superior Court for the past four years, yesterday switched positions with Juvenile Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

It rumored that the change, agreed to by all five Superior Court judges at a luncheon meeting, was an effort to end a stalemate between Judge Gardiner and others involved with juvenile court.

Judge Gardiner has operated the juvenile court with the aid of unpaid volunteer referees, one of whom, Jack Blaine, quit recently, complaining that he was working 40 hours a week without pay.

County Administrator Alan Bruce has recommended for some time that a paid referee be hired to handle juvenile court matters, but at the present time, two volunteers are still carrying the burden. Bruce has also recommended rotating judicial assignments.

Judge Wilson yesterday refused to comment on why the change had been made but said that he has under consideration the possibility of recommending a full-time paid referee.

Gardiner, however, candidly said he feels "new blood is needed on the juvenile court bench because I have lost much of my zest for it."

He also criticized high court decisions which, he said, have caused juvenile court proceedings to become more like adult criminal proceedings.

"If you give a kid the notion that with a good mouthpiece, he can beat the rap, you are making prison material out of him," he said.

Gardiner said that when he took over the juvenile court six years ago it was a "family court." He said it has rapidly deteriorated to being just another criminal court because of U.S. Supreme Court decisions that the law must be applied the same to juveniles as to ad-

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI)—More than 3,000 persons have been knocked off Nevada state welfare rolls after a sweeping investigation disclosed they were ineligible for monthly payments.

State Welfare Director George Miller said Friday a three-and-one-half-week investigation by all his staff members revealed that 22 per cent of the cases on the aid to dependent children program had not told the truth about their other outside income and other requirements for welfare when they applied.

Brother Dies

BRESCIA, Italy (UPI)—Pope Paul VI's younger brother, Dr. Francesco Montni, died of a heart attack Friday night, relatives said today. His wife informed the Pope in the Vatican by telephone.

Montini, a physician, had been in poor health since a previous heart attack on 1962, but had continued to work in the laboratory of Brescia's Fatebenefratelli Clinic. He was 70.

He was the only one of the three Montini brothers still living in their hometown of Brescia. The other brother, Ludovico, 74, is a former Italian senator and lives in Rome. Pope Paul, 73, last visited Brescia shortly before his election to the pontificate in 1963.

Ends Arguments

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles Manson's attorney has finally finished his final arguments in the Tate-LaBianca murder case and the seven-month-old trial may reach the jury by the middle of next week.

Irving Kanarek concluded his summation Friday with the exhortation that the jurors find Manson and his three female defendants innocent since nothing could be "more beautiful" for America's reputation.

"Charles Manson is not guilty of any crime," he told the jury.

Two Die

JEROME, Idaho (UPI)4 — Two of the four infant daughters born to a Twin Falls, Idaho, truck driver and his wife died late Friday, nearly 24 hours following their birth.

The remaining two daughters were flown to Salt Lake City early today for treatment at the University of Utah Medical Center.

Cancel Out

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Two Russian musicians have canceled guest appearances with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra because a cellist in the orchestra is a defector from Russia.

John A. Angle, president of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society, said Friday Soviet conductor Maxim Shostakovich and violinist Leonid Kogan would not fulfill engagements here scheduled Jan. 15 and 17. Shostakovich is the son of the late composer Dmitri Shostakovich. They had said earlier they would appear only if the cellist did not perform.

Eisenhower Bride

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—Susan Eliane Eisenhower, granddaughter of late President Dwight D. Eisenhower, and Alexander Hugh Bradshaw, a London attorney, were married Friday night in St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic Church.

Msgr. Alphonse Marcincavage, pastor of the church, officiated at the 48-minute ceremony.

The only attendant for the 19-year-old bride was her sister, Mary Jean, 15. Her brother, David, who is the son-in-law of President Nixon, was attired in his Navy OCS uniform in his role of best man.

Adam And Eve

LONDON (UPI)—An Anglican vicar said today two school girls and a boy will appear naked in a film he made about Adam and Eve which will be shown in church with a scene suggesting lovemaking.

"The film shows the fall of Adam and Eve and you can't put Adam and Eve in trousers," said the Rev. Cyril Carter, 69, vicar of Holy Trinity church in the London suburb of Hounslow.

THE RING — Tricia Nixon, wearing a ring on her left hand, that may or may not be an engagement ring, had nothing to say about it during a tour yesterday of Catalina Island. She brushed off the $64 question: "Are you engaged?" (UPI Telephoto)

Heath Is Attacked

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Indian students demonstrated against British Prime Minister Edward Heath today, condemning his plans to resume arms sales to South Africa. Heath arrived for talks with Indian officials on his way to a British Commonwealth meeting in Singapore.

"Stupid Heath!" "Down, Down, British dogs!" a group of about 100 students chanted as Heath was greeted by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi at the airport.

Major opposition to the proposed arms deal with South Africa has been voiced because of South Africa's strict racial segregation policy known as apartheid.

Tricia Is Not Talking About Ring

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—Tricia Nixon is wearing a new ring with a sapphire in the center flanked by two large diamonds on her engagement finger — but she isn't talking.

Tricia, 24, rumored to be engaged to Harvard law student Edward Finch Cox, tried to keep her hand hidden when she toured Catalina Island with her father Friday.

She also brushed off the $64 question: "Are you engaged?"

"Are you?" she shot back and turned away.

Her married sister, Julie Eisenhower, 22, says Tricia is wearing a new ring "But I don't want to comment on its significance."

Tricia has been vacationing in California with her parents while Cox bones up for his exams at Harvard. He is the son of a New York social register family and has been dating Tricia for the past seven years.

Rumors that an engagement would be announced during the holidays did not materialize. But the talk continues that Tricia may walk down the aisle in a White House wedding in June.

Sex Book Store's Stock Rather Short

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — Frenchy's K & T, a sex book store which opened here last Saturday, is still in business today but rather short on stock.

Police have arrested the store's two operators three times, and after each raid they've carted off crates of books, films and paraphernalia.

Cabinet Will Air Envoy Kidnapping

MONTEVIDEO (UPI)—President Jorge Pacheco Areco called a cabinet meeting today to discuss the kidnapping of British Ambassador Geoffrey Jackson by antigovernment Tupamaro guerrillas. The government offered an $8,000 reward for information on Jackson's abductors.

Pacheco was on vacation when Jackson, 55, was seized by what police believed was at least a 10-man squad of Tupamaro commando Friday. The president rushed back to the capital to confer with his ministers on how to deal with the kidnapping.

The Interior Ministry announced the reward "for any information leading to Jackson's release and capture of his kidnapers" and specified such information be put in an envelope and sent to the ministry.

"All measures will be taken to find the diplomat and his kidnapers," said Interior Minister Antonio Francese.

The British Foreign Office in London appealed Friday night to Uruguay to secure the "quick release" of Jackson. Uruguayan Ambassador Jorge Barriero called at the Foreign Office to express his government's "extreme regret" at the abduction. The British Embassy in Montevideo warned the kidnapers Jackson has a heart condition.

The Tupamaros apparently took advantage of Jackson's customary habits to seize him in daylight as he was driven to the British Embassy in a limousine followed by a pickup truck containing bodyguards.

Crew, Passengers Of Gutted Ship Sailing On

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI)—The 650 tourists and crew aboard the 20,000 ton Caribbean cruise ship Antilles, gutted by fire after she ran aground on a small island, safely boarded the Queen Elizabeth 2 today and headed for Barbados.

The 350 passengers and 300 crew aboard the 600-foot French Line ship all were reported in good shape. The ship itself burned throughout the night and by daybreak appeared completely gutted.

The Antilles grounded on the 3 1-2 by 1 1-2 mile island of Nustique about 6:25 p.m. Friday and caught fire a short time later. The Coast Guard said most of the passengers and crew already had been evacuated in the ship's 21 lifeboats to the island a half a mile away by the time the fire broke out.

Hugo Money-Coutts, a member of the Mustique Co., which owns the island and is developing if for tourism, said "we put the people up as best we could during the six or seven hours they were here."

He added that "it was a bit cramped, since our only hotel has eight rooms, but we managed to feed them.

Jury Convicts Six, In I-J Riot Case

James S. Brooke, 36, of Guerneville, was convicted of participating in a riot, unlawful assembly, failing to disperse and of felony battery upon San Rafael Police Officer John Rosentangle. He was acquitted on a second count of failing to disperse.

Brooke is a member of Typographical Local 21.

Terry Warner Lansing, 20, of Oakland, was found guilty of participating in a riot and unlawful assembly, but was acquitted on charges of failure to disperse, resisting arrest and battery. Lansing, the only non-union member of the defendants, is a former San Rafael resident attending the University of California at Berkeley.

Charles Porter Vance, 56, of South San Francisco, was acquitted on all counts. He had been accused of felony battery, plus the riot, unlawful assembly and failure to disperse counts.

Vance brought his 15-year-old son Christopher with him to march in the Feb. 14 demonstration against the I-J, and the defense put the boy on the witness stand during the trial. Vance also is a member of the printer's local.

The defendants showed little emotion as they heard the verdicts, but the court's interpreter for the two deaf-mutes, Judith Harris of Burlingame, broke into sobs and left the courtroom, saying, "I feel so sorry for them."

After they were dismissed by Judge William E. Jensen, jurors said they found insufficient evidence to convict Vance of any of the charges.

Jury Foreman William Plunkett said the jury made especially heavy use of one piece of evidence introduced by the prosecutor, Marin County Deputy Dist. Atty. Joshua W. Thomas.

This was a half-hour reel of film taken by cameramen for Channel Four television. It showed Bailey's struggles with police in Julia Street, Reese swinging his picket sign stick at police and various actions of several of the other defendants.

The jury also took pains in going over the 200 photographs introduced as evidence, even sending a bailiff out for a magnifying glass so faces could be identified.

Jurors said last night that they thoroughly discussed each defendant's charges in turn, but usually had to ballot only once on each charge to reach an unanimous vote.

Only two members of the jury had served on a jury before. The panel was praised by Judge Jensen, Thomas and defense attorneys Robert D. Carrow, Robert Y. Bell and Carl B. Shapiro for its attentiveness and business-like manner of deciding the verdicts.

The actual deliberations took about 22 hours. The panel received the case late Wednesday morning, and was sequestered each night in a Fairfield motel.

Carrow said last night that motions for new trials for some of the defendants may be made at the appearance for sentencing.

Attorneys for both DeMartini and Lansing yesterday asked immediate sentencing on their misdemeanor convictions, but Judge Jensen said he preferred to obtain probation reports on all six men before making any decisions.

The trial was transferred to Solano County after the defense attorneys told Marin County judges they felt their clients would be unable to get a fair trial in San Rafael.

The trial became the longest and most expensive in Solano County history. When it started Oct. 20, both sides predicted it would take only 10 trial days. It lasted nearly 12 weeks, and cost Marin County taxpayers nearly $18,000.

Overdose Of Drugs Is Fatal

Dead was Charles F. Singleton, of San Rafael, who had been a patient at the center for about two weeks, according to Coroner's Deputy Jack D. Darblay.

Darblay said that Singelton collapsed at the center and was taken to the adjoining Marin General Hospital, where he died at 2:25 a.m.

Officials at the center said that Singleton had had visitors last evening and that he had left the center on Thursday on a pass.

Darblay said that Singleton had a history of drug use but he did not know which drug caused his death. An autopsy is to be performed. There were no marks on his body he said.

Singleton's home was at 112 Ross Street, and he is believed to be from Shenandoah, Iowa, where his parents live.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

The Marin judges all feel that with the heavy backlog of both criminal and civil cases in superior court, it is not possible for one judge to devote all his time to juvenile matters.

As presiding judge, Gardiner will sit at the master calendar each Monday where the week's cases are assigned for trial. He will also be the spokesman for the superior court in policy matters.

Judge Gardiner, 68, was appointed to the bench by former Gov. Edmund G. Brown in 1964 to a newly created department. He has been noted for his outspoken comments on a variety of subjects during the past six years.

Judge Wilson, 52, was appointed in 1965 after serving as a municipal court judge.

Sgt. Green Is Named Big Brother

Detective Sgt. Jerry Green of San Rafael Police Department's juvenile bureau was named last night as Marin County's "Big Brother of the Year."

The award was made at the first annual Big Brothers of Marin banquet held at the Meadow Club in Fairfax.

Green, 34, was honored for his " . . . unstinting work on behalf of the youth of Marin," according to Big Brother President H.B. Grandin Jr. of Ross.

Green, a member of the San Rafael Police Department since 1962, has been active in Marin Open House, a drug treatment center, and with Operation Saturday, a program which matches fatherless children with College of Marin students. Green was also a founding member of the Big Brothers of Marin.

Green was selected after being nominated by more than 20 agencies in Marin County who deal with juveniles.

change an Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) schedule.

Reagan said he talked by telephone with Richardson Thursday night and news of the court suit "was a complete surprise to Mr. Richardson."

"It is most unfair to cover an HEW blunder by suggesting that California has changed its position," Reagan said.

The federal agency has charged California with failing to comply fully with a 1967 law requiring all states to revise the "standard of need" they use for setting the maximum level of payments to the poor under the dependent children program. The revision was ordered completed by July 1, 1969, to reflect increased living costs.

The law did not require that the states also raise the amount of welfare payments to compensate for the higher standard of need. Reagan said state court decisions had hampered California's attempts to comply with the rule.

California gets $684 million in federal AFDC funds annually. Twiname said the state could lose all the money if the changes are not made.

Reagan has been one of the most severe critics of President Nixon's proposed welfare reform plan.

The National Welfare Rights Organization (NWRO), which represents thousands of welfare recipients across the nation, Friday criticized the decision rescinding the order to cut off funds for California. For months the NWRO has been trying to get federal officials to hold back funds from states that do not comply with the regulations.

The organization said HEW had "perpetrated a shocking sellout of the poor people of California."

"Caving in to the political interference of Gov. Reagan, HEW has ignored federal law, its own regulations and the decision of its own hearing examiner," NWRO said in a statement.

Board To Eye Rapid Transit

The Golden Gate Bridge District's proposal to use the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way for a rapid transit corridor will be discussed by the Mill Valley School District board at 8 p.m. Monday at Park School.

The board last month voted to oppose any such use of the right-of-way, since it passes through both the Edna Maguire and new midjle school sites. Trustees said they felt such use of the corridor for rapid transit is inconsistent with the school's uses as educational and recreational property.

Also on the agenda is further discussion of the district's summer school program. Supt. Dr. James A. Collins has warned that the district probably won't be able to afford the program this year.

Landscaping Plan Will Be Discussed

The Kentfield School District board will consider a master plan for landscaping of the area surrounding Greenbrae School at 8 p.m. Monday at Wolfe Grade School.

The proposed landscaping was designed by graduate students at the University of California's school of landscape architecture.

Cambodians Plan Drive For Highway

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—A Cambodian field commander said today his troops were getting ready for a major allied offensive to recapture strategic Highway 4 from Communist forces. The statement indicated that U.S. and South Vietnamese units would participate in some way.

In Saigon, U.S. headquarters said today an American jet fighter-bomber escorting B52 bombers attacked a Communist antiaircraft missile site inside North Vietnam in what U.S. officials described as a "protective reaction strike."

The military situation along Highway 4 has been steadily deteriotating in recent weeks with Communist forces tightening a vise on the road linking Phnom Penh to the oil refinery seaport of Kompong Som. Gasoline and electricity have been rationed in Phnom Penh.

A high-ranking U.S. Defense Department official, Dennis D. Doolin, arrived in Phnom Penh Friday for talks with American and Cambodian officials on the situation. His chief, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, is in Saigon for similar talks with top American commanders.

Field reports said Cambodian troops on Highway 4 "temporarily" stopped their advance to retake Highway 4 Friday, and Brig. Gen. Sosthene Fernandez, the commander of the push, said his mean were standing by in anticipation of "a major allied push to retake the road."

South Vietnamese ground units have been used in previous Cambodia offensives. And U.S. air support has been committed in the past when Cambodian units have become bogged down. President Nixon has said repeatedly that American ground combat troops will not be used in Cambodia.

U.S. spokesmen said an F105 Wild Weasel fighter-bomber fired two radar-control Shrike missiles at the missile site after sensitive electronic equipment showed the North Vietnamese had "locked on" to the B52s and were ready to fire at them.

The B52s were flying a mission against the Ho Chi Minh Trail complex at the time, The U.S. spokesman said. The Command said the F105 was flying escort for the Stratofortresses just east of Mu Ghia Pass, main gateway for supplies flowing over the Annamite Mountains from North Vietnam into Laos when the jet got a signal from its sensor gear the North Vietnamese missile radar had a "positive lock" on the B52s.

The F105 peeled off and dived in to fire missiles at the antiaircraft site in mountains 50 miles west-northwest of the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi, spokesmen said. There was no word on whether the American missiles struck the Communist installation but no antiaircraft missiles were launched and there was no damage to U.S. aircraft.

It was the seventh time since May 25 when President Nixon announced a policy of "protective reaction" to bomb Communist antiaircraft sites in North Vietnam if they fired on American planes that such an attack has been carried out.

The last previous such attack occurred Nov. 30, 5-12 miles north of the demilitarized Zone (DMZ) separating North and South Vietnam.

rles Porter Vance, 56, th San Francisco, was ted on all counts. He een accused of felony y, plus the riot, unlawful assembly and failure to disperse counts.

Vance brought his 15-year-old son Christopher with him to march in the Feb. 14 demonstration against the I-J, and the defense put the boy on the witness stand during the trial. Vance also is a member of the printer's local.

The defendants showed little emotion as they heard the verdicts, but the court's interpreter for the two deaf-mutes, Judith Harris of Burlingame, broke into sobs and left the courtroom, saying, "I feel so sorry for them."

After they were dismissed by Judge William E. Jensen, jurors said they found insufficient evidence to convict Vance of any of the charges.

Jury Foreman William Plunkett said the jury made especially heavy use of one piece of evidence introduced by the prosecutor, Marin County Deputy Dist. Atty. Joshua W. Thomas.

This was a half-hour reel of film taken by cameramen for Channel Four television. It showed Bailey's struggles with police in Julia Street, Reese swinging his picket sign stick at police and various actions of several of the other defendants.

The jury also took pains in going over the 200 photographs introduced as evidence, even sending a bailiff out for a magnifying glass so faces could be identified.

Jurors said last night that they thoroughly discussed each defendant's charges in turn, but usually had to ballot only once on each charge to reach an unanimous vote.

Only two members of the jury had served on a jury before. The panel was praised by Judge Jensen, Thomas and defense attorneys Robert D. Carrow, Robert Y. Bell and Carl B. Shapiro for its attentiveness and business-like manner of deciding the verdicts.

The actual deliberations took about 22 hours. The panel received the case late Wednesday morning, and was sequestered each night in a Fairfield motel.

Carrow said last night that motions for new trials for some of the defendants may be made at the appearance for sentencing.

Attorneys for both DeMartini and Lansing yesterday asked immediate sentencing on their misdemeanor convictions, but Judge Jensen said he preferred to obtain probation reports on all six men before making any decisions.

The trial was transferred to Solano County after the defense attorneys told Marin County judges they felt their clients would be unable to get a fair trial in San Rafael.

The trial became the longest and most expensive in Solano County history. When it started Oct. 20, both sides predicted it would take only 10 trial days. It lasted nearly 12 weeks, and cost Marin County taxpayers nearly $18,000.

U.S. spokesmen said an F105 Wild Weasel fighter-bomber fired two radar-control Shrike missiles at the missile site after sensitive electronic equipment showed the North Vietnamese had "locked on" to the B52s and were ready to fire at them.

The B52s were flying a mission against the Ho Chi Minh Trail complex at the time, The U.S. spokesman said. The Command said the F105 was flying escort for the Stratofortresses just east of Mu Ghia Pass, main gateway for supplies flowing over the Annamite Mountains from North Vietnam into Laos when the jet got a signal from its sensor gear the North Vietnamese missile radar had a "positive lock" on the B52s.

The F105 peeled off and dived in to fire missiles at the antiaircraft site in mountains 50 miles west-northwest of the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi, spokesmen said. There was no word on whether the American missiles struck the Communist installation but no antiaircraft missiles were launched and there was no damage to U.S. aircraft.

It was the seventh time since May 25 when President Nixon announced a policy of "protective reaction" to bomb Communist antiaircraft sites in North Vietnam if they fired on American planes that such an attack has been carried out.

The last previous such attack occurred Nov. 30, 5-1-2 miles north of the demilitarized Zone (DMZ) separating North and South Vietnam.

Board To Eye Rapid Transit

The Golden Gate Bridge District's proposal to use the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way for a rapid transit corridor will be discussed by the Mill Valley School District board at 8 p.m. Monday at Park School.

The board last month voted to oppose any such use of the right-of-way, since it passes through both the Edna Maguire and new midjle school sites. Trustees said they felt such use of the corridor for rapid transit is inconsistent with the school's uses as educational and recreational property.

Also on the agenda is further discussion of the district's summer school program. Supt. Dr. James A. Collins has warned that the district probably won't be able to afford the program this year.

Ecology Show On Tap At Church

A multimedia slide and sound show on ecology, entitled "Apocalyptic Ecological Art," will be given Monday at 8 p.m. at the Episcopal Church of Our Savior, 10 Old Mill Street, Mill Valley.

The slide, which deal with the ecological crisis, were taken by Dr. David Mason, a University of California professor. The show is subtitled "When You Look Deeply into the Faceted Golden Eye of the Green Lace-Wing . . ."

Admission is free. The program is open to the public.

Chapter organizers are attempting to find a location in Marin for an artificial kidney machine.

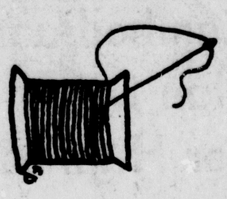
Tape Will Assure Uniform, Accurate Buttonhole Length

By EUNICE FARMER

Here's a timely hint for marking your fabric for machine buttonholes. Timely because with the return of the shirt look, in dresses, coats, etc. and the long sleeves ending in cuffs, we will all be making dozens of these buttonholes.

Mrs. Ada Mitchell, Ft. Worth, Tex., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her suggestion.

"To be sure the length is uniform and accurate, place a piece of cellophane tape at the beginning and ending of the buttonholes. This works beautifully when you don't have to use a separate buttonhole attachment, and you can end each buttonhole exactly when you come to your tape. If you have to use a separate attachment, be sure you begin with the proper setting of your attachment. Machine buttonholes are especially beautiful when they have a narrow cording inserted in them. However, this is not possible with all machines."



DEAR EUNICE,

Sometimes I find the greatest patterns in the section market "Knits" in the pattern books and wonder why these same patterns wouldn't look just as great if I want to use other materials? Also, can a pattern found in other sections of the pattern books be used for knits?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED,

We are certainly going through a "knit generation," and because of this, the pattern companies have tried to help the home sewers by giving them a pattern selection that works best in knitted fabrics. In most cases, because of the give of the knits, you will find much less body shaping built into the pattern, in other words, elimination of darts in the bust areas and a generally softer design with less close fitting. Most patterns outside of the knit section can be successfully used for knits. However, because of the lack of fitting darts in the section designed expressly for knits, there wouldn't be enough ease or fit for other fabrics. Knits are usually made with very litte, if any, inner construction such as underlinings, therefore, you will have a softer look, not a stiff, shaped look. It's safest to follow the pattern companies' advice. They have spent lots of money and time trying to guide you in the right direction.

DEAR EUNICE,

Since many persons are on this tie kick, making ties for the men in their lives, I am wondering if you will answer a few questions for me. Incidentally, my son and my husband were so thrilled and excited about the ties I made them for Christmas, I wondered why I hadn't taken the little time to make something for them before.

MRS. R.M.

DEAR MRS. R.M.,

Yes, this has been quite a year for ties. one woman wrote to me and told me it was all started by secretaries who wanted to please their bosses.

"Since my husband is one of those bosses," she wrote, "I thought I'd best get on the band wagon ahead of her and try to please him myself."

One fault of the patterns available is that the instructions are too vague. First of all, with the new wider ties that have become fashionable with men, they don't use the tight small knot that they wore when they wore the tight neckbands on their shirts. Depending on the fabric you use, it is necessary to vary the amount of interfacing you use for the body of the tie. I find you must use two layers for all of today's ties. If the fabric is a light weight silk, I use an extra layer for the center portion of the tie. These should be carefully pinned together and machine stitched diagonally across them every now and then to hold them together.

If you examine an expensive tie, you will find the lining is always put in by hand. This is a simple operation and it is much easier to set the lining back about 1/4 inch from the edge. This will avoid any chance of the lining peaking out from the back of the tie.

One last bit of advice is to put a strip of narrow grosgrain ribbon across the back of the finished tie about 6 inches above the end of the wide section. This will act as a slide to slip the other end of the tie through and it's very necessary since most men have given up wearing tie tacks again.

If you intended making ties for the men in your life for Christmas but didn't quite make it, Valentine's Day isn't too far away, and it isn't too late. They are lovely made of pure silk prints, printed wool challis, silky type cottons, hand looked India silks and almost anything that doesn't wrinkle badly. As an added treat, spray your ties with Scotch-Guard spray, and they will last almost indefinitely before they have to be cleaned.

Quick-Change Artistry

NEW YORK (UPI)—New uniforms for women who wear white in their workaday world change from utility to leisure wear for afterhours with a little addition and subtraction.

Fashion reporters in New York for the 56th national "press week" saw the quick-change artistry at work during a fashion show called "Whiteworks 1971."

Take a pantsuit for the nurse. Before she leaves the hospital, she doffs the white pants, slips on red pantyhose, Golo shoes. She slips a striped dickey under the uniform top.

CONSIDER THE counter girl at Madison Square Garden. She adds colorful pantyhose, swinging jewelry and leisure shoes. Presto, her work uniform is transformed.

SHE USES it to double as a beach cover-up for her bikini, of course.

All the uniforms for women who work in white took on a fun or social look with the addition of such things as white boots, colorful pantyhose, straw hats and bags, jewelry.

Also white and attention-gettingat closing sessions of the "press week" was a nifty costume designed by Margit Brandt, a 25-year-old designer from Copenhagen.

The top was a perfect copy of the underwear corselette — combination bra and girdle. It went with blue cotton short shorts, a long blue cotton skirt slit up the middle, below-the-knee blue fabric and laced boots. Accenting all this was a floppy straw hat.

THE QUESTION this costume posed was: Will the women of Main Street U.S.A. be able to wear a white corselette for shopping —without getting arrested?

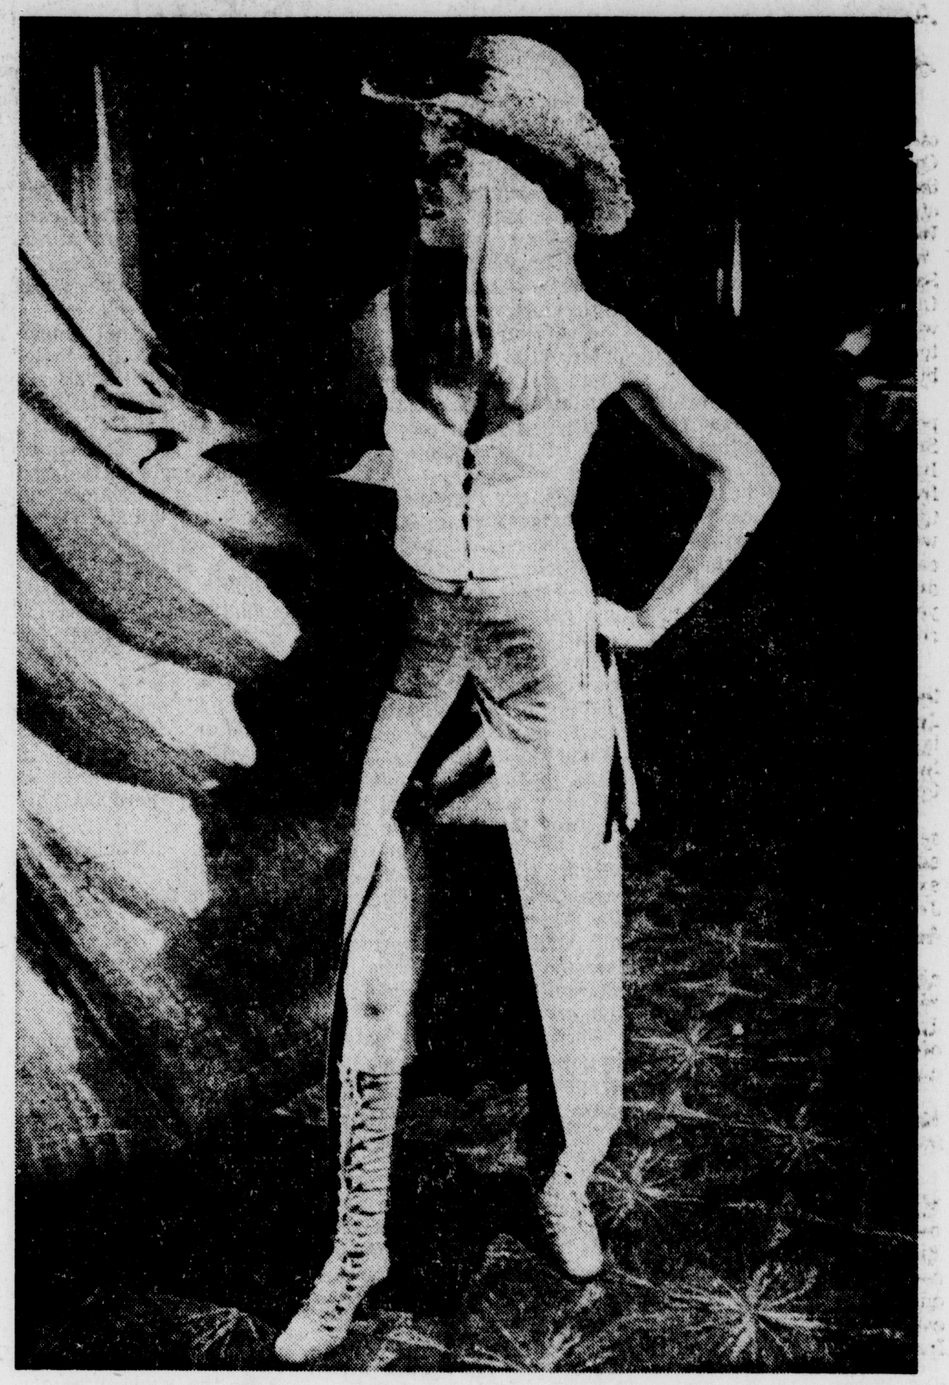
Mrs. Brandt and her husband, Erik, 26, are seasoned fashion trade figures and head of a $15 million a year, four-year-old fashion empire that does 90 per cent of its business outside Denmark.

The former Pierre Balmain mannequin said underwear on the outside goes with the freedom and liberation vibrations that are worldwide.

She said the fashion is going over well in Europe. But in America, women haven't worn authentic underpinnings on the outside yet as a fashion.

But men have worn T-shirts, the top part of their underwear, on the outside for years.

So why shouldn't the women be allowed the same privilege?



WILL THE women of Main Street, USA, be able to wear this costume shopping without getting arrested, was the question posed when it was shown to fashion reporters in New York for the Couture Business Council's 56th annual press week. Designed by Margit and Erik Brandt of Copenhagen, Denmark, the costume has a white corselette bodice cover and a short, short mini in blue cotton. The skirt is slit up the middle and worn with blue cotton, laced, below-the-knee boots.

Baking Soda Will Safely Put Out Many Types Of Kitchen Fires

If your fondue dish catches fire during a party, don't reach for the phone, head for the kitchen instead; it most likely contains an instant fire extinguisher — baking soda.

This is the sound advice of fire and safety expert, William C. Bogane, director of safety for an airlines, who states that home fires in the U.S. claim the lives of over 6,000 people per year.

"Small fires in the home can be controlled," says Bogane, "when the homemaker is prepared."

To deal with small fires, he had devised an inexpensive, homemade fire prevention kit for housewives.

Take an empty one-pound coffee can, pierce holes in the bottom and fill with baking soda, so it acts like a giant pepper shaker. Baking soda when sprinkled on flames forms a blanket of carbon dioxide, which smothers the fire.

When table cloths, furniture or draperies are burning you can use a bottle of carbonated pop, remove the top and shake, then spray the fire area. A can of beer will do the same.

For electrical fires, use a wet towel to unplug the cord and sprinkle the flaming appliance with baking soda. Do not use flour, starch or baking powder since these are explosive when in the form of a dust.

If your oven flares up, throw a couple of handfuls of baking soda on the flames and close the oven door. For burning frying pans, use same size skillet over top which cuts off air, or drape sopping wet towel over the pan.

In Bogane's manual, some of the most frequent fire starters in the home are hot fats or oils; and cooked ham or turkey, pressurized cans (hairspray, etc.) near an open flame and overloading electrical systems.

"Housewives can easily cope with small fires, provided they keep cool and don't panic. When the fire is contained, call the fire department and they will send someone out for a routine check to make sure the danger is past and assist in eliminating other fire hazards."

DRAMA REVIEW

'Summertree' Is Perceptive Play

By KAY KSANDA

Oh, what a dandy, relevant, perceptive, exciting play is "Summertree." It is "middle class standards" verses "death and the draft." It's anti-war, but don't stop there. It's how the mother says goodby, and the proud father says good luck.

It's how the splendid soldier started dying before he left. It's like when he hated to go to camp as a kid, and his mother told him to dress warm.

The clicheed dialogue is a feast of frustrating platitudes, bitter nostalgia and psychological family war.

Written by Don Cowen for his master's thesis in 1968 (at age of 22), the drama won "Best of Off Broadway" for the year.

The action is fast and initially confusing. The story is told in flashback and is not chronological. It jumps from the soldier to the boy scout to the dropout; to even two identities at once.

The hero has a tree as his family-soul entity. The tree in his yard has always seemed alive. Not as abstract as Edward Albee, nor macabe as Shirley Jackson, the theme is how only the tree listens.

The boy is dead.

The uncurtained stage is filled with a sinewy gigantic tree. Designed by Mimi Gramatky of San Francisco State, the tall foliage hits the ceiling. The roots run up front stage, creating extra levels and areas. It's handsome, and very effective.

The excellent cast brought reality and moments of deeply moving pathos to many scenes within the play. The profiles were particularly dramatic in the love scenes with both Father and Mother, (played by Abe Kalish and Jean McKimmey,) and their Son and his Girl (Jack Powell and Cris Weatherhead.) Miss Weatherhead, of Actors Workshop, was outstanding.

A first appearance for young Jay Morris, as the little boy, shows that it is not necessarily time that makes the actor.

A loving cameo was created by Jean McKimmey as she described her feelings on the news of her son's death. As she sat and cried under the summertree, she remembered her Irish setter, and eventually couldn't tell whether she was crying for her dog or her son.

The tension and frustration is created by the lack of understanding between Father and Son. The father says, "You should be out meeting people who can do something for you ... I didn't say you didn't do anything right, I just pointed out what you did wrong." To this the son answers sadly, "I'm trying to please you and please myself ... It's nice in school, you can be a bum and nobody cares."

Director Dick Nesbitt, late of ACT, San Francisco, and his production staff have done a dimensional and deft job of a unique and difficult play, bringing through the strength of the author's message. This is truly excellent theater.

Performances are Friday and Saturday nights through January at 8:30 in the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts.

Density Of Housing Due Study

A report suggesting new methods of measuring housing density in Mill Valley will be considered by the city's planning commission when it meets Monday at 8 p.m. at city hall.

In preparation since September, the report proposes abandoning the old units-per-acre density concept in favor of a "unit point" system.

Under the new system, 10 points per residential acre would be allowed on land with poor access, 30 points per acre for good access and 50 points per acre for excellent access.

After determining the total number of unit points allowable on a certain parcel, the number and type of building units could be computed.

A studio apartment would be assigned two unit points, a one-bedroom house three points, and five points for two bedrooms, eight points for four bedrooms and 10 points for five bedrooms.

Rewards in the form of increased unit points could be given to developers willing to dedicate open space to the city, the report suggests.

The difference in the old and new systems is evident by comparing studio apartments with five-bedroom houses. Under the current system of measurement, an equal number of studios or houses could be built on a site. Under the proposed system, five studios could be built on an acre with poor access but only one five-bedroom house.

The report suggested the planning commission hold hearings on the proposed changes and then make recommendations to the city council.

Apartment Zoning To Be Aired

Gus Niederholzer of Kentfield will get another hearing at 9 a.m. Monday on his request for apartment zoning for a three-acre parcel next to Ross General Hospital.

The hearing will be before the Marin County Planning Commission at the Civic Center.

The hilly property is on the north side of Geary Avenue at Toussin Street. At a Nov. 23 hearing, neighbors complained that new apartments in the area would create traffic problems on already congested Toussin Street and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

Other items on the planning commission agenda include:

BEL AIRE — Dr. George Sugarman will try again for five apartment units on 19,500 square feet of property on Tiburon Boulevard between Bayvista and Blackfield drives.

INDUSTRIAL PARK — Soiland and Associates will present a master plan for the 254-acre Ignacio Industrial Park (formerly called Novato Industrial Park) to the east and south of Bel Marin Keys Boulevard.

Discord To TV Line In Tiburon

The Tiburon Parks and Recreation Commission is unhappy about a cable television firm's plans to install a transmission line along the newly acquired Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way.

The commission voted Thursday to ask the city council to reconsider its action in granting an encroachment permit to Cable TV of Marin to install underground cable along the right-of-way, destined to become a pedestrian and bicycle pathway.

Clerk Helen Hecht said the commission felt the cable firm should be required to contribute to the cost of developing the right-of-way, which has been renamed the Richardson Bay Shoreline Trail and Bicycle Path.

The city council last week said Cable TV of Marin could use the pathway after refusing the firm permission to encroach on city-owned road right-of-way in the pine terrace area. That proposal would have suspended the cable from utility poles.

Cash Stolen

Cash totaling $301 was stolen Thursday from an unlocked safe at McDonald's Restaurant at 2114 Fourth Street, San Rafael, police reported.

Span Board Looks At New Toll Plaza

Plans to reverse one-way toll collection on the Golden Gate Bridge to northbound traffic with a new toll plaza were presented yesterday to bridge district directors.

Persons, Brinckerhoff, Quade & Douglas, San Francisco engineers who drafted preliminary plans for the project, estimated its cost at $3,257,000.

They said it could be completed in early 1973, if given a quick go-ahead to do final engineering. The preliminary plans cost $75,000, and the final ones would cost an estimated $175,000.

The most radical change would be a new four-lane roadway for southbound traffic bypassing the west side of the administration building. It would allow southbound traffic to flow off the bridge without reducing speed.

Northbound traffic would have twice the distance to merge after 12 toll gates, thus increasing safety, the engineers said.

The project also would replace 30-year-old equipment in the toll gates and control offices of the district. Obsolete toll equipment now must be hand-crafted by district workmen when it breaks down.

The engineers said that the improvements would be compatible with both a second deck and with widening of the San Francisco approaches.

The new roadway would be 2,650 feet long, and would loop in a fairly flat curve from south of Fort Point and rejoin the existing roadway between Lincoln Boulevard and the Funston Avenue exit ramp. It would be designed to meet urban freeway design criteria for 60 miles an hour speed.

The existing sidewalk on the west side of the bridge, used by bicyclists on weekends and holidays, would be extended along the proposed bypass roadway.

The bus stop would be moved to the Merchant Street ramp.

The engineers' plans also suggested tests pop-up lane dividers and of lights mounted on or in the pavement as lane dividers.

Either, if feasible, could be provided on the new bypass, the engineers said.

Their plans were referred to the building and operating committee:

Golden Gate Bridge District Board Also:

TUBES — Received report that Production Engineering Inc. of San Rafael and the district's staff had developed a safer and less expensive tube for use as a lane divider. It uses a soft plastic base instead of a cast metal base, thus is less hazardous to motorists if jarred loose.

FERRIES — Referred to the transportation committee a proposal by director Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco that the district's ferry system be in full operation by June 1, 1972.

COMMITTEE — Set a meeting of the transportation transportation committee to review specifications for the ferry system at 9:30 a.m. on Jan. 28 in toll plaza offices. The legislation-public relations committee will meet first at 9 a.m.

CLAIMS — Denied two $1 million claims against the district by motorists injured in traffic accidents involving district vehicles.

ACCIDENTS — Received report that there were 100 accidents on the bridge in 1970, down from 104 in 1969.

EMPLOYEES — Received report that the district had 255 employees as of Dec. 31, compared to 229 a year previously. Administrative personnel totaled 32, compared with 28 a year previously.

SUICIDES — Received report that eight persons were prevented from jumping from the bridge during December, while three were known to have succeeded in jumping.

Megan Picked As President Of Tennis Club

Lee G. Megan has been chosen president of the Belvedere Tennis Club for 1971, according to Secretary-Mgr. Samuel E. Soden.

Other new officers are Dr. Malcolm B. McIlroy, vice president, and Daniel Richards, treasurer.

The following chairmen also were elected: Arnt Tjensvold, tennis; Natalie Machette, junior activities and tennis vice chairman; Sally Fulton, activities; Leslie Graham, house, grounds and pool; Sanford Anixter, membership committee, and Bruce Sanborn, special projects.

Gerald Elbert was named financial investments consultant, a nonboard position, and Soden was appointed permanent secretary-manager.

Proposal For Single Transit Fare

A single fare for transit riders between Marin and San Francisco was proposed yesterday by San Francisco Supervisor Ronald Pelosi to Golden Gate Bridge District directors.

His proposal envisioned a single 75-cent ticket good for feeder bus service to the bridge district's main line buses or ferries, a ride on the trunk line to San Francisco, and a connecting Municipal Railway bus to the rider's destination.

Asimilar system has proven successful in Hamburg, Germany, where transit riders formerly had to buy separate tickets at each transfer.

The Hamburg solution was to merge all the transit systems, but Pelosi proposed only that the bridge district and feeder bus systems in Marin and San Francisco work out a joint ticket.

PELosi's proposal was referred to committee for study.

Driver Reports Knife Attack

A 20-year-old San Rafael man was slightly hurt when he was attacked in his car Wednesday night by a man wielding a switch blade knife, San Rafael police said.

Donald F. Parr of 1445 Lincoln Avenue told police that his car was forced over on Third Street and that a man got out of another car and hit him in the face with the handle of a knife. Parr said the man fled.

Suit Against Frouge Estate

A $74,635 suit has been filed in Marin Superior Court against the estate of the late Thomas Frouge by a Tiburon real estate consultant who prepared plans for Frouge's controversial Marincello proposal.

The plaintiff, Kurt Heath, claims he was never paid $50,000 for preparation of land use plans for the proposed development.

The suit asks for payment of the $50,000, plus interest, and $6,500, plus interest, Heath says was owed him by Frouge.

Marincello is to be a huge planned community in the Marin headlands, but no building has taken place.

Frouge died in New York in 1969.

DRAMA REVIEW

'Summertree' Is Perceptive Play

By KAY KSANDA

Oh, what a dandy, relevant, perceptive, exciting play is "Summertree." It is "middle class standards" verses "death and the draft." It's anti-war, but don't stop there. It's how the mother says goodby, and the proud father says good luck.

It's how the splendid soldier started dying before he left. It's like when he hated to go to camp as a kid, and his mother told him to dress warm.

The clicheed dialogue is a feast of frustrating platitudes, bitter nostalgia and psychological family war.

Written by Don Cowen for his master's thesis in 1968 (at age of 22), the drama won "Best of Off Broadway" for the year.

The action is fast and initially confusing. The story is told in flashback and is not chronological. It jumps from the soldier to the boy scout to the dropout; to even two identities at once.

The hero has a tree as his family-soul entity. The tree in his yard has always seemed alive. Not as abstract as Edward Albee, nor macabe as Shirley Jackson, the theme is how only the tree listens.

The boy is dead.

The uncurtained stage is filled with a sinewy gigantic tree. Designed by Mimi Gramatky of San Francisco State, the tall foliage hits the ceiling. The roots run up front stage, creating extra levels and areas. It's handsome, and very effective.

The excellent cast brought reality and moments of deeply moving pathos to many scenes within the play. The profiles were particularly dramatic in the love scenes with both Father and Mother, (played by Abe Kalish and Jean McKimmey,) and their Son and his Girl (Jack Powell and Cris Weatherhead.) Miss Weatherhead, of Actors Workshop, was outstanding.

A first appearance for young Jay Morris, as the little boy, shows that it is not necessarily time that makes the actor.

A loving cameo was created by Jean McKimmey as she described her feelings on the news of her son's death. As she sat and cried under the summertree, she remembered her Irish setter, and eventually couldn't tell whether she was crying for her dog or her son.

The tension and frustration is created by the lack of understanding between Father and Son. The father says, "You should be out meeting people who can do something for you ... I didn't say you didn't do anything right, I just pointed out what you did wrong." To this the son answers sadly, "I'm trying to please you and please myself ... It's nice in school, you can be a bum and nobody cares."

Director Dick Nesbitt, late of ACT, San Francisco, and his production staff have done a dimensional and deft job of a unique and difficult play, bringing through the strength of the author's message. This is truly excellent theater.

Performances are Friday and Saturday nights through January at 8:30 in the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts.

Density Of Housing Due Study

A report suggesting new methods of measuring housing density in Mill Valley will be considered by the city's planning commission when it meets Monday at 8 p.m. at city hall.

In preparation since September, the report proposes abandoning the old units-per-acre density concept in favor of a "unit point" system.

Under the new system, 10 points per residential acre would be allowed on land with poor access, 30 points per acre for good access and 50 points per acre for excellent access.

After determining the total number of unit points allowable on a certain parcel, the number and type of building units could be computed.

A studio apartment would be assigned two unit points, a one-bedroom house three points, and five points for two bedrooms, eight points for four bedrooms and 10 points for five bedrooms.

Rewards in the form of increased unit points could be given to developers willing to dedicate open space to the city, the report suggests.

The difference in the old and new systems is evident by comparing studio apartments with five-bedroom houses. Under the current system of measurement, an equal number of studios or houses could be built on a site. Under the proposed system, five studios could be built on an acre with poor access but only one five-bedroom house.

The report suggested the planning commission hold hearings on the proposed changes and then make recommendations to the city council.

Apartment Zoning To Be Aired

Gus Niederholzer of Kentfield will get another hearing at 9 a.m. Monday on his request for apartment zoning for a three-acre parcel next to Ross General Hospital.

The hearing will be before the Marin County Planning Commission at the Civic Center.

The hilly property is on the north side of Geary Avenue at Toussin Street. At a Nov. 23 hearing, neighbors complained that new apartments in the area would create traffic problems on already congested Toussin Street and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

Other items on the planning commission agenda include:

BEL AIRE — Dr. George Sugarman will try again for five apartment units on 19,500 square feet of property on Tiburon Boulevard between Bayvista and Blackfield drives.

INDUSTRIAL PARK — Soiland and Associates will present a master plan for the 254-acre Ignacio Industrial Park (formerly called Novato Industrial Park) to the east and south of Bel Marin Keys Boulevard.

Discord To TV Line In Tiburon

The Tiburon Parks and Recreation Commission is unhappy about a cable television firm's plans to install a transmission line along the newly acquired Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way.

The commission voted Thursday to ask the city council to reconsider its action in granting an encroachment permit to Cable TV of Marin to install underground cable along the right-of-way, destined to become a pedestrian and bicycle pathway.

Clerk Helen Hecht said the commission felt the cable firm should be required to contribute to the cost of developing the right-of-way, which has been renamed the Richardson Bay Shoreline Trail and Bicycle Path.

The city council last week said Cable TV of Marin could use the pathway after refusing the firm permission to encroach on city-owned road right-of-way in the pine terrace area. That proposal would have suspended the cable from utility poles.

Cash Stolen

Cash totaling $301 was stolen Thursday from an unlocked safe at McDonald's Restaurant at 2114 Fourth Street, San Rafael, police reported.

Span Board Looks At New Toll Plaza

Plans to reverse one-way toll collection on the Golden Gate Bridge to northbound traffic with a new toll plaza were presented yesterday to bridge district directors.

Persons, Brinckerhoff, Quade & Douglas, San Francisco engineers who drafted preliminary plans for the project, estimated its cost at $3,257,000.

Fly to Madrid, Paris, London - and stay two weeks—all for less than regular air fare.

Two weeks in Europe for less than you'd spend at home! American Express offers three popular and diverse European capitals from only $285*.

This "Swinger" holiday is one of our most popular travel bargains. You're guaranteed lowest air fare with scheduled airlines like TWA; confirmed reservations at your choice of budget, medium or first-class hotels (private bath in the latter two); breakfast every day; ground transportation; sightseeing and many extras, including services of a resident host in each city. This all-inclusive tour could put you on a plane to Madrid, Paris and London next to someone who paid $464 for his air ticket alone.

Take off almost whenever you want. There are 50 departures in 1971, from $285.* American Express also has 11 other "Swinger" combinations. Choose from two or three weeks in up to five countries. You can visit any one of 12 major capitals, the French and Spanish Rivieras and even choose a seven-day Greek Islands cruise.

Get our free "Europe Book," the encyclopedia of European vacations. See your travel agent or clip the coupon below. American Express, for people who travel.

Based on economy-class round-trip air fare from N.Y. to Paris.

Some Words On Freedom From One Who Knows

HERE ARE SOME excerpts from an address by a high government official, delivered about a year and a half ago in New York.

We are, he said:

"A society with new suburban districts and old urban areas badly in need of renovation.

"A society with industrious, well-groomed men who go to work, and children who do not receive enough loving care at home.

"A society —

"With an army that has trouble with rebellious youth,

"With trade unions at loggerheads over questions of reform,

"With a congress that is not popular and yet is deemed indispensible by most people,

"With a government laboriously searching for compromise,

"With adults who are exasperated at the arrogance of youth, and

"With a younger generation which no longer takes its parents very seriously."

ON THE OTHER HAND, said the speaker:

"The vast majority of our working community is integrated in a democratic state.

"The status of trade unions in our society is not seriously challenged.

"We have two large democratic political parties which are built on solid foundations and both are capable of running the nation's affairs independently.

"We have a press over 90 per cent of whose members would stand up and fight for democracy.

"Above all, we have a society that is not indulging in complacency but questions itself continually.

"We realize we are not at the end of the road leading to full democracy but only at the beginning. This gives rise to unrest and friction, brings additional work, and also opens up opportunity for many a radical revolutionary.

"It stirs to action those people who want to remedy tomorrow's problems with yesterday's recipes; those who have not yet realized that we are nearer the year 2000 than the year of 1933; those who are too preoccupied with the errors of the past to see the opportunities of the future.

"It stirs to action those who are confused by rapid changes taking place in our society, who are afraid of the future and who cannot grasp what the astronauts saw on their return from the moon — that the good earth has shrunk, that we all depend on each other, and that we all are faced with the choice of either developing or destroying this 'oasis in the wastes of space.'

"I don't seek to minimize our problems, but I want you to know we can cope with them and our task will be all the easier the more we can count on your faith in our democracy.

"Freedom is not something you possess, not something you put away in your pocket; but it is something that has to be fought for anew every day."

WHO WAS THE SPEAKER of this seemingly classic yet contemporary Fourth of July rhetoric?

He was a high government official, all right, but not an official of the U.S. government.

All these seemingly astute observations were voiced by Dr. Erhard Eppler, West German minister for economic cooperation.

When he spoke of "our society," he meant West Germany. When he referred to "congress," he meant the West German parliament.

He delivered his remarks at a meeting sponsored by the American Council on Germany and the German consulate general of New York.

IF NOTHING ELSE, this tells us that the problems we face in the U.S.A. are not unique.

It also tells us why such a strong affinity has grown between West Germany and the U.S.A. since World War II.

We only wish we would hear from our own high government officials statesmanlike comments of the kind Minister Eppler proclaimed in concluding his address:

"We do not consider ourselves one little bit better nor worse than our contemporaries elsewhere. We look at the nations of the west and the east, in the north and especially in the south of our planet without prejudice and offer them our cooperation. . ."

WHO IS THIS EPPLER? Where did he come from?

In his own words he tells us:

"My generation — the generation of those in their early 40s — is assuming more and more responsibilities. In our (West German) cabinet alone there are four ministers of this age. The local governments in Berlin, Munich and Bremen are led by men of this generation.

"We were learning to read and write when Hitler seized power. As teen-agers we were drafted for military service and saw with our own eyes how Nazism, in its final desperate struggle, dropped all pretense and showed its true face.

"We were not young enough ever to forget the terrible things we saw, but we were young enough to make a fresh start. As 18 and 20 years olds we thought things over and decided that whatever would happen in Germany in the future, there never could be a repetition of what we had experienced.

"It was this determination that led us into politics, not some kind of ideology in which we saw the salvation of the world."

It was with this introduction that he said,

"To us, freedom is not something that you possess, not something you put away in the pocket; but something that has to be fought for anew every day."

America's concerned youth of today could profit by pondering long and hard upon Minister Eppler's words.

Bouquets And Brickbats

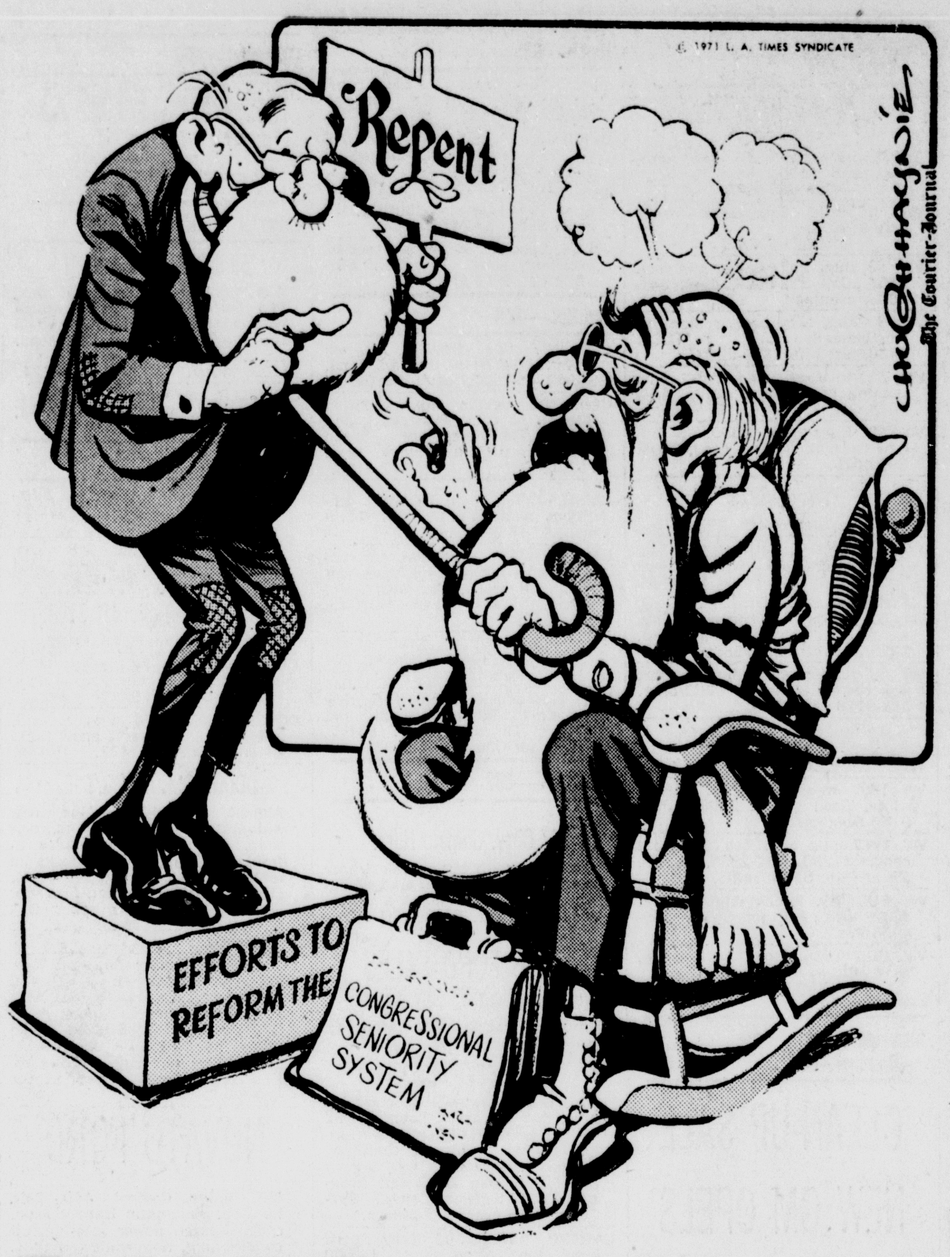
BOUQUET to the Dixie School District board for honoring its pledge to voters by refusing a pay increase to teachers for the current school year. The decision was not easy. The Dixie trustees' rectitude deserves emulation by officials of many jurisdictions who are inclined to forget their promises.

BOUQUETS to members of the Marin and Golden Gate chapters of the National Audubon Society who spent a cold Sunday counting 193 species of birds in Marin — proving that "silent spring" has not arrived here yet by a long shot.

BRICKBATS to the thieves who have stolen so many books from Tamalpais High School District's School libraries that security measures are seen as necessary there.

BOUQUETS to Nevada Christian on her dedicated service as executive director of the Marin Association for Mental Health, and to Dorothy H. Leake who succeeds her in the position.

BOUQUETS to Marin's New Year drivers, who kept the holiday week end safe here with only a few minor accidents reported.



"Who're y' calling 'Pops'? Why, you've been around durn near as long as I have."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Plan For Freeze On Wages, Prices

We hear talk of the need for a wage-price freeze in order to stop the inflation and other deterrents to the spread of happiness, well being and civilized behavior in this country. This writer went through the wage-price freeze in the early '40s as an employer. It was full of loopholes for those determined to disregard the freeze, and these were many. In spite of many thousands of bureaucratic employes in enforcement, violators found ways and means of escaping the intent and provisions of the order.

Herein is an idea for a simple, violation proof, easily implemented plan without myriads of enforcers. From my point of observation, most if not all, Union employees are more than satisfied with their wages, pensions, vacations, medical care benfits, etc. AS OF NOW. If this premise has validity, I submit the following:

Set a nearby date, say March 15, 1971. Wage schedules as of this date by employers of 1,000 or more union or non-union, to be filed with the U.S. Department of Labor. AS OF THAT DATE THERE WOULD BE NO RESTRAINT ON WAGE INCREASES, BUT all such increases would be subject to 100 per cent income taxes to the recipients, and such increases granted by employers would be non-deductible as an expense. In all cases hardships would be fairly adjudicated. No massive enforcement machinery would be used or required. Setting prices as of this date, or any other date, would not be difficult. Think it over, please.

You Can Take The Cigarettes Out Of The Commercials, But. . .

WASHINGTON — The great minds of the cigarette and advertising industries are hard at work trying to figure out ways of publicizing cigarettes on television now that cigarette commercials have been banned.

The tobacco companies are already going ahead with plans to sponsor automobile races, bowling tournaments, tennis matches and other sporting events. There is a rumor that pipe tobacco, which is not banned, will be sold in packages bearing a startling resemblance to cigarette packages.

I recently attended a brainstorming session at an advertising agency where they were discussing other methods of getting cigarette advertising across.

THE HEAD of Creative Projects said: "I think we have an idea. We could sponsor a documentary on Winston Churchill titled, 'Winston Ruled Good, Like a Prime Minister Should.' English teachers all over the country will complain about the title and so, at the beginning of the show, we could show members of British Parliament asking whether people wanted good grammar or good taste in their documentaries."

"I like it," said the president of the advertising agency. "What else have we got?"

The TV department director said: "We sketched out a western series titled Marlboro Country. The hero is a rancher, Ben Marlboro, with a tattoo on his hand. Ben has two sons named Phillip and Morris who help their father on the ranch.

"There is also a midget, named Johnny, who works around the house as a hand. Every time there is any trouble, Ben tells Johnny, 'Call for Phillip and Morris.' "

"I like it," said the president of the agency.

"HERE's ANOTHER TV series that might work," said the agency time buyer. "It's called Lucky Strike, and it's about a man who drills for oil in Texas. Every time he hits a well, he shouts, 'Lucky strike means fine depletion.' "

"I like it," said the president of the agency.

The head of research said: "We've found that the TV shows that young people watch the most have animals in them. Now our people have come up with a sure-fire series titled 'Camels Aren't for Everybody.' This is a story of a man who owns a restless camel that keeps running away.

"Every week the man takes a mile-long walk looking for his camel. Along the way he has all sorts of humorous adventures, but at the end of the program he always finds his camel."

"I like it," the president of the agency said.

THE HEAD of the TV department said: "We also have a 'Mission Impossible'-type series on the drawing boards titled, 'You Can Take Salem Out of the Country.' It's about a guy named Harry Salem who works for a patriotic organization known as SMOKE. Harry goes all over the world saving the United States from evil. At the end of each show, his boss says to his secretary, 'You can take Salem out of the country, but you can't take the country out of Salem.' "

"I like it," said the president of the agency. " Anything else?"

The head of media said: "We have a comedy series about two tall basketball players named Benson and Hedges. They've each scored 100 points in a game so everyone refers to them as Benson and Hedges 100's. Robert Byrd of West Virginia is increasingly active in nose-counting to determine his chances of replacing Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts as the Democratic whip, or assistant floor leader.

Howard Baker of Tennessee is similarly engaged with an overturn of the Republican floor leader, Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, as his objective. It is not certain, mind you, that either Byrd or Baker will take the last plunge and go for broke, for traditionally party leaders go on and on. Neither has yet finally to commit himself; any man's decision in this manner will pivot upon the ancient axiom that if you strike at a king, you must kill him.

Still, the point of crucial importance lies simply in the fact that senators outside the entrenched command posts are even seriously thinking of trying to break inside. And no matter what happens — an actual ouster or not of either Scott or Kennedy — the winner will have survived so thinly among his own colleagues as to bring into grave question his future capacity to fulfill the office still nominally held by him.

IT IS MORE than possible — indeed it is probable — that Scott and Kennedy are in some senses mere badminton shuttlecocks batted about to relieve senatorial frustrations. The one, Scott, has been by no means an inept leader — but for the circumstance that he has not been able to speak the language of the regular Republicans nor act as their ambassador to President Nixon.

Again, Kennedy is far from totally to blame for the shambles made of orderly, reasoned discourse by the New Left politicians — though he is one of them himself and as such is an entry in an absurdly large and frenetic sweepstakes contest among Senate Democrats for the presidency.

All the same, a leader who takes credit for the sunshine must also accept blame for the rain — and this is about the position in which Hugh Scott and Edward Kennedy find themselves.

FOR ONE REASON or another the Senate holds among informed men the lowest esteem within memory.

This circumstance alone would lend unusual vitality to the potential rebellions of Baker and Byrd. A more subtle reason to treat their putative candidacies seriously is this powerful one: the House of Representatives must in the end work in some kind of cooperation with the Senate if government is to function. But the House of Representatives — both sides of it — has long been so utterly soured on the Senate, and with total justification, as to threaten an all-too-real breakdown in the whole legislative system unless responsible action in the so-called upper body is restored.

Even the Senate cannot forever remain unmoved by such pressures. Something will have to give — and so something will give either through leadership changes or a delayed awareness among a loud and largely new-leftist Senate minority that nobody is being helped by the way things have been going over there.

War Gives Israel Boom— And World's Highest Tax

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

As a result of winning the six-day Arab-Israeli 1967 war, the citizens of Israel have won the distinction of becoming the most heavily taxed people in the world.

The Israeli finance ministry has disclosed that in 1970, Israelis paid out the equivalent of 41.2 per cent of the country's gross national product in taxes or compulsory loans or bonds, putting them ahead of Sweden which had been the world leader.

The Swedes paid 39 per cent, the British 32.8 per cent and the United States 27 per cent.

And as calendar 1971 opened, Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir gave Israelis the further bad news that military spending for the 1971-72 fiscal year running from April 1 through March 31 would come to $1.5 billion or 40 per cent of the national budget.

It is four times what the Israelis were paying before the 1967 war.

BEFORE THE WAR, Israel went through a period of severe recession.

The recession ended with the war, and was replaced by an economic boom brought on by defense spending and accompanied by higher living standards and increased civilian consumption.

With both the government and the citizenry living beyond their means, the man on the street must pay nearly $600 for a black and white television set and $5,000 for a Volkswagen.

Adding to an economic picture threatening to become chaotic, the months of cease fire also permitted labor unrest to break into the open.

Strikes interrupted such essential services as electricity and telephones. Another strike closed secondary schools.

A RECENT CREDIT of $500 million authorized by the United States Congress is making it possible to continue the war effort.

But even at comparatively low interest rates it is money that must be repaid and doesn't last long when it includes such items as Phantom bombers, 175-mm. long-range artillery, tanks and air-to-ground missiles for use against Russian-made SAM missiles.

The Phantoms, for example, sell for $5 million per copy.

Finance Minister Sapir has declared that if Israel's military needs are met, she will have to spend $1 billion on defense imports this year, $200 million more than in 1970.

AS TO WHERE the money will come from:

A sharp increase in taxes last August is expected to bring in an additional $500 million.

Jews abroad are being asked to contribute $1 billion, partly in development bonds but mostly in contributions.

The government is pushing a campaign to attract foreign investment, of which it is hoped some $66 million will come from the United States.

Some Words On Freedom From One Who Knows

HERE ARE SOME excerpts from an address by a high government official, delivered about a year and a half ago in New York.

We are, he said:

"A society with new suburban districts and old urban areas badly in need of renovation.

"A society with too many heavy trucks on roads that are too narrow.

"A society with industrious, well-groomed men who go to work, and children who do not receive enough loving care at home.

"A society —

"With an army that has trouble with rebellious youth,

"With trade unions at loggerheads over questions of reform,

"With a congress that is not popular and yet is deemed indispensible by most people,

"With a government laboriously searching for compromise,

"With adults who are exasperated at the arrogance of youth, and

"With a younger generation which no longer takes its parents very seriously."

ON THE OTHER HAND, said the speaker:

"The vast majority of our working community is integrated in a democratic state.

"The status of trade unions in our society is not seriously challenged.

"We have two large democratic political parties which are built on solid foundations and both are capable of running the nation's affairs independently.

"We have a press over 90 per cent of whose members would stand up and fight for democracy.

"Above all, we have a society that is not indulging in complacency but questions itself continually.

"We realize we are not at the end of the road leading to full democracy but only at the beginning. This gives rise to unrest and friction, brings additional work, and also opens up opportunity for many a radical revolutionary.

"It stirs to action those people who want to remedy tomorrow's problems with yesterday's recipes; those who have not yet realized that we are nearer the year 2000 than the year of 1933; those who are too preoccupied with the errors of the past to see the opportunities of the future.

"It stirs to action those who are confused by rapid changes taking place in our society, who are afraid of the future and who cannot grasp what the astronauts saw on their return from the moon — that the good earth has shrunk, that we all depend on each other, and that we all are faced with the choice of either developing or destroying this 'oasis in the wastes of space.'

"I don't seek to minimize our problems, but I want you to know we can cope with them and our task will be all the easier the more we can count on your faith in our democracy.

"Freedom is not something you possess, not something you put away in your pocket; but it is something that has to be fought for anew every day."

WHO WAS THE SPEAKER of this seemingly classic yet contemporary Fourth of July rhetoric?

He was a high government official, all right, but not an official of the U.S. government.

All these seemingly astute observations were voiced by Dr. Erhard Eppler, West German minister for economic cooperation.

When he spoke of "our society," he meant West Germany. When he referred to "congress," he meant the West German parliament.

He delivered his remarks at a meeting sponsored by the American Council on Germany and the German consulate general of New York.

IF NOTHING ELSE, this tells us that the problems we face in the U.S.A. are not unique.

It also tells us why such a strong affinity has grown between West Germany and the U.S.A. since World War II.

We only wish we would hear from our own high government officials statesmanlike comments of the kind Minister Eppler proclaimed in concluding his address:

"We do not consider ourselves one little bit better nor worse than our contemporaries elsewhere. We look at the nations of the west and the east, in the north and especially in the south of our planet without prejudice and offer them our cooperation. . ."

WHO IS THIS EPPLER? Where did he come from?

In his own words he tells us:

"My generation — the generation of those in their early 40s — is assuming more and more responsibilities. In our (West German) cabinet alone there are four ministers of this age. The local governments in Berlin, Munich and Bremen are led by men of this generation.

"We were learning to read and write when Hitler seized power. As teen-agers we were drafted for military service and saw with our own eyes how Nazism, in its final desperate struggle, dropped all pretense and showed its true face.

"We were not young enough ever to forget the terrible things we saw, but we were young enough to make a fresh start. As 18 and 20 years olds we thought things over and decided that whatever would happen in Germany in the future, there never could be a repetition of what we had experienced.

"It was this determination that led us into politics, not some kind of ideology in which we saw the salvation of the world."

It was with this introduction that he said,

"To us, freedom is not something that you possess, not something you put away in the pocket; but something that has to be fought for anew every day."

America's concerned youth of today could profit by pondering long and hard upon Minister Eppler's words.

BOUQUETS to Nevada Christian on her dedicated service as executive director of the Marin Association for Mental Health, and to Dorothy H. Leake who succeeds her in the position.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Plan For Freeze On Wages, Prices

We hear talk of the need for a wage-price freeze in order to stop the inflation and other deterrents to the spread of happiness, well being and civilized behavior in this country. This writer went through the wage-price freeze in the early '40s as an employer. It was full of loopholes for those determined to disregard the freeze, and these were many. In spite of many thousands of bureaucratic employes in enforcement, violators found ways and means of escaping the intent and provisions of the order.

Herein is an idea for a simple, violation proof, easily implemented plan without myriads of enforcers. From my point of observation, most if not all, Union employees are more than satisfied with their wages, pensions, vacations, medical care benfits, etc. AS OF NOW. If this premise has validity, I submit the following:

Set a nearby date, say March 15, 1971. Wage schedules as of this date by employers of 1,000 or more union or non-union, to be filed with the U.S. Department of Labor. AS OF THAT DATE THERE WOULD BE NO RESTRAINT ON WAGE INCREASES, BUT all such increases would be subject to 100 per cent income taxes to the recipients, and such increases granted by employers would be non-deductible as an expense. In all cases hardships would be fairly adjudicated. No massive enforcement machinery would be used or required. Setting prices as of this date, or any other date, would not be difficult. Think it over, please.

You Can Take The Cigarettes Out Of The Commercials, But. . .

WASHINGTON — The great minds of the cigarette and advertising industries are hard at work trying to figure out ways of publicizing cigarettes on television now that cigarette commercials have been banned.

The tobacco companies are already going ahead with plans to sponsor automobile races, bowling tournaments, tennis matches and other sporting events. There is a rumor that pipe tobacco, which is not banned, will be sold in packages bearing a startling resemblance to cigarette packages.

I recently attended a brainstorming session at an advertising agency where they were discussing other methods of getting cigarette advertising across.

THE HEAD of Creative Projects said: "I think we have an idea. We could sponsor a documentary on Winston Churchill titled, 'Winston Ruled Good, Like a Prime Minister Should.' English teachers all over the country will complain about the title and so, at the beginning of the show, we could show members of British Parliament asking whether people wanted good grammar or good taste in their documentaries."

"I like it," said the president of the advertising agency. "What else have we got?"

The TV department director said: "We sketched out a western series titled Marlboro Country. The hero is a rancher, Ben Marlboro, with a tattoo on his hand. Ben has two sons named Phillip and Morris who help their father on the ranch.

"There is also a midget, named Johnny, who works around the house as a hand. Every time there is any trouble, Ben tells Johnny, 'Call for Phillip and Morris.' "

"I like it," said the president of the agency.

"HERE's ANOTHER TV series that might work," said the agency time buyer. "It's called Lucky Strike, and it's about a man who drills for oil in Texas. Every time he hits a well, he shouts, 'Lucky strike means fine depletion.' "

"I like it," said the president of the agency.

The head of research said: "We've found that the TV shows that young people watch the most have animals in them. Now our people have come up with a sure-fire series titled 'Camels Aren't for Everybody.' This is a story of a man who owns a restless camel that keeps running away.

"Every week the man takes a mile-long walk looking for his camel. Along the way he has all sorts of humorous adventures, but at the end of the program he always finds his camel."

"I like it," the president of the agency said.

THE HEAD of the TV department said: "We also have a 'Mission Impossible'-type series on the drawing boards titled, 'You Can Take Salem Out of the Country.' It's about a guy named Harry Salem who works for a patriotic organization known as SMOKE. Harry goes all over the world saving the United States from evil. At the end of each show, his boss says to his secretary, 'You can take Salem out of the country, but you can't take the country out of Salem.' "

"I like it," said the president of the agency. " Anything else?"

The head of media said: "We have a comedy series about two tall basketball players named Benson and Hedges. They've each scored 100 points in a game so everyone refers to them as Benson and Hedges 100's. The funny thing is they're so long they keep getting stuck in elevators and closets and taxicabs and sewers. They always get into mischief and the president of the university wants to expel them. He keeps saying all the time, 'Oh, the disadvantages of Benson and Hedges.'

"I like it," said the president of the agency. "Send in Kent to put it all together."

Senate Takes A Look At Itself, And Some Changes Will Result

WASHINGTON — The Senate has entered a phase of worried and extremely rare self-analysis in the afterlight of a record in the old congress that was more appropriate to some college campus than to "the greatest deliberative body in the world."

No institution is so resistant to change. Nevertheless, some changes will almost certainly be made when the Senate reassembles on Jan. 21 — and they won't be in that despised "seniority system" toward which so many quivering fingers are being pointed by the very same junior senators who have so largely brought about the present state of shouting futility.

TO BEGIN WITH, the alterations may be voted within the party leadership; it is not accidental that members of the hierarchies of both parties are under genuine if latent challenge for their jobs.

Robert Byrd of West Virginia is increasingly active in nose-counting to determine his chances of replacing Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts as the Democratic whip, or assistant floor leader.

Howard Baker of Tennessee is similarly engaged with an overturn of the Republican floor leader, Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, as his objective. It is not certain, mind you, that either Byrd or Baker will take the last plunge and go for broke, for traditionally party leaders go on and on. Neither has yet finally to commit himself; any man's decision in this manner will pivot upon the ancient axiom that if you strike at a king, you must kill him.

Still, the point of crucial importance lies simply in the fact that senators outside the entrenched command posts are even seriously thinking of trying to break inside. And no matter what happens — an actual ouster or not of either Scott or Kennedy — the winner will have survived so thinly among his own colleagues as to bring into grave question his future capacity to fulfill the office still nominally held by him.

IT IS MORE than possible — indeed it is probable — that Scott and Kennedy are in some senses mere badminton shuttlecocks batted about to relieve senatorial frustrations. The one, Scott, has been by no means an inept leader — but for the circumstance that he has not been able to speak the language of the regular Republicans nor act as their ambassador to President Nixon.

Again, Kennedy is far from totally to blame for the shambles made of orderly, reasoned discourse by the New Left politicians — though he is one of them himself and as such is an entry in an absurdly large and frenetic sweepstakes contest among Senate Democrats for the presidency.

All the same, a leader who takes credit for the sunshine must also accept blame for the rain — and this is about the position in which Hugh Scott and Edward Kennedy find themselves.

FOR ONE REASON or another the Senate holds among informed men the lowest esteem within memory.

This circumstance alone would lend unusual vitality to the potential rebellions of Baker and Byrd. A more subtle reason to treat their putative candidacies seriously is this powerful one: the House of Representatives must in the end work in some kind of cooperation with the Senate if government is to function. But the House of Representatives — both sides of it — has long been so utterly soured on the Senate, and with total justification, as to threaten an all-too-real breakdown in the whole legislative system unless responsible action in the so-called upper body is restored.

Even the Senate cannot forever remain unmoved by such pressures. Bus Service Deficit Will Be Discussed

The Central Marin Bus Service, which started in mid-December, operated at a deficit of almost $5,000 for the 13 working days in December.

This and other reports on the new central Kentfield to Novato bus service will be presented to the Marin County Transit District directors at their regular meeting at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday in the Civic Center.

The Golden Gate Bridge District is administering the bus service under contract with Marin County Transit Systems Inc. of Marin City. The county transit district has pledged a $51,000 subsidy for the central Marin bus service for the first six months of operation.

On Dec. 14, the first day of the Kentfield to Novato run, the buses carried only four passengers, but the daily total had grown to 231 passengers on Dec. 31. Total operating expense for December was $5,265, and revenue from fares (25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children 16 and under) totalled $339, leaving a deficit of $4,925.

The buses run from Kent Woodlands Shopping Center to San Marin High School in Novato, stopping at such population centers as Marin General Hospital, San Rafael, Civic Center, Northgate Shopping Center, Hamilton Air Force Base, Lucas Valley and Nave Shopping Center.

Undercover License Is Confirmed

Jerrold M. Ladar of Mill Valley, a former assistant U.S. attorney, has confirmed that he once was issued an undercover agent's driver's license.

The license, in a fictitious name, gave the address of San Francisco jeweler Jerry Plotkin, who was charged in November with the kidnap and rape of a secretary in an apartment at 2040 Franklin Street.

That case gained notoriety because electronic equipment belonging to Ladar was found in Plotkin's apartment and in his auto. Ladar's then boss, James L. Browning Jr., said Ladar was in no way involved with the case against Plotkin. Ladar since has gone into private practice.

Ladar told the Independent-Journal yesterday that he obtained the special license from the California Department of Motor Vehicles in late 1969 or early 1970. It bore the fictitious name of Jay Berl Morton.

He said the license was obtained with Browning's approval, to make one specific undercover investigation. "Its purpose was confidential; I cannot comment on that," Ladar said. He said the license never was used, and was returned through the U.S. attorney's office to the DMV, still attached to the same letter with which it was issued.

Browing said he was unaware Ladar had obtained the license, and that the DMV had asked its return last Dec. 29. Browning could not be reached for comment.

Angel Island To Seek Railroad's Docking Space

A request by Angel Island State Park rangers to use the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad dock on Paradise Drive in Tiburon for a ferry dock will be considered by the Tiburon City Council Monday at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

The park's present vessel soon will be replaced by a 65-foot boat, but present docking facilities at the Tiburon ferry slip are inadequate for such a large ship.

The rangers propose to make improvements to the now unused dock, which at one time was used to load railroad cars onto a ferry to San Francisco.

Also on the council agenda is formal acceptance of a gift from the railroad of almost two miles of right-of-way, on which the city will build a bicycle and pedestrian pathway.

Bus Service Deficit Will Be Discussed

The Central Marin Bus Service, which started in mid-December, operated at a deficit of almost $5,000 for the 13 working days in December.

This and other reports on the new central Kentfield to Novato bus service will be presented to the Marin County Transit District directors at their regular meeting at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday in the Civic Center.

The Golden Gate Bridge District is administering the bus service under contract with Marin County Transit Systems Inc. of Marin City. The county transit district has pledged a $51,000 subsidy for the central Marin bus service for the first six months of operation.

On Dec. 14, the first day of the Kentfield to Novato run, the buses carried only four passengers, but the daily total had grown to 231 passengers on Dec. 31. Total operating expense for December was $5,265, and revenue from fares (25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children 16 and under) totalled $339, leaving a deficit of $4,925.

The buses run from Kent Woodlands Shopping Center to San Marin High School in Novato, stopping at such population centers as Marin General Hospital, San Rafael, Civic Center, Northgate Shopping Center, Hamilton Air Force Base, Lucas Valley and Nave Shopping Center.

Angel Island To Seek Railroad's Docking Space

A request by Angel Island State Park rangers to use the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad dock on Paradise Drive in Tiburon for a ferry dock will be considered by the Tiburon City Council Monday at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

The park's present vessel soon will be replaced by a 65-foot boat, but present docking facilities at the Tiburon ferry slip are inadequate for such a large ship.

The rangers propose to make improvements to the now unused dock, which at one time was used to load railroad cars onto a ferry to San Francisco.

Also on the council agenda is formal acceptance of a gift from the railroad of almost two miles of right-of-way, on which the city will build a bicycle and pedestrian pathway.

Knifed Inmate Remains Fair

A San Quentin inmate knifed in the back Thursday remained in fair condition today at the prison hospital, according to duty officer S.C. Larson.

Leon Gilbert, 28, a convicted burglar from Southern California, was found Thursday with a 10-inch blade protruding from his back.

A second convict who escaped Thursday afternoon is still missing, Larson said.

Undercover License Is Confirmed

Jerrold M. Ladar of Mill Valley, a former assistant U.S. attorney, has confirmed that he once was issued an undercover agent's driver's license.

The license, in a fictitious name, gave the address of San Francisco jeweler Jerry Plotkin, who was charged in November with the kidnap and rape of a secretary in an apartment at 2040 Franklin Street.

That case gained notoriety because electronic equipment belonging to Ladar was found in Plotkin's apartment and in his auto. Ladar's then boss, James L. Browning Jr., said Ladar was in no way involved with the case against Plotkin. Ladar since has gone into private practice.

Ladar told the Independent-Journal yesterday that he obtained the special license from the California Department of Motor Vehicles in late 1969 or early 1970. It bore the fictitious name of Jay Berl Morton.

He said the license was obtained with Browning's approval, to make one specific undercover investigation. "Its purpose was confidential; I cannot comment on that," Ladar said. He said the license never was used, and was returned through the U.S. attorney's office to the DMV, still attached to the same letter with which it was issued.

Browing said he was unaware Ladar had obtained the license, and that the DMV had asked its return last Dec. 29. Browning could not be reached for comment.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

Save Tax Money On Personal Exemptions, Dependencies

Everybody is entitled to one personal exemption which means that for 1970 they could make $625 tax free. (It will be $650 for 1971.)

If you are over sixty-five years of age, you are entitled to two personal exemptions and can make $1,250 tax free. If you are blind, you are entitled to an additional personal exemption of $625. This means that if you are under sixty-five years of age and blind, you can make $1,250 and if you are over sixty-five years of age and blind, you can make $1,875 tax free.

There is also a low income allowance so that you are not required to file a return at all, unless your income is at least:

Single individual	$1,700
Single individual 65 or over	2,300
Married couple filing jointly	2,300
Married couple, one spouse 65 or over	2,900
Married couple, both 65 or over	3,500
Married person filing separately	600

$400 LIMIT

Of course, if you have self-employment income of $400 or more, you must file and pay your self-employment tax.

If you had tax withheld during 1970, you will want to file and get your refund.

No one is entitled to use another person's personal exemption.

If you file a joint return with your spouse, you may claim your spouse's personal exemptions on the same basis as above on the joint return.

You cannot file a joint return with your spouse if your spouse is claimed as a dependent on any other taxpayer's return.

You are entitled to the dependency credit for certain dependents, and under certain circumstances you may claim the credit for dependents who also filed their personal income tax returns and claim their personal income tax returns and claim their personal exemptions on these income tax returns.

MARRIED CHILD

If your child was married in 1970, you may be able to claim him or her as a dependent on your 1970 income tax returns, and the child may get his own deductions too. Certain conditions must be met:

The newlyweds must not file a joint return for 1970. If they do, then the deduction for you is lost.

You must have furnished over half the cost of your child's support for 1970, but the child does not have to have lived with you at any time during the year. Your child's gross income must not have been more than $625 in 1970, unless he or she was a student for five months or more, or was under 19 years old on December 31, 1970, in which case the income test does not apply. Remember that in California half of what your child's new spouse earns after the wedding is considered income of your child.

If your child meets all the tests for dependency, then you should claim him or her on your tax return.

The couple should file separate returns, each claiming his or her own exemption. In California it does not matter if one spouse had no income, for under community property rules, income received after marriage can be divided between the two.

This tax saving plan will save you anywhere from zero to $449 depending on your tax bracket. Remember that the first and most important thing to do is to make sure that your child does not file a joint return with the new spouse.

Prop. 12 To Face A Test

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A Republican assemblyman plans to introduce legislation requiring that any increase in county supervisors' salaries be submitted for a vote of the people.

Assemblyman John L. E. Collier of Los Angeles said his proposed constitutional amendment, to be introduced Monday, is aimed at Proposition 12 which was approved by the voters in November.

Collier said the proposition which permits supervisors to set their own salaries instead of the legislature has generated "much hostility" from taxpayers in counties where supervisors are seeking raises.

"The best check on the board is to put such matters directly to a vote of the people," he said.

Fire Alarms Save Family

CHESTERLAND, Ohio (UPI) —George Willis, a Cleveland executive, spent $1,000 to install fire alarms in all 11 rooms of his $200,000 house here five years ago.

Willis yesterday credited the precaution with saving the life of his daughter Pamela, 22, and possibly the lives of other members of his family.

The house burned to the ground early Thursday. Pamela was awakened by an alarm within seconds after the start of the blaze. She alerted the rest of the family and they escaped the house, which was destroyed by the fire within five minutes.

Hotel Fire Is Labeled Arson

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—A California arson expert said Thursday the Pioneer Hotel fire which claimed 28 lives last month was "intentionally set and man-caused, definitely a case of arson."

Cyrillis W. Holmes of the California Forestry Division's Arson Investigation Unit, said the blaze was set in two separate spots about 60 feet apart in the hallway on the fourth floor of the 10-story hotel. He said his investigation definitely established it was not caused by a failure in any mechanical device.

Novato Fireman Is Back To Job

Fireman James Cavallero, who suffered a back injury when he fell from a ladder fighting an attic fire in November 1969, has returned to duty after nearly a year's absence.

Fire chief Jack Kidder said that Cavallero has been on light duty since his return Wednesday.

Cavallero had returned to duty after suffering the back injury but was forced to leave Feb. 2 to undergo surgery, the chief said.

Pair Fined For Fishing Spears

Two Southern Sonoma men have been fined $100 each in West Marin Justice Court for possessing fishing spears, according to court clerk Stella Phillipscheck.

She said Richard E. Garzelli, 22, of 4690 D Street, Petaluma, and Louis M. Bruce, 23, of 1390 Lowell Avenue, Cotati, pleaded guilty Wednesday.

The two were arrested Saturday along Walker Creek which feeds Tomales Bay.

Rhubarb Dates Are Announced

The 16th annual Rhubarb, sponsored by the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club, will be held this year on April 23, 24 and 30 and May 7, 8 and 14 and 15, club directors have decided.

Initial casting for the event will be held March 4 at 8 p.m. in the clubhouse, Marin Avenue and Tennessee Valley Road, according to Jack Adams, publicity chairman.

Bernard Healey will direct the review and Jack Walker will serve as co-manager.

Novato's Postmaster Ends Career — 30 Year's Service

Harry M. Overly, Novato's postmaster, closed out a 30-year career in the postal service when he retired yesterday.

The 58-year-old postmaster retired early because of ill health in recent years, taking six months of sick leave in advance of his official retirement date, July 12.

Overly, who at one time hoped to be an aeronautical engineer, started his career in the postal service in Aberdeen, Wash., in 1939.

He had a scholarship to Whitman College in Walla Walla, Wash., but had to pass it up because he couldn't afford to live on campus as required, and entered the working world in the midst of the depression.

VARIETY OF JOBS

He filled a variety of jobs and then turned to the postal service which he liked because it offered security.

Overly said he also turned toward postal work because his older brother and two brothers-in-law were working for the post office.

It wasn't easy to get a post office job in those days, he said. "When I took the exam, there were 50 people trying. I was number one and it was two years before I was appointed," he said.

Overly has been at the Novato Post Office for 17 years, assistant postmaster on arrival and postmaster since 1961.

He served as superintendent of mails in the San Anselmo Post Office from 1952 until he was transferred to Novato in February 1954.

IN 1941

Overly came to California in 1941 when he was transferred to the Richmond office, but the next year enlisted in the Army and became an infantry officer in World War II.

He was wounded by shell fragments while fighting in France with the 44th Infantry Division. After the war, he returned toRichmond.

In 1946 overly decided to try his hand at business and he and a fellow postal worker became partners in operating a restaurant-cocktail lounge in Mariposa, east of Merced.

After about two years, the partnership broke and Overly returned to the postal service and was assigned to Santa Rosa.

Coincidentally, his former partner, Walter Robinson, also quit business, became postmaster at Mariposa and also retired yesterday Overly said.

"Novato's been good to me" Overly said, adding he intends to remain, doing some gardening and, occasionally taking short trips.

ENDS CAREER — Harry M. Overly looks over the Novato Post Office, where he was assigned as postmaster for nine years. He retired yesterday, ending a 30-year career in government service.

He said he might return to civic work.

He served as a director of the Novato Sanitary District board from 1955 to 1961, was president of the Novato Kiwanis Club in 1963 and formerly was president of the Novato Community Players.

He noted the growth of the Novato office since he first arrived. "Receipts in 1954 were $57,472, and now the 1970 receipts will be about $800,000," he said.

Overly and his wife, Ruth, live at 724 Lamont Avenue, and have a daughter, Mrs. Joyce Kyle of San Francisco.

Asst. Postmaster Joseph William (Bill) Almeida, is now in charge of the post office. A new postmaster is not expected to be selected until Overly's official retirement date July 12.

No Change For Grant Avenue

Novato planning commissioners have decided that it will be unnecessary to depress North Redwood Boulevard (Highway 101) beneath Grant Avenue as part of the long-range Novato Downtown Plan.

The commission held hearings Thursday night on four sub-areas in the proposed downtown plan. The decision to drop the proposed separation of levels at Grant Avenue was the only major change, according to Planning Director Brian W. Mattson.

In reviewing the South Redwood Boulevard subarea, the commission eliminated proposals to construct a service road eastward of the mobile home park, mortuary and other businesses along the frontage road south of the Berkeley Farms restaurant.

No changes were made on proposals for the Reichert Hills sub-area, nor on proposals to preserve the natural state of Novato Creek upstream from Diablo Avenue, Mattson said.

Senator Says Nixon Supports Comsat Proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, said Thursday the Nixon administration now supports his proposal to force the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. to give up its financial interest in the Communications Satellite Corp.

AT&T owns $140 million in stock in Comsat, making it the largest stockholder in the semipublic corporation set up by the government to build communications satellites and ground transmission equipment.

Gravel released a letter from Richard W. McClaren, head of the Justice Department's Antitrust Division, saying, "A good case can be made for eliminating the direct carrier influence over Comsat."

Gravel contends that continued AT&T investment in Comsat will lessen, if not eliminate, competition in communications.

San Rafael Chamber Sets Installation

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce will hold its 51st annual installation of officers Jan. 25 during a Hawaiian-style dinner at the Holiday Inn.

The event, to begin at 6:30 p.m. with a cocktail hour, will include a talk from John T. Hay, general manager of the state Chamber of Commerce, on "Communications Hang-up . . . Let's Stop Talking to Ourselves."

Officers to be installed are Paul R. Ciampi, president; Jack Bucknum, first vice president; Alton E. Cox, second vice president, and Ron Studen, treasurer.

The new officers and directors were elected Dec. 4.

Hawaiian dance music will be featured at the installation. Hugh Turner of Radio KTIM will be master of ceremonies.

Due to limited capacity of the dining room, only 75 couples will be permitted to attend.

Car Wash Tomorrow

The San Rafael chapter of the Red Cross Youth Council will sponsor a car wash tomorrow between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. at the Shell service station, Third and Irwin streets.

Novato's Postmaster Ends Career — 30 Year's Service

Harry M. Overly, Novato's postmaster, closed out a 30-year career in the postal service when he retired yesterday.

The 58-year-old postmaster retired early because of ill health in recent years, taking six months of sick leave in advance of his official retirement date, July 12.

Overly, who at one time hoped to be an aeronautical engineer, started his career in the postal service in Aberdeen, Wash., in 1939.

He had a scholarship to Whitman College in Walla Walla, Wash., but had to pass it up because he couldn't afford to live on campus as required, and entered the working world in the midst of the depression.

VARIETY OF JOBS

He filled a variety of jobs and then turned to the postal service which he liked because it offered security.

Overly said he also turned toward postal work because his older brother and two brothers-in-law were working for the post office.

It wasn't easy to get a post office job in those days, he said. "When I took the exam, there were 50 people trying. I was number one and it was two years before I was appointed," he said.

Overly has been at the Novato Post Office for 17 years, assistant postmaster on arrival and postmaster since 1961.

He served as superintendent of mails in the San Anselmo Post Office from 1952 until he was transferred to Novato in February 1954.

IN 1941

Overly came to California in 1941 when he was transferred to the Richmond office, but the next year enlisted in the Army and became an infantry officer in World War II.

He was wounded by shell fragments while fighting in France with the 44th Infantry Division. After the war, he returned toRichmond.

Giants Look Ahead To Better Season

It was precisely a year ago when Clyde King flew into Candlestick Park from his home in the Carolinas. King was still manager of the Giants and he was beaming with optimism. He held a press conference during which he outlined his plans for the 1970 baseball campaign, plans that were to be abruptly terminated with his dismissal in mid-May.

During the initial six weeks of the 1970 season, the Giants fell so far off the pace that catching up with the rampaging Cincinnati Reds was an impossible task. Nevertheless, under Charlie Fox, King's successor, the Giants once again became a winning ball club. Indeed, during the final months of the 1970 season they played the best ball and posted the best record in the National League.

Winning ball games primarily is a pitching job. It is impossible to win consistently without a solid pitching staff. The Giants won in the second half of the 1970 season because of the superb pitching of Gaylord Perry and Juan Marichal. It was as simple as that.

Neither Perry nor Marichal pitched like winners during the miserable weeks leading up to King's dismissal. In fact, Marichal couldn't pitch at all. He spent a prolonged period in the hospital due to a severe reaction from antibiotic treatment for a virus he picked up in Japan where Perry also temporarily lost his pinpoint control. The Japanese spring junket of the Giants was a costly one for them.

Naturally, King couldn't foresee what would happen in Japan. Neither could Horace Stoneham nor any other executive of the ball club. Both King and Stoneham would have cancelled the trip if they had any inkling of how it would adversely affect the ball club.

At the time King visited Candlestick last January for his press conference, he looked upon the trip to Japan as a highlight of spring training. Marichal, a sight-seeing enthusiast, similarly looked forward to the trip as a nice departure from the Arizona training routine.

King took it for granted that Marichal again would be a 20-game winner. And he felt that Perry, who had just missed becoming a 20-game winner for the second time in 1969, would break the barrier again as Perry ultimately did.

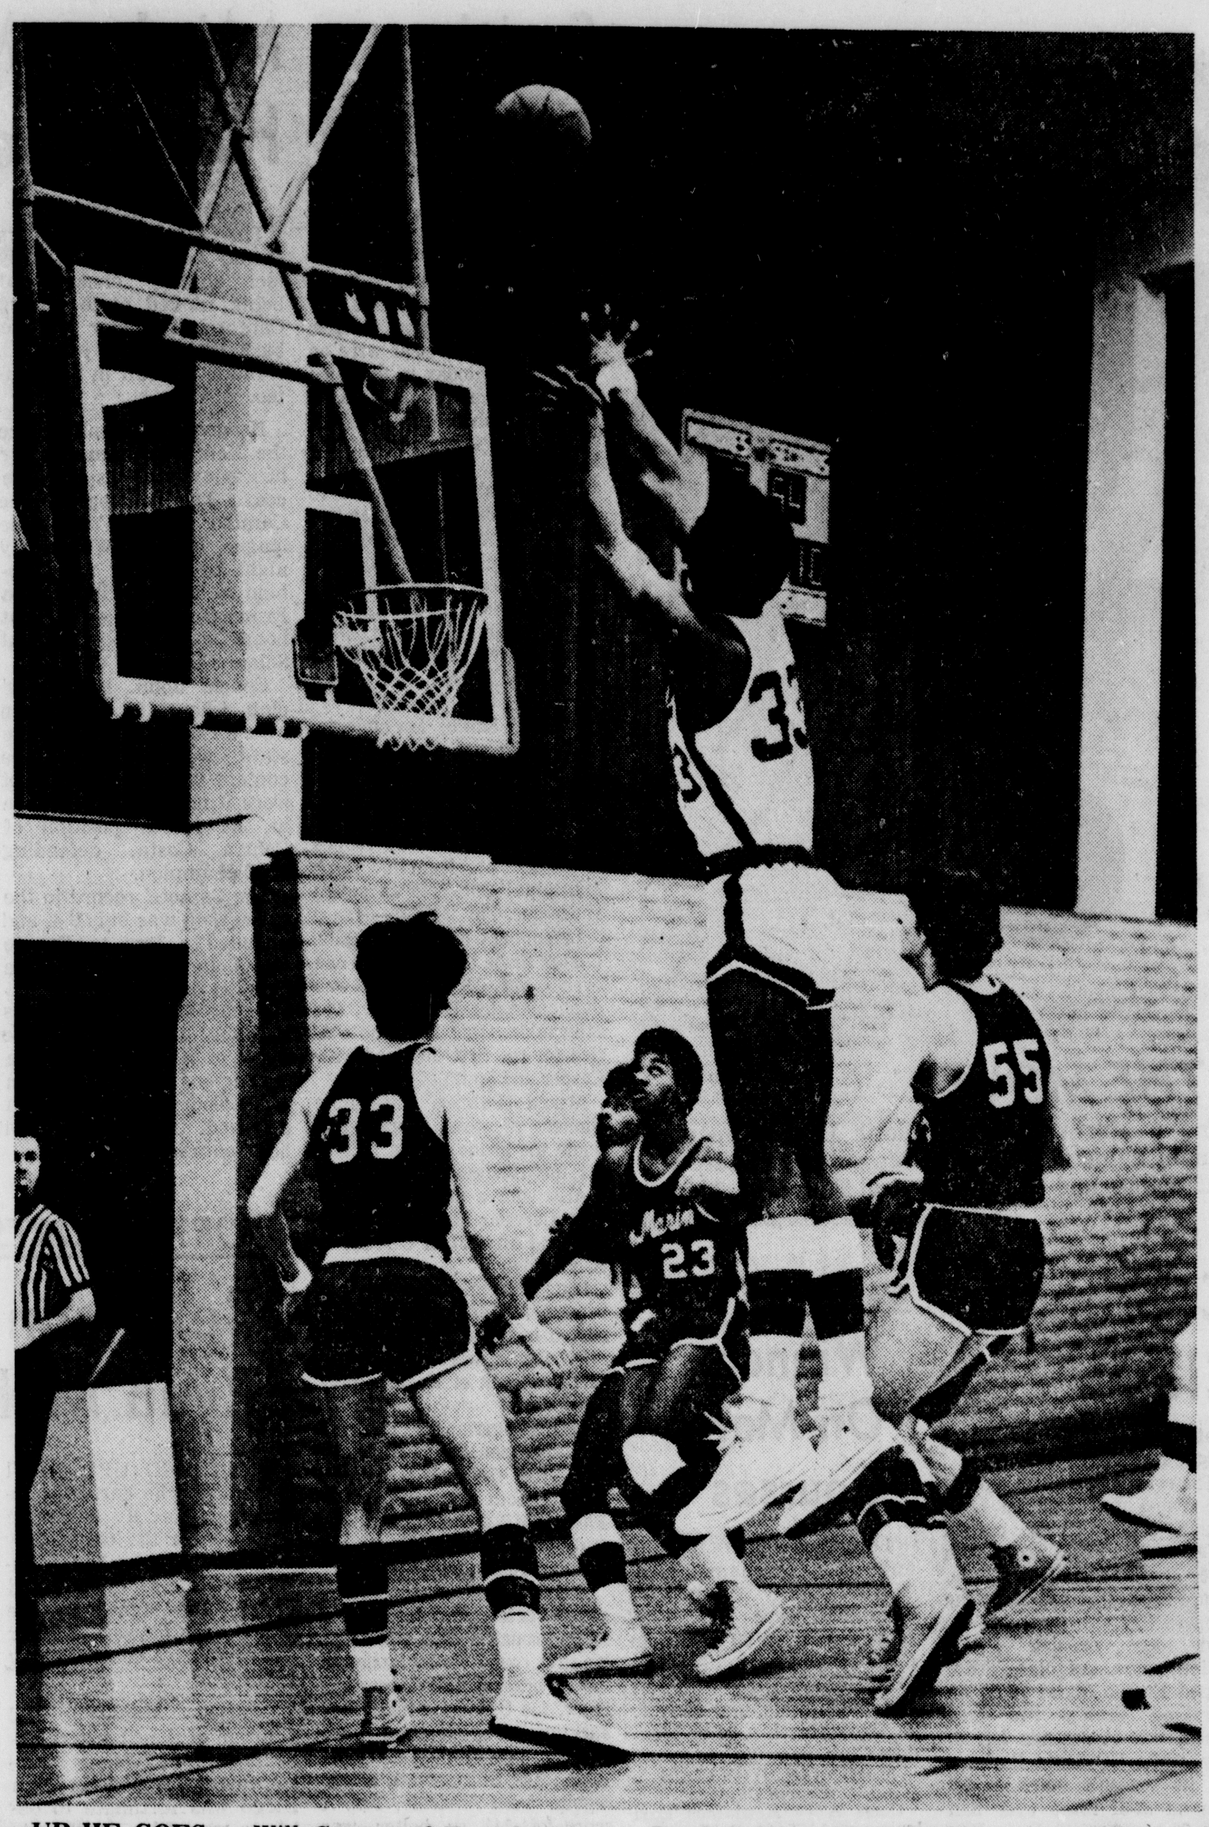
So King devoted a considerable portion of his press conference to a discussion of the 1969 season and he attributed loss of the pennant that year to Jim Ray Hart's injuries.

"If Hart had been able to play last year as he did in the previous two years we would have won," said King. "But recurring shoulder injuries kept Hart on the bench. He played in only 95 games and with a restricted swing hit only three homers when his previous season average was 25."

Now, the other day Charlie Fox paid a quick visit to Candlestick and was delighted to hear that an operation hopefully has corrected Hart's shoulder problems. But Fox then asked: "How do I get in touch with Marichal?"

In a minute, Fox was on the phone with Marichal and broke into a big smile when the Dominican righthander, a peninsula car salesman during the off season, told the manager he was in great shape, ready to go right now if necessary.

"First things, first," said Fox. "Baseball starts with pitching. At least, winning baseball does."



UP HE GOES — Will Garner of Tamalpais scored two of his 24 points against San Marin last night on this second quarter jump shot. San Marin players near the basket are Brad O'Riley (33), Jim Thompson (23) and Dana LaFerriere (55). At the time of this shot, Tam led, 28-10.

PREP BASKETBALL

Tam Demolishes San Marin Five

By DAVID EINSTEIN

With ease bordering on contempt, the Tamalpais High School Indians of Mill Valley demolished San Marin of Novato last night, 72-58 in a Marin County Athletic League opening night basketball game at neutral College of Marin.

Will Garner poured in 24 points using his short, sweet jump shot, and John Earl Huff hit 23 from all over as the Indians, seventh ranked in the Bay Area, won their 10th game of the season against two losses.

At the beginning, San Marin came out stalling, determined not to let Tam break the game open early. For nearly two minutes the Mustangs controlled the ball without taking a shot. When they finally went to the basket, they missed, and Tam proceeded to break the game open. Huff put on an awesome display for the rest of the first quarter, scoring the Indians' final 12 points as they took a 14-3 lead.

As had been the case throughout the pre-season, when Huff cooled off, Garner got hot. The six-foot-three forward scored eight in the second quarter and 10 in the third as coach Bernie Schneider's crew blasted San Marin off the court. They led at halftime by 20, and ran the margin to 25 by the fourth quarter.

Although they didn't really need it, the Indians got a superb defensive effort out of center Lee Eaton, whose task it was to guard San Marin's star center, Dana LaFerriere. Eaton, 6-foot-5, gave up three inches in height to LaFerriere, but still managed to block several of his shots, and seldom let the giant near the basket.

LaFerriere finished with 15 points to lead the Mustangs, followed by flashy sophomore Hoza Wright with 14.

Let's get back to Huff. He hit on nine of 15 shots from the floor, some of them layups, some bombs from the top of the key, and the only way San Marin could nullify his power was to foul him out, which they did in the fourth quarter. His final foul came on a flying layup, which resulted with him sprawled on the baseline. He injured his right arm and wrist slightly, but not enough to prevent him from acknowledging the accolade of applause that escorted him to the bench.

Redwood Sparked By McGee, Trobbe

Steve McGee, Mr. Inside, and Scott Trobbe, Mr. Outside, combined to turn the Novato Hornets inside-out last night as they scored 53 points between them to lead Redwood High School to a crushing 78-60 victory in a Marin County Athletic League opening basketball game at Novato.

It took the Giants of Larkspur, 17th ranked in the Bay Area, most of the first quarter to solve Novato's zone defense. From then on, however, it was routsville, expecially in the second period, then coach Dick Hart's defending MCAL champs racked up 29 points to just 15 for the hometown team.

If the Hornets couldn't tell at times whether the 6-foot-6 giant coming at them was McGee or Trobbe, it was because the two were almost identically tremendous. Trobbe scored 27 points, many of them on long bombs, and McGee, working inside, garnered 26.

Yet the Redwood player most responsible for getting the show on the road was Sam Farb, a guard who broke open the Hornet's zone. Novato was sagging on the two big men, trying to front them and doing a good job of it, until Farb systematically slammed in a few shots from the top of the key. That made the Hornets take notice of him, and took the pressure off McGee and Trobbe.

Redwood's Hart was, oddly, impressed with his team's defense, even though Novato scored 60. Unstoppable Joe DeMaestri got 26 of them; in the preseason, the Hornets usually won when their super guard was hitting. But they didn't see the likes of McGee and Trobbe in the preseason.

OAKLAND (UPI) —The San Francisco Warriors and the San Diego Rockets bring their battle for second place up the coast tonight for a meeting at the Oakland Arena.

The Warriors edged a half-game ahead of the Rockets in the National Basketball Association's Pacific Division with a 120-117 victory Friday night in San Diego.

A big defensive effort by Nate Thurmond on Elvin Hayes in the second half and a 41-point third-period spurt provided San Francisco with its 24th win against 23 losses. After Hayes had scored 20 points in the first half, Thurmond held him to just one basket until the final two minutes of the game.

Thurmond and Fritz Williams each scored 26 points for the Warriors with another 23 coming from Jerry Lucas, who grabbed a game-high 20 rebounds.

Hayes topped the San Diego scorers with 28 points and rookie Calvin Murphy added 27. San Diego's record stands at 23-23.

I-J SPECIAL REPORT

NEW YORK — Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, who in 1970 won the United States junior championship and the same title at Wimbledon, England, today was ranked second woman tennis player in the country by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association.

Miss Walsh, a 1970 graduate of San Rafael High School who will technically be a junior until next month, when she turns 19, made the jump from No. 20 to the second spot, behind Patty Hogan of LaJolla, Calif.

She also was ranked second in doubles, with her partner Gail Hansen of Palo Alto.

In the men's rankings, another Marin County player, long time great Barry MacKay of Ross, ceased being a contract professional and was listed seventh. Cliff Richey is 1970's top player.

The rankings do not include contract professionals. Therefore, Nancy Richey, last year's top woman player, and Arthur Ashe, Chuck Pasarell and Bob Lutz, all listed in the top 10 last year, were dropped from this year's rankings.

Miss Walsh, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Les Walsh, gained her lofty ranking following a banner year in which she won the U.S. junior crown over Miss Hansen in Philadelphia, and then defeated M. Kroshina of Russia for the championship at Wimbledon.

She played the women's senior circuit following that victory, and accounted well of herself during the DeWar Cup tournaments in England this fall.

In the men's rankings, Richey, 25, of San Angelo, Tex., has been listed among the top five since 1965, but he made the top this year for several reasons. In 1970 he enjoyed his best year ever, as he played on the victorius U.S. Davis Cup team and won the initial ILTF Grand Prix over the world's ranking players. His earnings approximated $95,000 for the year.

But Stan Smith, last year's No. 1 player, had a poor year, climaxed by being drafted, and he fell to second. Completing the top five men players are Clark Graebner of New York, third, followed by Tom Gorman of Seattle and Jim Osborne of Honolulu.

Behind Miss Walsh in the women's rankings are Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles, Linda Tuero of Metairie, La., and Eliza Pande of Palo Alto.

Drake Scares Troy

The Terra Linda Trojans won as expected over Drake High School last night, but the game was far closer than anyone anticipated. In fact, the Pirates nearly pulled it out in the final seconds.

As it was, the Trojans won the Marin County Athletic League basketball opener, 45-41 at San Anselmo.

With seven seconds left to play, Terra Linda led, 43-41 over the San Anselmo team, which won only two preseason games. Pirate coach Bob Fitzhenry's hope turned to despair, however, as Todd Young hit a layup to ice the win for the Trojans.

The biggest factor in making the game close was that Drake was able to shut off Terra Linda's top gun, Joe Casteel. The 6-foot-3 forward scored only eight points, a dismal evening for him.

The Trojans did have a hero in the person of Bill LaHaye, who led the team with 12 points, including five in a row he rattled off to start the fourth quarter and put Terra Linda ahead to stay. Gordon Walker helped the winning cause with 10.

For Drake, Jim Forni, the only returning starter from last year, led the way with 13 points, followed by Mark Daubenfeld with nine, Bob Gregg with eight and Jit Singh with seven.

Tight Marin Quint Stops San Rafael

The Marin Catholic Wildcats were "really tight" in the first half against San Rafael High School last night, but they loosened up in the third quarter to score 21 points, and went on to win, 49-38 in a Marin County Athletic League opening basketball game at Marin Catholic.

Marin's triple threat of Bill Donellan, Tim Stone and Jim Sullivan combined for 35 points as the Wildcats outscored the Bulldogs in every quarter to take their 11th victory of the season against four losses.

"We were really tight," Marin Catholic coach Dave Hennessy said of his team's first half performance. But if the Wildcats were tight, San Rafael was tied in knots, because the Kentfield team led at the intermission, 21-17.

In that first half, according to Hennessy, Stone was the only player on the court who did anything. What he did was to go strongly to the boards, outrebounding everybody. The Wildcats picked up his cue in the second half — "We just blew them out in the third quarter," Hennessy said.

Donellan, Marin's leading scorer in the pre-season, led all players with 13 points, while Stone had 12 and Sullivan 10. For San Rafael, Jerry Molinari was high man with nine, followed by Bill Lechner with eight.

WOMEN'S TENNIS

Old Foes Casals, King In Finals

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Perennial finalists Billie Jean King of Long Beach and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco face each other tonight at 7:30 for the richest purse in pro women's tennis history at Civic Auditorium. The two players, who are good friends off-court, meet in the finals of the $15,000 British Motors Women's Pro Tennis Championships for $4,300 in first-prize mondy.

The top-seeded Mrs. King blasted her way into the finals Friday night with straight 6-0, 6-0 sets over England's Ann Jones, the 1969 Wimbledon champion.

Miss Casals, the doubles partner of Mrs. King in the tournament, had to struggle to gain a finals berth in her semifinal match against veteran Nancy Richey Gunter of San Angelo, Tex. After battling for nearly two hours, Miss Casals won the match with a 6-4 first set and a tie breaker best of nine points after the second set ended in a 6-6 tie.

Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Gunter will play tonight for third-place money.

Sad Seals Hit Road For Four-Game Tour

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The California Golden Seals, who have been having their troubles on the road this season, open a four-game road tour tonight against Philadelphia.

The contest will complete the first half of the National Hockey League season for the Seals, who are currently in last place of the West Division.

California will travel to Boston Sunday, then meet St. Louis on Tuesday and Toronto on Wednesday before returning home for four games. After this road trip, the Seals will have most of the second-half games at home.

Freshman Basketball

Two upsets in three games marked the opening day of the Marin County Athletic League freshman basketball schedule yesterday. Drake startled Marin Catholic, 38-25, and San Rafael upset Redwood, 43-40. In the other game, Terra Linda defeated Tamalpais, 46-41.

Petaluma Edges Vallejo Quint

The Petaluma Trojans surged to a 19-point lead and then hung on for dear life last night to edge Vallejo High School, 73-70 in a North Bay I League basketball game at Petaluma.

Five-foot-eight fireball Kevin Gillmore scored 21 points and contributed seven assists to lead the way as the Trojans evened their league record at a win and a loss.

A Schedule Change

The American Broadcasting Company has announced a change in its schedule concerning Sunday's National Basketball Association game of the week. The Los Angeles Detroit game, originally scheduled to be telecast on channel 7 beginning at 11 a.m. has been cancelled. In its place the Boston, Philadelphia game will be shown from Boston Garden.

Will Garner poured in 24 points using his short, sweet jump shot, and John Earl Huff hit 23 from all over as the Indians, seventh ranked in the Bay Area, won their 10th game of the season against two losses.

At the beginning, San Marin came out stalling, determined not to let Tam break the game open early. For nearly two minutes the Mustangs controlled the ball without taking a shot. When they finally went to the basket, they missed, and Tam proceeded to break the game open. Huff put on an awesome display for the rest of the first quarter, scoring the Indians' final 12 points as they took a 14-3 lead.

As had been the case throughout the pre-season, when Huff cooled off, Garner got hot. The six-foot-three forward scored eight in the second quarter and 10 in the third as coach Bernie Schneider's crew blasted San Marin off the court. They led at halftime by 20, and ran the margin to 25 by the fourth quarter.

Although they didn't really need it, the Indians got a superb defensive effort out of center Lee Eaton, whose task it was to guard San Marin's star center, Dana LaFerriere. Eaton, 6-foot-5, gave up three inches in height to LaFerriere, but still managed to block several of his shots, and seldom let the giant near the basket.

LaFerriere finished with 15 points to lead the Mustangs, followed by flashy sophomore Hoza Wright with 14.

Let's get back to Huff. He hit on nine of 15 shots from the floor, some of them layups, some bombs from the top of the key, and the only way San Marin could nullify his power was to foul him out, which they did in the fourth quarter. His final foul came on a flying layup, which resulted with him sprawled on the baseline. He injured his right arm and wrist slightly, but not enough to prevent him from acknowledging the accolade of applause that escorted him to the bench.

Redwood Sparked By McGee, Trobbe

Steve McGee, Mr. Inside, and Scott Trobbe, Mr. Outside, combined to turn the Novato Hornets inside-out last night as they scored 53 points between them to lead Redwood High School to a crushing 78-60 victory in a Marin County Athletic League opening basketball game at Novato.

It took the Giants of Larkspur, 17th ranked in the Bay Area, most of the first quarter to solve Novato's zone defense. From then on, however, it was routsville, expecially in the second period, then coach Dick Hart's defending MCAL champs racked up 29 points to just 15 for the hometown team.

If the Hornets couldn't tell at times whether the 6-foot-6 giant coming at them was McGee or Trobbe, it was because the two were almost identically tremendous. Trobbe scored 27 points, many of them on long bombs, and McGee, working inside, garnered 26.

Yet the Redwood player most responsible for getting the show on the road was Sam Farb, a guard who broke open the Hornet's zone. Novato was sagging on the two big men, trying to front them and doing a good job of it, until Farb systematically slammed in a few shots from the top of the key. That made the Hornets take notice of him, and took the pressure off McGee and Trobbe.

Redwood's Hart was, oddly, impressed with his team's defense, even though Novato scored 60. Unstoppable Joe DeMaestri got 26 of them; in the preseason, the Hornets usually won when their super guard was hitting. But they didn't see the likes of McGee and Trobbe in the preseason.

OAKLAND (UPI) —The San Francisco Warriors and the San Diego Rockets bring their battle for second place up the coast tonight for a meeting at the Oakland Arena.

The Warriors edged a half-game ahead of the Rockets in the National Basketball Association's Pacific Division with a 120-117 victory Friday night in San Diego.

A big defensive effort by Nate Thurmond on Elvin Hayes in the second half and a 41-point third-period spurt provided San Francisco with its 24th win against 23 losses. After Hayes had scored 20 points in the first half, Thurmond held him to just one basket until the final two minutes of the game.

Thurmond and Fritz Williams each scored 26 points for the Warriors with another 23 coming from Jerry Lucas, who grabbed a game-high 20 rebounds.

Hayes topped the San Diego scorers with 28 points and rookie Calvin Murphy added 27. San Diego's record stands at 23-23.

I-J SPECIAL REPORT

NEW YORK — Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, who in 1970 won the United States junior championship and the same title at Wimbledon, England, today was ranked second woman tennis player in the country by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association.

Miss Walsh, a 1970 graduate of San Rafael High School who will technically be a junior until next month, when she turns 19, made the jump from No. 20 to the second spot, behind Patty Hogan of LaJolla, Calif.

She also was ranked second in doubles, with her partner Gail Hansen of Palo Alto.

In the men's rankings, another Marin County player, long time great Barry MacKay of Ross, ceased being a contract professional and was listed seventh. Cliff Richey is 1970's top player.

The rankings do not include contract professionals. Therefore, Nancy Richey, last year's top woman player, and Arthur Ashe, Chuck Pasarell and Bob Lutz, all listed in the top 10 last year, were dropped from this year's rankings.

Miss Walsh, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Les Walsh, gained her lofty ranking following a banner year in which she won the U.S. junior crown over Miss Hansen in Philadelphia, and then defeated M. Kroshina of Russia for the championship at Wimbledon.

She played the women's senior circuit following that victory, and accounted well of herself during the DeWar Cup tournaments in England this fall.

In the men's rankings, Richey, 25, of San Angelo, Tex., has been listed among the top five since 1965, but he made the top this year for several reasons. In 1970 he enjoyed his best year ever, as he played on the victorius U.S. Davis Cup team and won the initial ILTF Grand Prix over the world's ranking players. His earnings approximated $95,000 for the year.

But Stan Smith, last year's No. 1 player, had a poor year, climaxed by being drafted, and he fell to second. Completing the top five men players are Clark Graebner of New York, third, followed by Tom Gorman of Seattle and Jim Osborne of Honolulu.

Behind Miss Walsh in the women's rankings are Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles, Linda Tuero of Metairie, La., and Eliza Pande of Palo Alto.

Drake Scares Troy

The Terra Linda Trojans won as expected over Drake High School last night, but the game was far closer than anyone anticipated. In fact, the Pirates nearly pulled it out in the final seconds.

As it was, the Trojans won the Marin County Athletic League basketball opener, 45-41 at San Anselmo.

With seven seconds left to play, Terra Linda led, 43-41 over the San Anselmo team, which won only two preseason games. Pirate coach Bob Fitzhenry's hope turned to despair, however, as Todd Young hit a layup to ice the win for the Trojans.

The biggest factor in making the game close was that Drake was able to shut off Terra Linda's top gun, Joe Casteel. The 6-foot-3 forward scored only eight points, a dismal evening for him.

The Trojans did have a hero in the person of Bill LaHaye, who led the team with 12 points, including five in a row he rattled off to start the fourth quarter and put Terra Linda ahead to stay. Gordon Walker helped the winning cause with 10.

For Drake, Jim Forni, the only returning starter from last year, led the way with 13 points, followed by Mark Daubenfeld with nine, Bob Gregg with eight and Jit Singh with seven.

Tight Marin Quint Stops San Rafael

The Marin Catholic Wildcats were "really tight" in the first half against San Rafael High School last night, but they loosened up in the third quarter to score 21 points, and went on to win, 49-38 in a Marin County Athletic League opening basketball game at Marin Catholic.

Marin's triple threat of Bill Donellan, Tim Stone and Jim Sullivan combined for 35 points as the Wildcats outscored the Bulldogs in every quarter to take their 11th victory of the season against four losses.

"We were really tight," Marin Catholic coach Dave Hennessy said of his team's first half performance. But if the Wildcats were tight, San Rafael was tied in knots, because the Kentfield team led at the intermission, 21-17.

In that first half, according to Hennessy, Stone was the only player on the court who did anything. What he did was to go strongly to the boards, outrebounding everybody. The Wildcats picked up his cue in the second half — "We just blew them out in the third quarter," Hennessy said.

Donellan, Marin's leading scorer in the pre-season, led all players with 13 points, while Stone had 12 and Sullivan 10. For San Rafael, Jerry Molinari was high man with nine, followed by Bill Lechner with eight.

WOMEN'S TENNIS

Old Foes Casals, King In Finals

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Perennial finalists Billie Jean King of Long Beach and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco face each other tonight at 7:30 for the richest purse in pro women's tennis history at Civic Auditorium. The two players, who are good friends off-court, meet in the finals of the $15,000 British Motors Women's Pro Tennis Championships for $4,300 in first-prize mondy.

The top-seeded Mrs. King blasted her way into the finals Friday night with straight 6-0, 6-0 sets over England's Ann Jones, the 1969 Wimbledon champion.

Miss Casals, the doubles partner of Mrs. King in the tournament, had to struggle to gain a finals berth in her semifinal match against veteran Nancy Richey Gunter of San Angelo, Tex. After battling for nearly two hours, Miss Casals won the match with a 6-4 first set and a tie breaker best of nine points after the second set ended in a 6-6 tie.

Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Gunter will play tonight for third-place money.

Sad Seals Hit Road For Four-Game Tour

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The California Golden Seals, who have been having their troubles on the road this season, open a four-game road tour tonight against Philadelphia.

The contest will complete the first half of the National Hockey League season for the Seals, who are currently in last place of the West Division.

California will travel to Boston Sunday, then meet St. Louis on Tuesday and Toronto on Wednesday before returning home for four games. After this road trip, the Seals will have most of the second-half games at home.

Freshman Basketball

Two upsets in three games marked the opening day of the Marin County Athletic League freshman basketball schedule yesterday. Drake startled Marin Catholic, 38-25, and San Rafael upset Redwood, 43-40. In the other game, Terra Linda defeated Tamalpais, 46-41.

Petaluma Edges Vallejo Quint

The Petaluma Trojans surged to a 19-point lead and then hung on for dear life last night to edge Vallejo High School, 73-70 in a North Bay I League basketball game at Petaluma.

Five-foot-eight fireball Kevin Gillmore scored 21 points and contributed seven assists to lead the way as the Trojans evened their league record at a win and a loss.

A Schedule Change

The American Broadcasting Company has announced a change in its schedule concerning Sunday's National Basketball Association game of the week. The Los Angeles Detroit game, originally scheduled to be telecast on channel 7 beginning at 11 a.m. has been cancelled. In its place the Boston, Philadelphia game will be shown from Boston Garden.

San Marin's center Dana LaFerriere, all 6-foot-8 of him, brought the ball upcourt last night while Tam's John Earl Huff hounded him during a Marin County Athletic League opening night game at College of Marin. LaFerriere got 15 points, and Huff got 23. and Tam won, 72-58.

Smith Leads In L.A.

Four pros who made better than $100,000 last year were on the sidelines today in the third round of the 72-hold $110,000 Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open, first tour event of the year.

The casualties who failed to make the 36-hole cut after two rounds Friday included the PGA champion Dave Stockton, No. 12 on last year's money list with $108,564; Bruce Devlin, who was No. 11 with $112,738; Dave Hill, No. 10 with $118,415, and Larry Hinson, No. 8 with $120,897.

Bob E. Smith, Sacramento, Calif., who won the relatively small sum of $30,000 in 1970, had a two-stroke lead over the field going into today's second round. His 135 total on rounds of 66-69 at Rancho Park Municipal Course was seven under par. Par is 36-35—71.

Defending champion Billy Casper made the cut with a one over 72 for 138. His score was duplicated by Tom Shaw, the Milwaukie, Ore., Pro, who was tied for the first day lead with Casper and Smith at 66.

Arnold Palmer, three-time winner of this tournament, made the grade with a pair of 71s for 142, even par.

Also with a pair of 71s was Ron Cerrudo of Napa, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cerrudo of San Rafael.

Lee Trevino, No. 1 money winner in 1970 with $157,000, stayed in there with 71-69—140.

Five pros were grouped at 137, two back of leader Smith. They were:

Richard Crawford, an Arkansas traveler, had the lowest second round score—a 66. With his first round 72, he landed in the 138 bracket with Casper and Shaw, the U.S. Open king Tony Jacklin; Bobby Greenwood, 32-year-old pro from Cookeville, Tenn.; and Bill Garrett, a tour regular from Amarillo, Tex. A score of 144 or better was required to remain in contention for the final two rounds. The cut as usual was to the low 70s and ties and exactly 70 made it—a rarity. If one fewer golfer had made 144, it would have thrown the qualifiers into the 145 bracket.

As it was Stockton missed by one stroke with his rounds of 72-73. Devlin also was at 145 with 72-73. Hill took 73-75—148 and Hinson 76-75—151.

The weather was chilly Friday and the temperature never reached 60. Greens were a bit bumpy and a lot of pros had putting trouble. For example, Casper took only 29 putts the first day but needed 37 in his second round.

Mighty Mariners Launch Home Schedule Tonight

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The College of Marin Tars should be excused if they feel slightly cheated at being ranked ninth among California's junior college basketball teams by the J.C. Athletic Bureau in San Mateo.

However the only place the Kentfield team can air its grievances is on the court. The Tars opened the Camino Norte Conference league season Wednesday night by coming from behind to beat Skyline in San Bruno. Tonight they open at home at 8 o'clock against Solano College of Vallejo.

Coach John Panagakis' club, whose 15-1 pre-season record is the best in the state, would probably be content with the No. 9 spot were it not for the presence in the fourth position of Contra Costa, defending CNC champion.

The Comets' record in the pre-season was only 9-4, and included a loss to Fresno City College - a team Marin handled easily. The San Pablo school's loft, rating was probably determined on the basis of its victory in the prestigious San Joaquin Delta Tournament, where it defeated the fifth ranked host team in the finals.

But Marin also won a tournament, its own, and came in second in another at Fresno. It was there that the Tars suffered their only loss, to Los Angeles City College. That school is ranked seventh.

The only other source of comparison in the top 10 for Marin is 10th ranked San Francisco City College. The Gators lost by some 20 points to the powerful USF frosh, who in turn lost by 23 to Marin.

At any rate, the Tars' future regarding the rankings is largely in their own hands. They face Contra Costa twice during the league season, the first time next Saturday night in San Pablo. And they should be 17-1 by that time. Neither Solano nor Canada, whom they host next Wednesday night, figures to give Roosevelt Green, Joe Smith and company too much trouble.

Aside from the rankings, it's difficult to measure this year's Marin team against teams from the past. But Harry Pieper, the school's athletic director who has seen more Tar teams over the years than anyone else, says "This team is as well balanced as any I've ever seenat the College of Marin. There are several outstanding individuals, but it's a five-man team effort.

Pieper sights as evidence of great balance the fact that the team has three men Green, Smith and Mike Peden, averaging in double figures.

Pieper, like almost everyone else connected with the team, views the Tars' rise to power this year as "a pleasant surprise," because there is not one player in a Marin uniform who wore it last year. "We're pleased to see we can take a group of first year people and make such a cohesive unit out of them," he says.

No doubt a great share of the credit goes to the coaching provided by Panagakis and his assistant Jim Webster. Such an outstanding job have they done that, if the Tars were to lose all their remaining games, they would still finish the season with a winning record, which in most cases is all that can be asked of a team without a returning letterman.

Tonight's game will be broadcast live on radio station KTIM-FM (100.9), with Bob Dinsmore giving the play-by-play.

UCLA, USC Breeze; Cal Wins Closie

By United Press International

Those two basketball juggernauts from Southern California are off and running in their quest for the Pacific Eight title and a shot at the national crown.

Washington and Washington State called on UCLA and USC Friday night and played slowdown basketball to keep it close.

But the Bruins still prevailed over the Huskies, 78-69, with All-America Sid Wicks hitting 21 and his great frontcoart partner, Curtis Rowe, tossing in 18.

Washington got a sensational performance from 6-10 center Steve Hawes, who hit 11 of 16 shots and 30 points.

USC meanwhile took Washington State, 78-68, with Dennis Layton pumping in 27 for the Trojans and Denis Hogg 20 for the Cougars

They swap foes tonight.

Meanwhile California got off to a good start by taking a hectic 101-100 win at Oregon State in overtime. The Bears led the entire regulation contest until Mike Keck's underhand 15-footer with one second to go tie it. A three-point play by Jackie Ridgle finally cinched things for Cal in the extra stanza. Ridgle got 32 in a solid performance for the Bears, who are 8-3 for the year even though they have played only one game at home.

Oregon polished off Stanford 82-72 with big Stan Love hitting 30 for the Ducks and Clause Terry scoring 23 for the Indians, who battle Oregon State tonight while the Ducks host California.

The coast's best team outside the Pac-8 may well be Long Beach State, which opened defense of its PCAA crown with an 83-73 win at San Diego State. Guard Ed Ratleff had 27 for the winners.

In more opening PCAA action, Los Angeles State nipped Fresno State, 73-71, on Maryland Scott's two free tosses with 14 seconds left to play, while UC Santa Barbara ran its season's mark to 9-2 with an 81-61 romp over San Jose State, now 2-13. Doug Rex and Ron Allen combined for 45 of the winners' points.

In the CCAA, UC Riverside nipped Cal Poly San Luis Obispo 61-59 with Mike Washington's three point play with 28 seconds to go turning the tide. Valley State flattened Cal Poly Pomona 100-74.

In one Far West Conference struggle, Sacramento State had five men in double figures with a 102-64 romp over Sonoma State, although the losers' Larry Austin hit 36.

The West Coast Athletic Conference resumes tonight with opening-round winners Pepperdine and Nevada Las Vegas going at it in a high-powered battle. Losers Loyola and Nevada-Reno also battle, while conference favorite UOP is at USF in another battle of teams with 1-0 marks and UN Reno is at St. Mary's in another struggle of 0-1 squads.

All-Artificial Fields Approved

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — National League baseball teams now can cover the entire playing field of their home parks with artificial turf any time they wish.

League President Charles S. (Chub) Feeney gave the teams the go-ahead Friday after being advised of a decision by the rules committee. The only team that has an artificial turf on the entire playing field, with the exception of the pitcher's mound and the area around the three bases and home plate, is the Cincinnati Reds.

Bengtson To Chargers; Ryun Makes Comeback

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Phil Bengtson, who earned a reputation as a defensive coach for the Green Bay Packers but who had a losing record as their head coach, was signed by the San Diego Chargers as their new defensive coach Friday night.

General Manager Sid Gillman of the Chargers announced Bengtson's appointment and said San Diego was fortunate to obtain a man with Bengtson's talent.

TRACK

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — With the cautious remark that people shouldn't expect too much of him, Jim Ryun yesterday announced the end of his self imposed retirement from the world track scene. Ryun, slimmed down to a running weight of 160 pounds, said that he will stage a comeback Jan. 22 when he runs the mile at the San Francisco Examiner All-American Games.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — The new indoor track season was not yet three hours old Friday night when a world record was recorded on the books.

Olympic gold medal winner Lee Evans broke his mark in the 500-yard run with a 54.4 performance that cut one-tenth of a second off the record he set in San Diego last year. A late entry in the fourth annual CYO Invitational meet at the University of Maryland, Evans said after his record-setting victory "I've been feeling good in my workouts but I didn't think I'd go that fast."

HOCKEY

DETROIT (UPI) — In the latest move within the Detroit Redwings' organization, coach Ned Harkness has been elevated to fill the vacant general manager's position, and Doug Barkley has been named temporary coach.

Bruce Norris, owner of the National Hockey League club, made the moves in response to Wednesday's resignation of general manager Sid Abel, who had said, "I can't accept that fella (Harkness) coaching."

BOXING

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Final rites for former heavyweight champion Sonny Liston were scheduled today at 2 p.m. in the Palm Chapel with graveside services at Paradise Gardens Cemetery.

AUTO RACING

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Ten final qualifying spots for the $100,000 Motor Trend Riverside 500 Grand National stock car race Sunday were scheduled to be determined today at Riverside International Raceway.

North Favored In Final College Game

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The North and South squads ran through their final work outs at Tampa Stadium today for the third annual American Bowl football game Sunday which finds the North a slight favorite. (The game will be televised on Channel 2 at 11 a.m.)

Coaches were expected to settle on their starting lineups following the final workout. But early indications were that Bob Devaney of Nebraska would go with Michigan's Don Moorhead at quarterback for the North, while Fran Curci of Miami would select Bill Montgomery of Arkansas for the South.

Smith Leads In L.A.

Four pros who made better than $100,000 last year were on the sidelines today in the third round of the 72-hold $110,000 Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open, first tour event of the year.

The casualties who failed to make the 36-hole cut after two rounds Friday included the PGA champion Dave Stockton, No. 12 on last year's money list with $108,564; Bruce Devlin, who was No. 11 with $112,738; Dave Hill, No. 10 with $118,415, and Larry Hinson, No. 8 with $120,897.

Bob E. Smith, Sacramento, Calif., who won the relatively small sum of $30,000 in 1970, had a two-stroke lead over the field going into today's second round. His 135 total on rounds of 66-69 at Rancho Park Municipal Course was seven under par. Par is 36-35—71.

Defending champion Billy Casper made the cut with a one over 72 for 138. His score was duplicated by Tom Shaw, the Milwaukie, Ore., Pro, who was tied for the first day lead with Casper and Smith at 66.

Arnold Palmer, three-time winner of this tournament, made the grade with a pair of 71s for 142, even par.

Also with a pair of 71s was Ron Cerrudo of Napa, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cerrudo of San Rafael.

Lee Trevino, No. 1 money winner in 1970 with $157,000, stayed in there with 71-69—140.

Five pros were grouped at 137, two back of leader Smith. They were:

Richard Crawford, an Arkansas traveler, had the lowest second round score—a 66. With his first round 72, he landed in the 138 bracket with Casper and Shaw, the U.S. Open king Tony Jacklin; Bobby Greenwood, 32-year-old pro from Cookeville, Tenn.; and Bill Garrett, a tour regular from Amarillo, Tex. A score of 144 or better was required to remain in contention for the final two rounds. The cut as usual was to the low 70s and ties and exactly 70 made it—a rarity. If one fewer golfer had made 144, it would have thrown the qualifiers into the 145 bracket.

As it was Stockton missed by one stroke with his rounds of 72-73. Devlin also was at 145 with 72-73. Hill took 73-75—148 and Hinson 76-75—151.

The weather was chilly Friday and the temperature never reached 60. Greens were a bit bumpy and a lot of pros had putting trouble. For example, Casper took only 29 putts the first day but needed 37 in his second round.

Mighty Mariners Launch Home Schedule Tonight

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The College of Marin Tars should be excused if they feel slightly cheated at being ranked ninth among California's junior college basketball teams by the J.C. Athletic Bureau in San Mateo.

However the only place the Kentfield team can air its grievances is on the court. The Tars opened the Camino Norte Conference league season Wednesday night by coming from behind to beat Skyline in San Bruno. Tonight they open at home at 8 o'clock against Solano College of Vallejo.

Coach John Panagakis' club, whose 15-1 pre-season record is the best in the state, would probably be content with the No. 9 spot were it not for the presence in the fourth position of Contra Costa, defending CNC champion.

The Comets' record in the pre-season was only 9-4, and included a loss to Fresno City College - a team Marin handled easily. The San Pablo school's loft, rating was probably determined on the basis of its victory in the prestigious San Joaquin Delta Tournament, where it defeated the fifth ranked host team in the finals.

But Marin also won a tournament, its own, and came in second in another at Fresno. It was there that the Tars suffered their only loss, to Los Angeles City College. That school is ranked seventh.

The only other source of comparison in the top 10 for Marin is 10th ranked San Francisco City College. The Gators lost by some 20 points to the powerful USF frosh, who in turn lost by 23 to Marin.

At any rate, the Tars' future regarding the rankings is largely in their own hands. They face Contra Costa twice during the league season, the first time next Saturday night in San Pablo. And they should be 17-1 by that time. Neither Solano nor Canada, whom they host next Wednesday night, figures to give Roosevelt Green, Joe Smith and company too much trouble.

Aside from the rankings, it's difficult to measure this year's Marin team against teams from the past. But Harry Pieper, the school's athletic director who has seen more Tar teams over the years than anyone else, says "This team is as well balanced as any I've ever seenat the College of Marin. There are several outstanding individuals, but it's a five-man team effort.

Pieper sights as evidence of great balance the fact that the team has three mer Green, Smith and Mike Peden, averaging in double figures.

Pieper, like almost everyone else connected with the team, views the Tars' rise to power this year as "a pleasant surprise," because there is not one player in a Marin uniform who wore it last year. "We're pleased to see we can take a group of first year people and make such a cohesive unit out of them," he says.

No doubt a great share of the credit goes to the coaching provided by Panagakis and his assistant Jim Webster. Such an outstanding job have they done that, if the Tars were to lose all their remaining games, they would still finish the season with a winning record, which in most cases is all that can be asked of a team without a returning letterman.

Tonight's game will be broadcast live on radio station KTIM-FM (100.9), with Bob Dinsmore giving the play-by-play.

UCLA, USC Breeze; Cal Wins Closie

By United Press International

Those two basketball juggernauts from Southern California are off and running in their quest for the Pacific Eight title and a shot at the national crown.

Washington and Washington State called on UCLA and USC Friday night and played slowdown basketball to keep it close.

But the Bruins still prevailed over the Huskies, 78-69, with All-America Sid Wicks hitting 21 and his great frontcoart partner, Curtis Rowe, tossing in 18.

Washington got a sensational performance from 6-10 center Steve Hawes, who hit 11 of 16 shots and 30 points.

USC meanwhile took Washington State, 78-68, with Dennis Layton pumping in 27 for the Trojans and Denis Hogg 20 for the Cougars

They swap foes tonight.

Meanwhile California got off to a good start by taking a hectic 101-100 win at Oregon State in overtime. The Bears led the entire regulation contest until Mike Keck's underhand 15-footer with one second to go tie it. A three-point play by Jackie Ridgle finally cinched things for Cal in the extra stanza. Ridgle got 32 in a solid performance for the Bears, who are 8-3 for the year even though they have played only one game at home.

Oregon polished off Stanford 82-72 with big Stan Love hitting 30 for the Ducks and Clause Terry scoring 23 for the Indians, who battle Oregon State tonight while the Ducks host California.

The coast's best team outside the Pac-8 may well be Long Beach State, which opened defense of its PCAA crown with an 83-73 win at San Diego State. Guard Ed Ratleff had 27 for the winners.

In more opening PCAA action, Los Angeles State nipped Fresno State, 73-71, on Maryland Scott's two free tosses with 14 seconds left to play, while UC Santa Barbara ran its season's mark to 9-2 with an 81-61 romp over San Jose State, now 2-13. Doug Rex and Ron Allen combined for 45 of the winners' points.

In the CCAA, UC Riverside nipped Cal Poly San Luis Obispo 61-59 with Mike Washington's three point play with 28 seconds to go turning the tide. Valley State flattened Cal Poly Pomona 100-74.

In one Far West Conference struggle, Sacramento State had five men in double figures with a 102-64 romp over Sonoma State, although the losers' Larry Austin hit 36.

The West Coast Athletic Conference resumes tonight with opening-round winners Pepperdine and Nevada Las Vegas going at it in a high-powered battle. Losers Loyola and Nevada-Reno also battle, while conference favorite UOP is at USF in another battle of teams with 1-0 marks and UN Reno is at St. Mary's in another struggle of 0-1 squads.

All-Artificial Fields Approved

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — National League baseball teams now can cover the entire playing field of their home parks with artificial turf any time they wish.

League President Charles S. (Chub) Feeney gave the teams the go-ahead Friday after being advised of a decision by the rules committee. The only team that has an artificial turf on the entire playing field, with the exception of the pitcher's mound and the area around the three bases and home plate, is the Cincinnati Reds.

Bengtson To Chargers; Ryun Makes Comeback

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Phil Bengtson, who earned a reputation as a defensive coach for the Green Bay Packers but who had a losing record as their head coach, was signed by the San Diego Chargers as their new defensive coach Friday night.

General Manager Sid Gillman of the Chargers announced Bengtson's appointment and said San Diego was fortunate to obtain a man with Bengtson's talent.

TRACK

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — With the cautious remark that people shouldn't expect too much of him, Jim Ryun yesterday announced the end of his self imposed retirement from the world track scene. Ryun, slimmed down to a running weight of 160 pounds, said that he will stage a comeback Jan. 22 when he runs the mile at the San Francisco Examiner All-American Games.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — The new indoor track season was not yet three hours old Friday night when a world record was recorded on the books.

Olympic gold medal winner Lee Evans broke his mark in the 500-yard run with a 54.4 performance that cut one-tenth of a second off the record he set in San Diego last year. A late entry in the fourth annual CYO Invitational meet at the University of Maryland, Evans said after his record-setting victory "I've been feeling good in my workouts but I didn't think I'd go that fast."

HOCKEY

DETROIT (UPI) — In the latest move within the Detroit Redwings' organization, coach Ned Harkness has been elevated to fill the vacant general manager's position, and Doug Barkley has been named temporary coach.

Bruce Norris, owner of the National Hockey League club, made the moves in response to Wednesday's resignation of general manager Sid Abel, who had said, "I can't accept that fella (Harkness) coaching."

BOXING

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Final rites for former heavyweight champion Sonny Liston were scheduled today at 2 p.m. in the Palm Chapel with graveside services at Paradise Gardens Cemetery.

AUTO RACING

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Ten final qualifying spots for the $100,000 Motor Trend Riverside 500 Grand National stock car race Sunday were scheduled to be determined today at Riverside International Raceway.

North Favored In Final College Game

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The North and South squads ran through their final work outs at Tampa Stadium today for the third annual American Bowl football game Sunday which finds the North a slight favorite. (The game will be televised on Channel 2 at 11 a.m.)

Coaches were expected to settle on their starting lineups following the final workout. But early indications were that Bob Devaney of Nebraska would go with Michigan's Don Moorhead at quarterback for the North, while Fran Curci of Miami would select Bill Montgomery of Arkansas for the South.

Seminary Dean Calls For Bigger Field Education

Rethinking of the aims of seminaries through increasing the role of field education in curriculum was called for this week by Dr. Elmer L. Gray, dean of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry.

Gray, in his inaugural address Wednesday, said current criticisms that ministers are being inadequately trained "implies that the nature of theological education is not sufficiently professional."

Gray, who assumed duties as academic dean in August, 1970 spoke during inaugural ceremonies in his honor in John A. Broadus Hall Chapel.

Attending the ceremonies, reception, and a luncheon honoring the dean were representatives from colleges, universities, seminaries throughout the United States, and various representatives of Southern Baptist denominational agencies. Golden Gate Seminary is owned and operated by the Southern Baptist Convention.

Gray answered the charge concerning seminary training inadequacies by saying that "the seminary" needs to reexamine what it is doing. He proposed a wide expansion of a field education program begun at Golden Gate Seminary in the September term to better orient students to the seminary, community, and to help in defining the student's role.

Gray further advocated the inclusion of field education in the seminary curriculum on a par with scholastic and studies for which credit is given. The seminary should stress competence in the ministry, rather than overemphasize scholastic excellence, he explained.

He added that excellence should certainly not go unrecognized, but said an increased stress on competence is needed to qualify students for the Christian ministry.

The seminary that sets excellence as an "ideal of attainment," commits itself to succeeding with 10 per cent or less of its student body, Gray said.

The demands of the practical and the ideal make it difficult to define the seminary's approach to education, Gray continued. On one hand education is expected to prepare persons for participation in the groups with which they are related. On the other, education hopes to "develop persons toward the fulfillment of their life capacities.

"It is something of the case of which do you want? — Good grammar or good taste?" Gray suggested that the best education for the minister would be both professional and academic and recommended that the academic approach be continued in the seminary, with an upgrading of the professional approach.

"It is no wonder that ministers are confused today," Gray continued. The minister of today "is under pressure to respond to the world at large, the community with its varied interests, persons in need and facing crisis, the denomination, his peers, his congregation and even his family."

The minister often faces his complex circumstances and problems alone and unsupported, Gray said.

"He may feel that his seminary training didn't adequately prepare him for the response(s) he must try to make." Small incomes, obligations to church policies he may feel aren't right or worthwhile — all of these contribute to a confused state among many ministers today concerning their role, he said.

It is the seminary's responsibility to clarify its understanding of the minister's role and the work of the ministry, and the curriculum should reflect these concepts, Gray admonished.

He then outlined some personal qualities that he said must be developed by the modern minister, adding that in no way "do they rule out the working of God. By becoming competent the minister will not rely less on God but rather be available to him for greater service."

Gray said the minister of today is a "generalist in the day of specialization." He must be able to identify with his own situation and be able to appreciate his physical and social environment and feel comfortable in it. A minister particularly needs to be a "thinking person," Gray said.

Gray said the competence he was referring to could best be developed through an expanded emphasis on field education outreach from the seminary.

"Seminary education needs to include experience in life situations related to the ministry. Our seminary has been aware of that need and has sought to meet it by requiring its students to engage in church activity during their time of education here."

Students at Golden Gate Seminary normally work as pastors, music directors, associate pastors, evangelists and in other capacities, but the seminary has not had a program that offered close supervision of a student's work in the field, nor has credit been offered for work that would fall under an expanded field education program.

An expanded program would place a student in the ministry under the supervision of a seminary related director, Gray said. He said that a worthwhile program would demand heavy faculty involvement and "merits substantial credit in a degree program."

Attending the ceremonies and other events honoring Gray included Dr. Kay J. Andersen, of Oakland, executive secretary of the Western Association of Schools and Colleges. Andersen was the luncheon speaker and represented the Church College of Hawaii, a Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon) school in Laie, Oahu, Hawaii.

Dr. Clifford Crummey, executive director of the Northern California Council of Churches, represented the Southern California School of Theology of Claremont, for which he is a trustee.

Representatives from San Francisco Bay area schools attended along with representatives from Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N.J.; University of Richmond, Va.; Hood Theological Seminary, Salisbury, N.C.; Lancaster Theological Seminary, Lancaster, Pa., and others.

Dr. Robert D. Hughes, executive secretary-treasurer of the Southern Baptist General Convention of California was also in attendance.

Gray, who is also professor of religious education at Golden Gate, was formerly Sunday School Department manager of the SBC's Sunday School Board and taught at Golden Gate from 1959 to 1967. During his previous years at the seminary, he served as head of the division of religious education and professor of church administration.

He is a 1940 graduate of Oklahoma Baptist University, Shawnee, where he earned a Bachelor of Arts degree. Gray received the Master of Theology from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, Tex. in 1943 and was awarded the Doctor of Theology degree from Southwestern in 1951.

Seminary Dean Calls For Bigger Field Education

Rethinking of the aims of seminaries through increasing the role of field education in curriculum was called for this week by Dr. Elmer L. Gray, dean of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry.

Gray, in his inaugural address Wednesday, said current criticisms that ministers are being inadequately trained "implies that the nature of theological education is not sufficiently professional."

Gray, who assumed duties as academic dean in August, 1970 spoke during inaugural ceremonies in his honor in John A. Broadus Hall Chapel.

Attending the ceremonies, reception, and a luncheon honoring the dean were representatives from colleges, universities, seminaries throughout the United States, and various representatives of Southern Baptist denominational agencies. Golden Gate Seminary is owned and operated by the Southern Baptist Convention.

Gray answered the charge concerning seminary training inadequacies by saying that "the seminary" needs to reexamine what it is doing. He proposed a wide expansion of a field education program begun at Golden Gate Seminary in the September term to better orient students to the seminary, community, and to help in defining the student's role.

Gray further advocated the inclusion of field education in the seminary curriculum on a par with scholastic and studies for which credit is given. The seminary should stress competence in the ministry, rather than overemphasize scholastic excellence, he explained.

He added that excellence should certainly not go unrecognized, but said an increased stress on competence is needed to qualify students for the Christian ministry.

The seminary that sets excellence as an "ideal of attainment," commits itself to succeeding with 10 per cent or less of its student body, Gray said.

The demands of the practical and the ideal make it difficult to define the seminary's approach to education, Gray continued. On one hand education is expected to prepare persons for participation in the groups with which they are related. On the other, education hopes to "develop persons toward the fulfillment of their life capacities.

"It is something of the case of which do you want? — Good grammar or good taste?" Gray suggested that the best education for the minister would be both professional and academic and recommended that the academic approach be continued in the seminary, with an upgrading of the professional approach.

"It is no wonder that ministers are confused today," Gray continued. The minister of today "is under pressure to respond to the world at large, the community with its varied interests, persons in need and facing crisis, the denomination, his peers, his congregation and even his family."

The minister often faces his complex circumstances and problems alone and unsupported, Gray said.

"He may feel that his seminary training didn't adequately prepare him for the response(s) he must try to make." Small incomes, obligations to church policies he may feel aren't right or worthwhile — all of these contribute to a confused state among many ministers today concerning their role, he said.

It is the seminary's responsibility to clarify its understanding of the minister's role and the work of the ministry, and the curriculum should reflect these concepts, Gray admonished.

He then outlined some personal qualities that he said must be developed by the modern minister, adding that in no way "do they rule out the working of God. By becoming competent the minister will not rely less on God but rather be available to him for greater service."

Gray said the minister of today is a "generalist in the day of specialization." He must be able to identify with his own situation and be able to appreciate his physical and social environment and feel comfortable in it. A minister particularly needs to be a "thinking person," Gray said.

Gray said the competence he was referring to could best be developed through an expanded emphasis on field education outreach from the seminary.

"Seminary education needs to include experience in life situations related to the ministry. Our seminary has been aware of that need and has sought to meet it by requiring its students to engage in church activity during their time of education here."

Students at Golden Gate Seminary normally work as pastors, music directors, associate pastors, evangelists and in other capacities, but the seminary has not had a program that offered close supervision of a student's work in the field, nor has credit been offered for work that would fall under an expanded field education program.

An expanded program would place a student in the ministry under the supervision of a seminary related director, Gray said. He said that a worthwhile program would demand heavy faculty involvement and "merits substantial credit in a degree program."

Attending the ceremonies and other events honoring Gray included Dr. Kay J. Andersen, of Oakland, executive secretary of the Western Association of Schools and Colleges. Andersen was the luncheon speaker and represented the Church College of Hawaii, a Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon) school in Laie, Oahu, Hawaii.

Dr. Clifford Crummey, executive director of the Northern California Council of Churches, represented the Southern California School of Theology of Claremont, for which he is a trustee.

Representatives from San Francisco Bay area schools attended along with representatives from Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N.J.; University of Richmond, Va.; Hood Theological Seminary, Salisbury, N.C.; Lancaster Theological Seminary, Lancaster, Pa., and others.

Dr. Robert D. Hughes, executive secretary-treasurer of the Southern Baptist General Convention of California was also in attendance.

Gray, who is also professor of religious education at Golden Gate, was formerly Sunday School Department manager of the SBC's Sunday School Board and taught at Golden Gate from 1959 to 1967. During his previous years at the seminary, he served as head of the division of religious education and professor of church administration.

He is a 1940 graduate of Oklahoma Baptist University, Shawnee, where he earned a Bachelor of Arts degree. Gray received the Master of Theology from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, Tex. in 1943 and was awarded the Doctor of Theology degree from Southwestern in 1951.

726 New Members In EOC Drive

A membership drive by the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council has gained 726 members and $2,920 in contributions, W. Robert Lomax Jr., executive director, reported to the board of directors.

Lomax said that the board has not yet determined how these funds will be used, but they would probably go, in part, to one of the county's five neighborhood service centers located in Novato, Point Reyes, Marin City, San Anselmo or San Rafael.

The drive, begun last month, is still bringing in new members, he told the board Wednesday night.

Up to Dec. 1, the EOC had spent $372,475 out of its $779,532 budget for the year, he said. Of this, $304,157 came from federal funds and $68,318 from local funds, he said. It spent $60,279 in November, Lomax said.

Lomax said the council must raise 20 per cent or approximately $72,900, of their budget locally in order to qualify for federal funds.

The Marin County Economic Council board alos:

CONFERENCE — Approved Lomax attending a national anti-poverty conference in West Virginia Feb. 22 to 26.

TRANSPORTATION — Heard a report that the EOC would pay $1,000 for bus transportation in the Head Start program. It is also planning bus service twice daily from West Marin to the Civic Center, probably starting in February.

CONTRACT — Approved a $1,000 contract with Marin County to administer the drug abuse program through Center Point at 805 D Street.

SPECIAL — Set 8 p.m. Jan. 28 for a special meeting to take the place of the February meeting.

ANNUAL MEETING Set 8 p.m. April 30 at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant for the annual meeting and invited Sen. Alan Cranston as guest speaker.

Moderate Elected As Student Leader

College of Marin students have rejected a bid by the People's Government Party for student body leadership and instead elected Steven C. Banks, a moderate as president for the spring semester.

A college spokesman said yesterday 632 students cast ballots in elections held Wednesday and Thursday. The turnout exceeded by more than 400 the number of students who voted in the October election.

Banks said yesterday after his election that the win was due to hard compaigning and student preference of his platform over that of the peoples' party.

Five students who claimed to be "the most far out people on this campus" were running under the banner of the peoples' party but only one was elected. That was Landy Scott,iwho defeated Richard G. Mills, 260 to 253, for the office of spirit and athletics commissioner. Mills was the incumbent commissioner.

Banks said he had campaigned with Mills, Kenneth Bott, Olga Lynne Nicholes and Robert A. Mayer but no party was formed. All except Mills won.

Banks won over peoples' party candidate Robert E. L. Fisher and independent Dean Paul Carry. He got 355 votes to Fisher's 207 and Carry's 49.

Bott, new vice president, defeated party candidate Henry Crutchfield and independent Tim Neilsen. He had 326 votes to 176 for Crutchfield and 90 for Nielsen.

Alto Fire Panel Not For Study

Alto-Richardson Bay Fire District directors have decided not to participate in a study which may lead to merger of most of the fire districts in Southern Marin.

Chief Carl O. Heynen Jr. said the board voted unanimously Thursday to inform Carl H. Modell, chairman of a committee studying consolidation, that the Alto district does not want to participate.

Alto's pullout leaves only four firefighting agencies in Southern Marin in favor of the merger study. Belvedere and the Tiburon Fire Protection District previously indicated they wanted out.

Heynen said the board's decision was influenced by the possiblity of a county-wide study on fire district consolidation, which the board of supervisors may commission at this year's budget sessions, and by the cost of the study, estimated at $7,000.

Directors also were concerned about the chance that fire insurance rates might rise if the merger took place. Heynen cited news of a probable doubling of rates in the county in the near future, and said rates in his district are among the lowest in Marin.

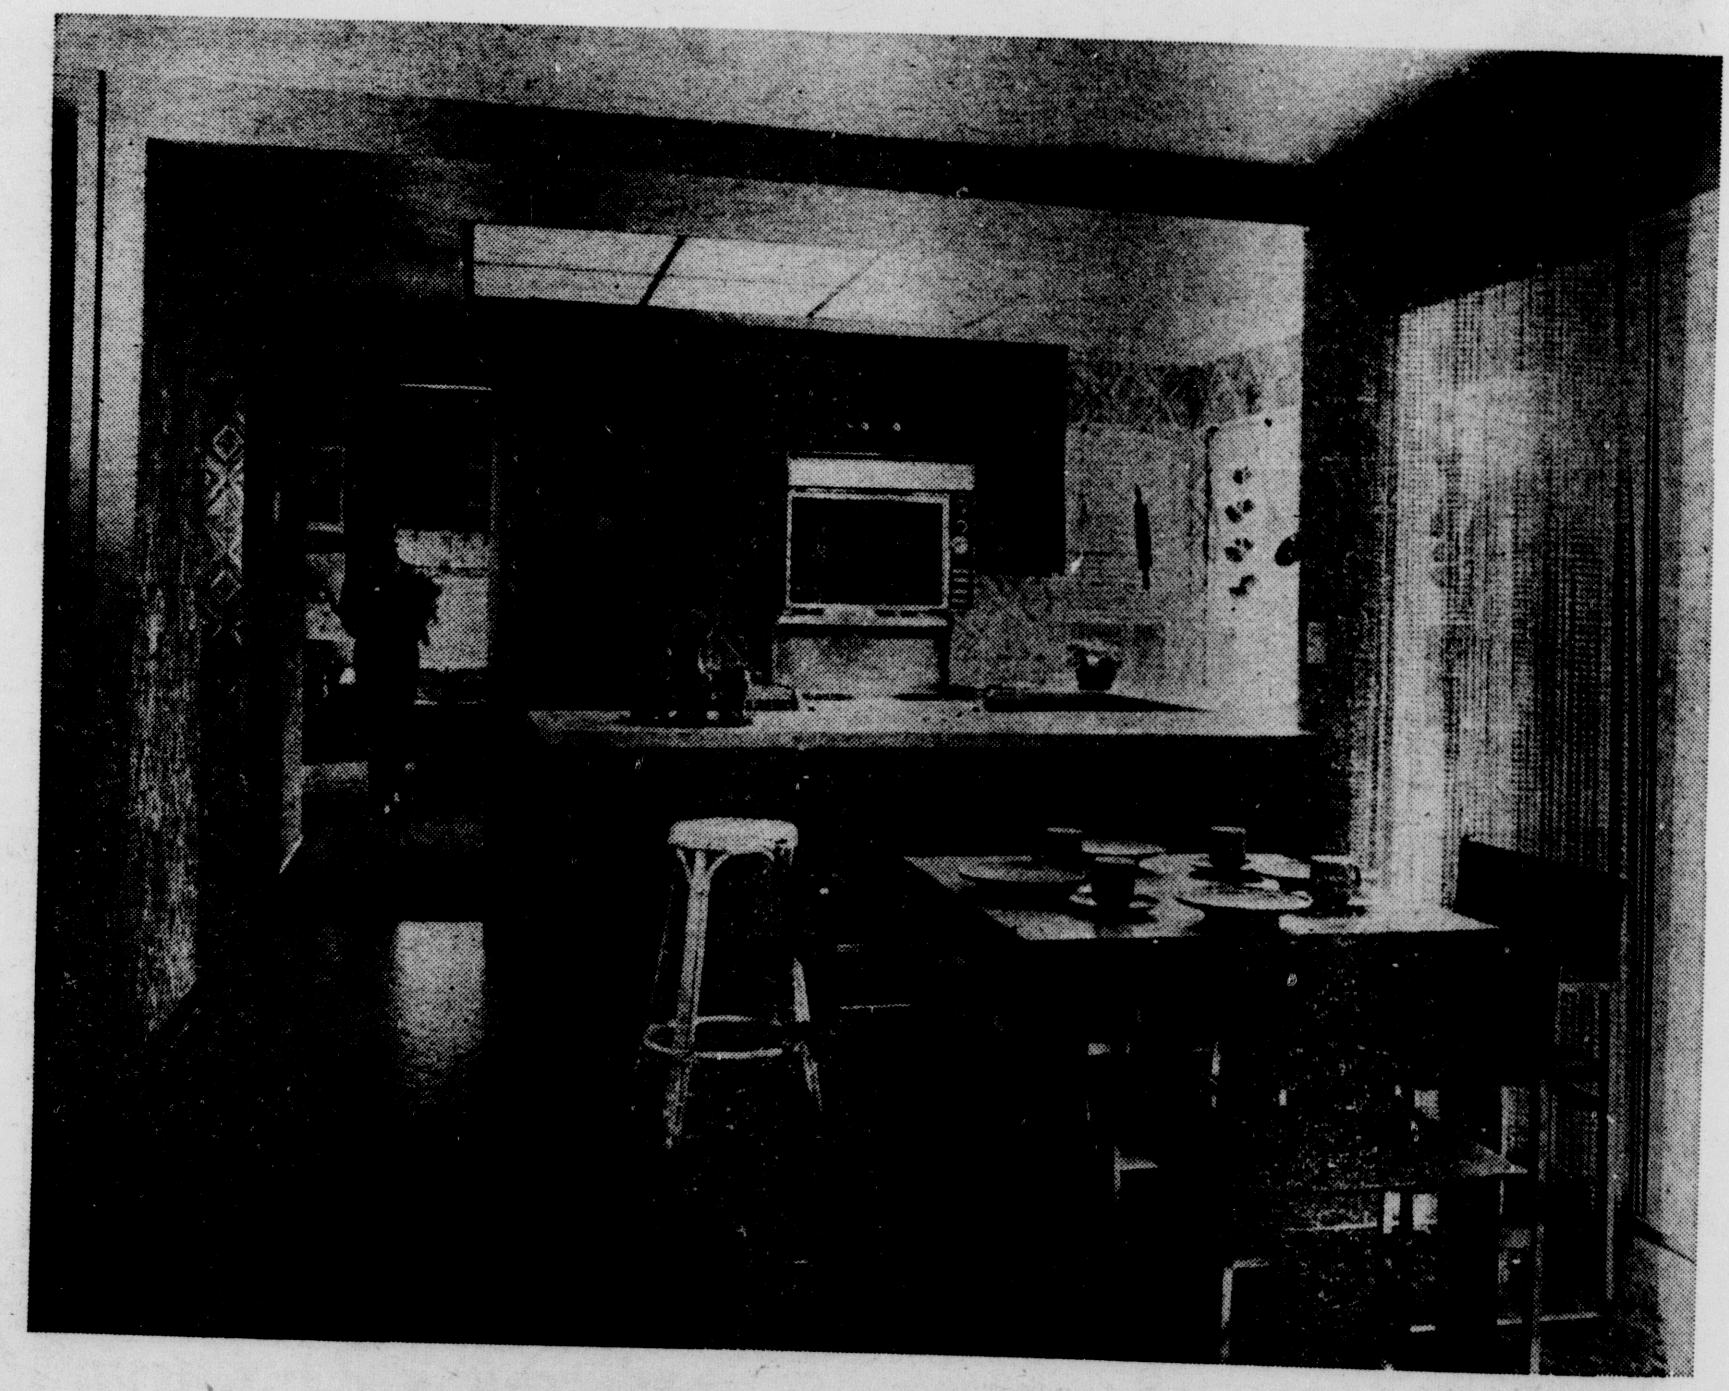
Bahia — Where Houses Enhance

Planning, Taste Protect Area



You can have both residences and environment, given proper planning and good taste.

That is what the Hofmann Co. has set out to prove with its Bahia development, set in North Marin on oak-studded hills that slope gently toward placid lagoons.

THE BUILDERS call Bahia "an environmentally-planned residential community designed to enhance rather than invade one of Marin's most naturally beautiful settings."

They point out that a master building plan provides for a series of greenbelts and parks covering 84 acres in addition to neighborhood parks and open spaces.

THE HOMES, the prices for which begin at under $30,000, are light and airy, of natural wood, and designed individually to complement their sites.

Recreational opportunities for dwellers include 5,700 feet of shoreline and protected lagoon designated for sailing, fishing and swimming, and access to miles of riding paths and hiking trails through the hills and valleys and beneath the shade of oaks, madrones and buckeyes.

Bahia can be reached by taking Highway 101 to Novato and turning right on Atherton.

There are preview homes open for public inspection. And Hofmann has also set aside a limited number of lots, starting at $6,000. for custom homes.

The builders say the popularity of Bahia has been such that since the community's formal opening in 1970 its construction schedule has been accelerated twice.

ORRIE ESTBY, electrician with the Pacific Arlite Co. of San Rafael, assembles some of the Arlite Circline Conversion Fluorescent Lighting Tubes that the young concern is distributing exclusively on the Pacific Coast and is also selling to customers in foreign lands. The assembling of the units manufactured in the Midwest is one of the principal activities at Pacific Arlite's new headquarters at 7 Lovell Avenue, San Rafael, in an industrial building formerly occupied by B and B Interiors.

Pioneering A New Era In Illumination

Fluorescent Tubes That Fit Regular Incandescent Light Sockets

By DON KEOWN

Three business men, all natives of Marin County, believe their young company is handling a product destined "to make the incandescent light bulb obsolete."

THE PARTNERS are Dean C. Boyd, president; A. L. Nieri, vice president in charge of industrial sales, and Lemar L. Little, vice president in charge of retail sales.

And the product they are confident will replace the incandescent light bulb to a large degree, in illuminating American buildings, plants and homes is their Arlite Conversion Fluorescent Lamp.

What it is, in essence, is a Circline (circular-shaped) Fluorescent Lighting Tube that simply screws into the ordinary lighting socket intended for an incadescent bulb and requires no change in the wiring.

AN ELDERLY Midwesterner, John L. Archer of Omaha, Neb., invented and patented the Arlites with their screw-in feature about eight years ago.

The fluorescent units were first manufactured by Arlite Electronics Corp. in Omaha and sold almost exclusively in the Midwest on a door-to-door peddling basis.

It was Dean Boyd who learned of the new product and decided to pioneer its distribution in the Far West.

THEN OPERATING his own accounting and tax consultation practice after 15 years with the Internal Revenue Service, Boyd formed his own company with headquarters in San Francisco and secured exclusive Arlite sales rights for California, Oregon and Washington, plus the right to sell on a non-exclusive basis anywhere else in the world.

"I was attracted particularly by the industrial sales possibilities," says Boyd.

Public buildings, too, proved a ready market for this new type of fluorescent lighting that could be installed in closets, elevator shafts, stairwells and other close quarters where the normal strip-type lighting was impractical.

SUCH AN installation went into the new federal building on Golden Gate Avenue in San Francisco.

In fact, the U.S. government has proven to date to be Arlite's best customer on the West Coast. The screw-in fluorescent lighting fixtures have also been purchased and installed at Oakland Army Base, Alameda Naval Air Station, Travis Air Force Base, the Presidio in San Francisco, the U.S. Mint in San Francisco and Letterman's Hospital.

What are the advantages offered by the new lighting?

FIRST AND foremost, says Boyd, there is better illumination at a lower cost

"What Happened To My 'Permanent' Pleats?"

Naturally, you are distressed to lose the "permanent" pleats in your wash 'n' wear" skirt. Yours is one of the sad effects that result from some do-it-yourself efforts.

What happened was that in tumble-drying, the temperature got too high in the tumbler. The heat removed your pleats which are not permanent to excessive temperatures. This occurs, especially, in pleated synthetic fibers. The discouraging fact is that it is extremely doubtful that once the pleats are removed, that they can ever be restored.

A further warning about such a skirt may be of value. Never steam press it and do not pack it tightly for storage. Hang it on a hanger from the waistband.

when the switch is made from the incandescent bulbs to the fluorescent Circline Tubes.

The candlelight of fluorescents is 70 lumens per watt. The candlelight of incandescents is but 20 lumens per bulb. Thus, there is a ratio of three-and-a-half to one.

This means that a 32-watt fluorescent light affords more illumination than a 100-watt incandescent bulb, yet uses only one-third as much electricity.

THE FEDERAL government's General Services Administration has reported an average saving in electrical cost and maintenance of $15 per socket per year when lighting has been upgraded from the old incandescent bulbs to the new screw-in fluorescent tubes, Boyd says.

The fluorescent tubes, while originally more expensive than incandescent bulbs, far outlast them, with a rated life of 7,500 hours as compared to 750 hours.

Furthermore, says Boyd, the fluorescent lighting burns cool, giving off no heat, and is glare-free and shadowless, lessening eye strain.

THESE ARE advantages common to all fluorescent lighting. But the Arlite tubes offer the added advantage of ease of installation.

BACKED BY DISPLAY posters, Derek Tunnard, right, gives his "sales pitch" to Bill Hessin, pointing out the advantages of a fluorescent lighting tube that screws into an ordinary socket and which can provide more than three times the amount of illumination for the same quantity of electricity. Tunnard is with Pacific Arlite Co.'s sales department.

The Arlite units consisting of a ballast (guaranteed for five years), ballast housing, male socket and eight-inch or 12-inch Circline Tubes (manufactured by General Electric, Sylvania, Westinghouse, Marvel and others) continue to come from the Arlite Electronics Corp. which has moved its facilities from Omaha to Lincoln, Neb.

The tubes are available in Cool White, Warm Light, Gold Light, Black Light and Gro-Lux hues, and in 22, 32, 44 and 54 watts. Thus the largest unit weight remains under the six pounds per socket permitted under the General Electrical Code.

THE UNITS are assembled finally and prepared for distribution at the Pacific Arlite Co. building at 7 Lovell Avenue, San Rafael, that was formerly the home of B & B Interiors.

It affords the concern a thousand square feet of office, display, storage and assembly space.

There are seven employees there, including the three officers.

Little was born and reared in Larkspur and San Rafael and also attended San Rafael High School and College of Marin. He was formerly associated with the H.C. Little Burner Co. of San Rafael.

IT WAS THE Marin link of the three officers that caused them to decide to move the company from San Francisco to Marin County.

While sales of the Circline Tubes so far have been made primarily to the government and to industry, Pacific Arlite is starting to make its first inroads into the home lighting field. The fluorescent "bulbs," the company says, are ideal for kitchens, bathrooms, family rooms, garages and workshops over the work benches. They can be used, too, in reading and in table lamps.

Arlite Partners Confident Their Product Has A Bright Future

A number of decorative shields are available, especially designed for the circular tubes.

A FIELD showing particular promise is the motel industry. Since motel owners frequently place three or four lamps in a single room, the savings in electricity and replacements over a year could be substantial.

The Gro-Lux tubes are designed for a special application — the germination of plant seeds, even in the winter, and the stimulation of growth in many flowering plants such as begonias and pansies and in vegetables and fruits such as tomatoes and even pineapples.

The Pacific Arlite building in San Rafael's eastern industrial area has its own demonstration tomato plant, thriving beneath the benevolent light of a Gro-Lux tube.

BLACK LIGHT is yet another Arlite product with a special use. It creates a unique and artistic psychedelic effect when focussed upon certain paintings, designs and walls.

Boyd says that Pacific Arlite is just now beginning to enter the retail sales field, and that its displays and products will soon be appearing in hardware, building supply and lighting stores throughout the three Far Western states.

Distributors have been established for Alaska ("Imagine the savings there where household electricity is sometimes 25 cents a kilowatt hour compared ot our .026 a kilowatt hour,") Oakland, the Peninsula, San Jose, Sonoma, Tahoe, Sacramento and San Francisco.

THE MODEL for the display posters publicizing the Arlite tubes is Sandy Michaelson of Marin, a Tamalpais High School graduate and daughter of Edna Hana, the company's secretary. Making up the remainder of the staff are electrician Orie Estby, Derek Tunnard in sales, and Robert Marquis, formerly an account executive for Young & Rubican, in advertising.

While the company is concentrating upon the Pacific Coast, it has also been accepting and filling foreign orders.

One such order, for $5,000 worth of the screw-in fluorescent tubes, came from Saudi Arabia.

ANOTHER CAME from Jamaica and the Cayman Islands. The units, depending upon size, wattage and design, sell for from $13.95 to $29.95.

The partners, who plan ultimately to incorporate, are encouraged by a recent article with photographs of their product that appeared in the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. publication, PG and E Progress.

"ALREADY USED in many businesses and industries, the unit is moving into the household market where fluorescent lights have not gained wide use because of the special wiring such fixtures have required," the bulletin reported.

Popular Mechanics, too, took notice of the new light. And, according to Pacific Arlite President Boyd, Better Homes & Gardens has scheduled a story for its February issue.

Generations ago, the kerosene lamp, which itself had replaced the candle, gave way to Edison's incandescent light as man's chief means of illumination, at least in the more civilized areas.

IT WAS AN ingenious method by which a filament inside a bulb was lighted electrically. But it threw off almost as much heat as it did light. And the filament burnt out relatively soon so that the bulb had to be discarded.

In recent decades, the fluorescent light has been crowding into the field, taking over an increasing portion of the tasks once performed by the incandescent bulb. It replaces the filament with a gas that is illuminated, and which gives off almost no heat, concentrating its energies into the lighting.

But it, too, has posed its problems, particularly in the home.

STRIP fluorescent lighting has been well suited to many public and business buildings and to large factories. But it requires space, and cannot be fitted into more limited spaces.

Circular fluorescent tubes have been on the market for some 20 years. But these required the same kind of special wiring as the strip fluorescent lighting.

Now, in John L. Archer's Arlite Conversion Fluorescent Lamps the Pacific Arlite Co. partners are confident they have the product that will make fluorescent lighting more and more a part of the American way of living, in the home as well as on the job.

NOW THAT fluorescent lighting can be installed as easily as the householder once changed a burnt-out incandescent bulb, we are, they believe, on the threshold of a whole new era in illumination.

And they and their Marin-based company are pioneering that new era for this country's fastest-growing, greatest potential region.

THE GRO-LUX version of the Circline Fluroescent Lighting Tube being distributed by Pacific Arlite Co. has a special application — the germination of seeds and the stimulation of the growth of young plants. Here a young tomato plant thrives under the benevolent light of a Gro-Lux tube as a demonstration project at Pacific Arlite headquarters in East San Rafael.

THE MODEL FOR the photograph being used on Pacific Arlite Co. display posters publicizing the new circular fluorescent tubes that screw into light sockets is Sandy Michaelson of Novato. Mrs. Michaelson is the daughter of Pacific Arlite secretary Edna Hana. And the posters will be seen more and more as Arlite bids for home lighting sales.

Arlite Partners Confident Their Product Has A Bright Future

kitchens, bathrooms, family rooms, garages and workshops over the work benches. They can be used, too, in reading and in table lamps.

A number of decorative shields are available, especially designed for the circular tubes.

A FIELD showing particular promise is the motel industry. Since motel owners frequently place three or four lamps in a single room, the savings in electricity and replacements over a year could be substantial.

The Gro-Lux tubes are designed for a special application — the germination of plant seeds, even in the winter, and the stimulation of growth in many flowering plants such as begonias and pansies and in vegetables and fruits such as tomatoes and even pineapples.

The Pacific Arlite building in San Rafael's eastern industrial area has its own demonstration tomato plant, thriving beneath the benevolent light of a Gro-Lux tube.

BLACK LIGHT is yet another Arlite product with a special use. It creates a unique and artistic psychedelic effect when focussed upon certain paintings, designs and walls.

Boyd says that Pacific Arlite is just now beginning to enter the retail sales field, and that its displays and products will soon be appearing in hardware, building supply and lighting stores throughout the three Far Western states.

Distributors have been established for Alaska ("Imagine the savings there where household electricity is sometimes 25 cents a kilowatt hour compared ot our .026 a kilowatt hour,") Oakland, the Peninsula, San Jose, Sonoma, Tahoe, Sacramento and San Francisco.

THE MODEL for the display posters publicizing the Arlite tubes is Sandy Michaelson of Marin, a Tamalpais High School graduate and daughter of Edna Hana, the company's secretary. How Close Were Nazis To A-Bomb?

Men Of Alsos Mission Found Answer To Question

By DON KEOWN

Just how close were the Germans to developing their own atomic bomb in the final stages of World War II?

That is an intriguing question over which historians have differed and debated.

But the one man who can answer it most authoritatively is a Marin County resident — Boris T. Pash of 474 Cedar Hill Drive, San Rafael.

It was Pash, now a retired U.S. Army colonel, who headed the Alsos Mission organized in the late fall of 1943.

AN ELITE and super-secret unit composed of both military and science people, the mission was handed the difficult task of determining the truth or falsity of the rumors that a desperate Adolf Hitler was preparing for use some new and terrible weapons in the hope that he could yet turn defeat into victory.

And especially was Alsos charged with determining if Germany was readying the same atomic bombs that Americans were hurrying to completion in their Manhattan Project.

Carried out in a Western Europe ablaze with war, it was a dangerous and difficult assignment. But Colonel Pash and his picked men carried it out, sometimes working immediately behind Allied forces engaged in reoccupying territory that had been captured by the Germans, sometimes moving into those very front lines, and sometimes even preceding the most advanced Allied patrols.

EVENTUALLY IT took them on forays into Germany itself.

It involved the location and the questioning of eminent scientists, both Germans and their captives. It involved minute inspections of Nazi laboratories, universities and factories. It involved scientific scrutiny of papers left behind by fleeing Germans. It involved hunts for and discoveries of missing stocks of uranium, heavy water and radium.

It made the Alsos men the first to re-enter Paris, and among the first to explore Hitler's Alpine redoubt.

IT BROUGHT Pash and his men frequently under close and heavy enemy gunfire and it aroused no little resentment and jealousy from other Allied intelligence units denied the free-wheeling and unrestrained operating procedures granted Alsos because of its special importance.

Eventually, the Alsos Mission came up with the answer to the big question concerning Germany's atomic bomb project.

In the process they took into American custody a long list of German scientists involved in the program, and they recovered a huge store of hidden uranium metal and heavy water.

"ALSOS HAS hit the jackpot," a triumphant Colonel Pash wired his commanding general.

And so notified, a jubilant Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower relayed the news on to the Pentagon, using the same phrase: "Boris Pash has hit the jackpot," adding that the information, material and personnel secured and developed had exceeded the "wildest expectations."

The answer to that key question about the Germans and their atomic bomb program?

"THE GERMANS," says Colonel Pash today, "were nowhere close to the atomic bomb. In November, 1944, they were not as far along as we had been in early 1943.

"In fact, they were not even on the right track. It would have been a matter of years before they would have been able to correct their mistakes and to prepare the bomb for use."

This was the answer that Pash and his people gave to the men directing the campaigns in Western Europe, thus relieving their minds of the possibility that Hitler might still strike back with the most dreaded weapon yet developed by mankind.

THE ALLIED High Command was then able to plan its victory strategy accordingly, thus affecting the concluding course of the war in Europe.

Colonel Pash, out of the service since 1963, still speaks with enthusiasm of the Alsos Mission and the men who carried it out.

"I consider it one of the most extraordinary intelligence programs in military history, and I am proud of it and the men and women who made it possible," he says frankly.

SO PROUD, indeed, that employing his keen memory, sharpened by his training for intelligence work, plus extensive research through contacts with former Alsos personnel and associates and available records and other documents, Colonel Pash has written a book on the operation.

"The Alsos Mission" was published in January of 1970 in hardcover with illustrations. A paperback edition followed a couple of months later.

Award House, a division of Universal Publishing and Distributing Corp., is the publisher of the 95-cent softcover edition which is without pictures.

THE SAME publisher had also contracted to handle the hardcover book. But when there was some difficulty and delay over the hardcover project, Colonel Pash recovered those rights and paid for the publication of the book himself.

The colonel says he has already recovered most of his personal expenditure for the printing.

The illustrated hardcover book is priced at $6.95 and is available to World War II and espionage buffs in several Marin area bookstores.

BUT A MAJOR source of sales for Pash has been the surviving personnel of Alsos. "I contacted and notified all former Alsos people I was able to locate," Colonel Pash says. Almost unanimously they sent in their orders, for anywhere from one to 52 books. The book contains a complete roster of the Alsos personnel.

In addition, the three services bought 740 copies to place in camp, post and station libraries.

"While I am happy to get back my costs, money was not one of my purposes in writing the book," says Colonel Pash.

"I FELT LIKE it was such an outstanding and such an important intelligence operation that it should be recorded in acceptable book form. Then I wanted every man who had lived these experiences to have a copy. And I wanted it on the shelves of service libraries to remind today's servicemen of the kinds of things an earlier generation had done for democracy."

Pash recalls that some major publishers to whom he first submitted his manuscript rejected it on the grounds that he spoke too complimentary of his superiors. The book needed more controvery and criticism of the high command, it was claimed.

"Give them hell," one publisher urged Pash.

"BUT," SAYS the colonel, "my honest reactions to the men at the top was one of respect and admiration, and I did not intend to libel them, merely to sell my book."

Then he smiles: "And of course the manuscript was criticized 'because there is no love story in it."

The manuscript represented two years of intensive work on the basic manuscript, and a great deal longer on research.

Along with records that were declassified for his use and with the extensive personal research he undertook, Colonel Pash also had opportunities to refresh his recollections at Alsos reunions, the last of which took place in 1962. He is hoping another can be arranged soon.

COLONEL PASH says he first began thinking in terms of a book when shortly after World War II he was stationed in Washington, D.C. and was invited by Dennis McAvoy of Reader's Digest to that magazine's Pleasantville headquarters to discuss such a project.

The top people at Reader's Digest indicated an interest in Pash's war-time adventures and the publication of them. But in the end, the colonel decided it would be inappropriate for him to participate in such a project while he was still in service doing intelligence-related work.

"It might have called attention to me and my philosophy of doing things that would have hindered my work," he explains.

THE PROJECT then awaited Colonel Pash's final retirement from government service in 1963, although he had left the military in 1957 because of war-time disabilities.

One of those disabilities was cataracts of the eyes attributable, it is believed, to the handling of radium stocks seized from the Germans and in advance of the Russians in the closing days of World War II.

The radium stores were the official German and French standards captured at Weida, Germany, in a Bureau of Standards wall safe only hours before the Russians were due to move into the town.

"I SHOULD have realized that the radium should have been shielded, but we were in too great a rush," Colonel Pash says. And so the 14 glass vials were transported in simple cartons in Pash's jeep for eight hours before being turned over to scientists who hastily incased them in a lead casket.

His later eye difficulties were to play a part in Pash's eventual sale of his book manuscript after a number of rejections.

Colonel Pash takes a keen interest in golf, but his eyesight difficulties forced him to adopt the "side saddle" or "croquet" style of putting. After some controversy, golfing outlawed the putting stance. Irritated, Pash decided to do a satirical article ridiculing the ruling. He called at the San Francisco office of Universal Publishing and Distributing Corp., publishers of several sports magazines, to discuss his idea.

THE CONVERSATION turned instead to the book manuscript he had already completed and which he had been unable to sell.

Universal, he was told, was considering adding hardcover books to its softcover line and would be interested in seeing the Pash manuscript.

It was accepted and Pash worked with editor Mike deForrest in preparing the manuscript for printing.

IT WAS A delay in Universal's plans for entering the hardcover field that ultimately caused Pash to take back those rights while Universal under its Award House label proceeded with the paperback edition.

The book is alive with adventure and action crucial to the Allied cause.

There are Pash and his men entering Paris in advance of the first Free French troops to contact the great Frederic Joliot-Curie and occupy his laboratory. There is the long hunt for the missing German uranium stores. There is the search for and ultimate capture of Germany's leading nuclear scientist Werner Heisenberg and the discovery of the body of American turncoat Colin Ross, a suicide. There are factories and laboratories entered and searched while fighting still raged around them.

AND THERE are many instances when Alsos personnel moving with or in advance of probing Allied patrols found themselves suddenly confronting German guns and ducking or returning their fire.

WHEN HIS task force reached the outskirts of Thanheim, a German town that had surrendered earlier to the Alsos unit by telephone, Col. Boris T. Pash dismounted from his armored car and led his men into the town on foot, arms swinging, head held high. "It was my way of showing the Germans that we were not afraid and that we would not tolerate trouble," he says today. The photograph was taken in April, 1945.

Colonel Pash is as high in his praise of the American scientists who were a part of his group as he is of his soldiers. Of World War II generally, he says: "Our scientists contributed as much as the military to our effort. No other country can make that claim."

PASH POINTS out that the great European-born American scientists "never really blossomed out until they got into the technical environment of the United States."

A lack of inter-service cooperation was also responsible for Germany's failure to advance further along in nuclear warfare weaponry, despite its great theoretical scientists. "The four services — the Army, the Navy, the Air Force and the SS — were all working separately on their own atomic bomb programs without any cooperation. And none was anywhere near success."

War-Time Mission Remembered

Heading the hardworking scientist wing of the Alsos Mission was Dr. Samuel A. Goudsmit, with whom Colonel Pash struck up a harmonious working relationship despite occassional minor differences of opinions on working policies and procedures.

DR. GOUDSMIT has written the only previously published book devoted entirely to the Alsos program, entitled simply "Alsos."

"And it is a good book," says Pash, "although I think it downgrades German science somwhat. I do not believe Dr. Goudsmit was able to take a completely objective view of German scientists because of the horrors that had been perpetrated in the name of German science."

Alsos figures in many other books including major World War II histories, and in one of Upton Sinclair's books in his Lanny Budd series.

THE LIBRARY Journal reviewed the Pash book in August, 1970, and the reviewer, while approving, expressed some surprise at the author's ability to incorporate into his text so many direct quotations and to quote from memory accurately so many years after the events.

Colonel Pash explains: "On the personal facets of my relationships with the scientists and with my officers and men, the matters that were not classified, I kept notes. I realized that I was living history, important history, and I was enthusiastic over and impressed by my chance to play a part in it.

"Then, too, I have a keen memory that I trained especially for intelligence work."

BUT HE ALSO adds: "One must remember that I lived this operation. I developed its philosophy and I led every critical action personally. Under the circumstances, it would be harder to forget what was done or said than it would be to remember. One never forgets some things."

Boris T. Pash is California-born, a native of San Francisco. But he was in Russia on an extensive trip when World War I broke out. He eventually joined the YMCA and then the American Red Cross to perform relief work.

In 1920 at Sevastopol in the Crimea he married his Russian-born wife Lydia whom he had met and wooed there.

IN 1921 AND 1922 he was engaged in relief work for the YMCA in Germany in Russian refugee camps.

Back in the United States he graduated from Springfield College in Massachusetts in 1924. He was to earn a master's degree years ater, in 1939, at the University of Southern California.

From 1925 to 1940 he was a teacher at Hollywood High School in Southern California, and his duties included biological sciences instructor, head of the athletic department and assistant vice-principal.

HE WAS CALLED into military service in June, 1940, and did not retire until 1957 when disabilities from the war forced him to do so. His final separation from government service, however, did not come until 1963.

In 1965 he and Mrs. Pash returned to the Bay Area and made their home in San Rafael until 1968 when they moved to Chico. In October, 1970, they returned to Marin and San Rafael.

THE MEN OF the Alsos Mission were the first to enter Paris, even in advance of the Free French. And Parisians lined the streets to welcome them.

STREET FIGHTING was still under way as the Alsos advance unit moved through the streets of Paris headed for the streets of Paris headed for the College de France and the famed scientist Frederic Joliot-Curie.

Under the name B.T. Pash and Associates, with offices in the Mechanics Building, 57 Post Street, San Francisco, and in Washington, D.C., Colonel Pash now operates a foreign language research, consultation and translation firm.

HE AND MRS. Pash celebrated their half-century anniversary — "That sounds more impressive than 50th," he smiles — in July of 1970.

His book, "The Alsos Mission," is on sale in various Marin and Bay Area bookstores.

It covers but one chapter in a remarkable and exciting intelligence career that in many ways puts to shame the spy thriller fiction so popular today.

FOR INSTANCE, Boris T. Pash came into Alsos after having just completed a successful investigation of the first Soviet Union attempt, with the help of American Communists, to steal U.S. atomic secrets. That investigation was to figure later in the controversial Dr. Robert Oppenheimer case. And it made Pash not only aware of, but rather well informed about, America's super-secret Manhattan Project, a status shared then by very few.

And after Alsos and the war in Europe had ended, Colonel Pash was to be assigned to new and urgent intelligence duties in the Pacific.

But those stories are meat for other books.

And, in fact, Colonel Pash is already making the preliminary plans for a second book, this one dealing with those assignments undertaken for Uncle Sam in the Pacific.

separately on their own atomic bomb programs without any cooperation. And none was anywhere near success."

Heading the hardworking scientist wing of the Alsos Mission was Dr. Samuel A. Goudsmit, with whom Colonel Pash struck up a harmonious working relationship despite occassional minor differences of opinions on working policies and procedures.

DR. GOUDSMIT has written the only previously published book devoted entirely to the Alsos program, entitled simply "Alsos."

"And it is a good book," says Pash, "although I think it downgrades German science somwhat. I do not believe Dr. Goudsmit was able to take a completely objective view of German scientists because of the horrors that had been perpetrated in the name of German science."

Alsos figures in many other books including major World War II histories, and in one of Upton Sinclair's books in his Lanny Budd series.

THE LIBRARY Journal reviewed the Pash book in August, 1970, and the reviewer, while approving, expressed some surprise at the author's ability to incorporate into his text so many direct quotations and to quote from memory accurately so many years after the events.

Colonel Pash explains: "On the personal facets of my relationships with the scientists and with my officers and men, the matters that were not classified, I kept notes. I realized that I was living history, important history, and I was enthusiastic over and impressed by my chance to play a part in it.

"Then, too, I have a keen memory that I trained especially for intelligence work."

Nothing Has To Be Done In Fiji

By THOMAS TALAMINI

We were lounging on the white sand beach at one of the South Pacific's most elegant resort hotels, The Fijian, located on its own small island along the famed Coral Coast of Fiji's main island of Viti Levu.

My companion was travel editor of a major Eastern daily in the United States. He'd traveled extensively in Europe, the Caribbean and even the Orient, but this was his first trip to the South Pacific and Fiji.

We were brought to these tropical shores courtesy of Pan American, which had invited us to be their guests on the inaugural flight of their 747 service from Los Angeles to Sydney via Hawaii and Fiji.

This was three months ago and Pan Am is still the only carrier flying the jumbo jets into the South Pacific.

BUT GETTING back to that day on the beach at The Fijian. My companion turned to me and sleepily commented: "This is great, but what's there to do in Fiji?"

I thought for a moment and then answered: "Nothing . . . and that's the beauty of it."

One of Fiji's appeals is that there's absolutely nothing you have to do. There are no cathedrals to visit, no major art galleries or museums (although Suva has both) to explore, no major sightseeing attractions.

YOU DON'T have to worry about coming back home to comments such as: You mean you were in Fiji and didn't see such-and-such!

But this doesn't mean there aren't things to see and do. If you insist on being the active type, you can keep going day and night. But what a waste of tropical sun and sand and water!

At The Fijian, for example, we could have been game-fishing in fully equipped craft furnished by the resort for anywhere from two to 12 hours. For the really avid angler, there are extended fishing trips of two to seven days to remote outer islands.

OR WE COULD be sailing in the lagoon or water skiing or snorkeling or horseback riding.

The same is true at other resort hotels along this stretch of beach known as the Coral Coast.

In Suva, you can walk for hours and even days through countless shops selling a vast array of duty free goods; it's easy and fascinating to spend at least a half-day at the outdoor native marketplace bargaining for some souvenir item you'd like to take home to grandma (a shell broach), grandpa (cat's eye cuff links), Aunt Martha (a set of carved salad bowls), Uncle Herman (a carved wooden mask), sister (a shell bracelet) and junior (a bongo drum).

DUTY-FREE SHOPS are everywhere, and bargaining is the accepted way of life. You'll find excellent buys on cameras, watches, binoculars, telescopes, typewriters, projectors, radios, electric razors, furs and perfumes.

You can visit Suva's excellent museum, which is small but surprisingly interesting.

I entered with the intention of whipping through just to see what they had, and ended up spending the better part of an hour there . . . and that wasn't nearly long enough. There are exhibits from all Pacific Island countries. Two of the most interesting are primitive masks from the Solomons and New Hebrides. There are decorated human skulls, huge carvings up to three feet tall, life size busts.

Another showcase contains vicious weapons formerly used by the Fijians and the New Guineans — a variety of mean looking axes anyone of which could easily slice a man in half, spears four feet long, heavy war clubs and even muskets.

OTHER ITEMS include beautiful beads and ornaments from the Gilbert and Ellice islands, canoes, a three-foot-wide Kava bowl made of a solid block of wood from vesi or ironwood tree, basketware and even clothing (what little there was) that includes grass mini-skirts that the maidens of old wore topless with shell necklaces and bracelets as accessories (who says the mini look and the topless style are modern?).

You can climb the hills behind Suva and visit an Indian mosque, drive to the Fiji Handicraft Center (where you can watch Fijian carvers, basket-weavers, jewelry-makers, etc., and purchase the items) or call on well known Fiji artist Semisi Maya, crippled from leprosy since his early manhood in 1938.

THE STORY of Semisi is worth much more space than I have here. But briefly, he took up finger painting as therapy for his badly crippled hands and arms, discovered he had natural artistic talent and now is one of Fiji's most successful artists. His distinctive paintings sell for a reasonable $8, or $12 for the larger size.

His studio at St. Elizabeth's home on the outskirts of Suva is open daily from 10 a.m. to noon and 2 to 5 p.m.

There are numerous tours, river cruises and cruises to the outer islands that last anywhere from a day to three or four days.

You can do anyone or all of the above, but please don't bother me. I'm going for another dip in those warm tropical waters and then finish this novel.

What London Is Wearing Now

By GILLIAN REYNOLDS

In London it's the midi skirt, the gaucho, and the pants suit 99 to one.

That's the latest news brought back by travelers from the city which pioneered the mini and micro-mini and has been setting world fashion trends for the past 10 years.

Autumn 1970 saw the birth of a new fashion era.

IF IT HAS the same impact and influence throughout the world as the innovation of the mini in the 1960s, then within a few seasons, everyone will be wearing midis, pantaloons, gaucho suits and gypsy prints.

All the stores are full of exciting clothes.

The midis are, in many ways, reminiscent of the 1940s — a soft, romantic look.

A look strictly of the '70s are the gauchos and pantaloons. Mother would certainly never have worn this outfit, yet it is favorite party wear this winter. For such occasions it is at its best in soft, black velvet teamed with a matching waistcoat over a full satin blouse.

MISS SELFRIDGE, the trend-setting London fashion "store within a store," reports that they can sell as many midi coats, dresses and skirts as they can fit into their rails.

Just a few people are preferring a maxi length, usually for evening wear, but there isn't a mini in sight and the store reports it has not even been asked for one this season!

The winter colors are dark and soft — muted shades of plum, brown, grey and green — even the heavily printed "gypsy" dresses have been toned down to deeper, smudgier prints.

Be Prepared For Travel To Tropics

Winter time has become vacation time for many.

Increasingly, American families seek the sun in their winter vacations and plan holiday trips to such warm weather places as Mexico, Hawaii, the Caribbean, Central and South America, Australia, New Zealand, even Africa and Asia.

If you're planning to follow the sun abroad this winter, make sure that your vacation is a happy and a healthy one. Far too many travelers fail to take commonsense health precautions before leaving home and, as a result, wind up with a medical emergency, or, at the least, suffer discomfort and inconvenience.

WHAT HEALTH precautions should you take before you set off for the tropics?

Experts in international health surveyed by the Bayer Co. recommend that the time to see your family physician is as soon as you see your travel agent. Consult your doctor at least four weeks in advance, preferably more, to allow time for immunizations to become effective.

Your visit should include a thorough physical checkup.

The only immunization usually required to re-enter the United States is a smallpox vaccination. However, for tropical areas, Hawaii excepted, international regulations may call for immunizations against yellow fever, cholera, tetanus, diphtheria, polio and typhoid-parathypoid.

FOR CHILDREN recommended precautions add vaccinations against measles and whooping cough.

Other protective injections may be required depending on the specific areas you plan to visit. Your doctor, public health service or travel agent will be able to advise you.

Travel to the tropics may pose some special health considerations. Tropical diseases that have been eradicated from western countries may still be common in underveloped areas, particularly if you travel off the beaten path, away from cosmopolitan cities and into rural areas.

BEFORE HEADING south or west, the Bayer Co. suggests that you put together a practical medical kit so that you can easily dispatch those minor medical problems that you encounter abroad as well as at home.

Your medical kit should include insect repellent, eye drops, suntan and skin creams, aspirin, antibiotic ointment, antacids, a fever thermometer, antihistamines, a first aid kit, a kaolin-pectin mixture for diarrhea, milk of magnesia, liquid surgical sopa, anti-fungus powder and ointment and water purification tablets.

Your basic medical kit will save many a groan in the early morning hours when you suffer a headache or stomach upset.

IN FACT, YOU may find that these items are not always available if you try to buy them on the spot. Even when they can be found, the quality may be doubtful.

Be sure to bring along extra supplies of any medicine prescribed by your physician. Tuck spare eyeglasses into your suitcase. Sunglasses are a must.

To further assure an all-round sunny holiday, experts advise:

Pack light, loose fitting clothes. It's especially important in the tropics to wear comfortable clothes that will give you maximum ventilation.

Wear shoes at all times because of the danger of picking up hookworm.

BE CAREFUL OF tropic sun. Bring along a sun hat or other protective head gear, and use commonsense in acquiring a tan.

Be sure to put on that hat and sunglasses, and apply protective creams.

Be careful of the water. Limit your swimming to the ocean or to swimming pools. Avoid fresh water, such as lakes and streams, because of the possible danger of contracting schistosomiasis.

Be wary of what you eat — again Hawaii and Australia excepted. Avoid salads, sauces and milk products. Eat raw fruits and vegetables only if they can be washed in bottled or boiled water and then peeled. Don't drink fresh milk, boil it first. Stay away from cold salads and bread rolls offered locally.

Don't indulge in the cold platter presented in the hotel lobby in a tropical area.

EXERCISE CAUTION in what you drink. Don't drink water right from the tap. Use bottled water both for drinking and brushing your teeth.

Employ moderation in what you do. Jetting through time zones can distrub your internal biological clock. The result may be headache, fatigue, irritability and loss of appetite — sometimes lasting for days. Take a bath, an aspirin or two, and a nap when you arrive at your destination, and you'll avoid a lot of discomfort.

In general, take it easy on sightseeing, eating, drinking and sports.

Modern Art Is Everywhere In Stockholm

Modern art is very much in evidence in the every day life of Stockholm as well as in its museums.

Stroll down the street in the Swedish capital and you may encounter a smiling construction worker climbing out of a manhole. A closer look and you will discover that the worker is actually a work of sculpture.

The artist, Bejemark, calls his piece "Humor."

STOCKHOLM'S subway stations are also richly decorated. There are mosaics, and tesselations, enamel paintings and works in relief, all helping to add a dash of color to the traveler's waiting time.

The sculptures of Carl Milles are seen all over the city.

"The Singer to the Sun" stretches out his arms from Helgeandsholmen, where the parliament building is located; the magnificent "Orpheus" group adorns the entrance of the Concert Hall, and overlooking the visitors outside the Nordic Museum is the giant wooden statue of King Gustaf Vasa.

The greatest collection of Milles' works is found at the Millesgarden on the Lidingo Island, where his home as well as his collection of antique art are available to visitors.

THE PLAYGROUNDS in Stockholm also have their art. Almost every one has at least one "play sculpture" in bright colors where the children climb and scramble.

Two of Stockholm's museums are devoted mainly to modern art. The Museum of Modern Art on Skeppsholmen features 20th Century Swedish and foreign artists.

TOURISTS IN STOCKHOLM are surprised to discover that what looks like a live workman climbing from a manhole in a city street is actually a piece of modern sculpture that the artist Bejemark calls "Humor."

NOTES TO TRAVEL BY

Calling cards imprinted in Japanese are now available from Pan American World Airways in multiple quantities of 100 for business men traveling to the Orient . . . The January, 1971, issue of Dodge News Magazine has a "Winter in the West" theme and spotlights Tucson's February La Fiesta de los Vaqueros rodeo and the snow season attractions of our national parks, plus an article on the new craze for bottle collecting.

A new 42-page American Airlines brochure, "Vacationland Arizona," describes the enticements that state holds for tourists and outlines some of the airline's Astrojet Holiday trips into the Southwest . . . Wayne Merry's Mountaineering School at Yosemite National Park has begun its winter season of weekend snow-camping expeditions into the high country where participants build their own shelters — igloo or cave — from the snow.

You Can Go To Church With The Royal Guard

Few of the hundreds of thousands of travelers who every year go to see the Changing of the Guard at Buckingham Palace, London, realize that it's possible to follow the guard to church.

The seven bands of the regiments attached to the Wellington Barracks alternate in playing before and after the 11 a.m. service, as well as accompanying the choir in hymns.

The guard's own chapel is in Wellington Barracks, Birdcage Walk. It seats 500, is open to the public, and offers the only place of worship in London with a regular military band accompanying its services.

Holy Communion is at 8 a.m. and noon on the first Sunday of the month.

By DON KEOWN

AMERICAN JOURNEY: THE TIMES OF ROBERT KENNEDY by Jean Stein and George Plimpton; Harcourt Brace Johanovich Inc., 363 pages, $8.95.

To read "American Journey: The Times of Robert Kennedy" is to experience a series of revelations.

There is a revelation in what it tells us about Robert F. Kennedy, perhaps the most puzzling and almost misunderstood political phenomenon of middle-20th Century America.

It is revealing in its dissection of the society that made possible — or made necessary — a Bobby Kennedy, either idolizing, admiring, fearing or despising him, but rarely simply tolerating this unique product of its crucible.

"He was a man of whom it was almost impossible to say that you were not a lesser man," notes Adam Walinsky, the brilliant young campaign associate. That is a relationship designed to produce either bitter resentment and hatred, or intense devotion.

And it is revealing, too, about ourselves — what we were and what we might have been in the days when Robert Kennedy walked this earth, unruly locks and all. And what we are today, two and a half years after the tragedy that should have made better, more charitable people of us all.

The book is composed of excerpts from interviews conducted by Jean Stein, a veteran of such assignments. She has pursued her mission with skill and sensitivity. Her subjects are for the most part those who rode the funeral train from New York to Washington D.C., both the humble and the famous. But she has questioned, too, those who could only stand and watch the train roll past them, hands over hearts and sometimes tears in eyes.

All this splendidly candid and often moving material collected by her collaborator, editor George Plimpton has kneaded into a narrative that is as upsetting as it is informative.

He has made his choices with admirable selectivity from the millions of words recorded by Miss Stein, and he has hit upon a formula that is strikingly effective.

Each chapter begins with a preface of comments and observations pertaining to the funeral train and its sad trip. Then Plimpton devotes the bulk of each such chapter to recollections and other commentary illuminating a stretch of Robert F. Kennedy's own remarkable journey through life.

And what of those revelations we wrote of at the outset of this article?

There are those whose reputations tend to flatten out after death with the passing of first months and then years. And there are those, a minority, who take on greater stature as time elapses and a broader perspective becomes possible. Thus, already, something of the mystique of John F. Kennedy has faded since that terrible day in Dallas. While the prestige of Robert L. Kennedy, once thought the lesser brother, has grown since he kept his final date with destiny in a narrow corridor of Los Angeles' Ambassador Hotel.

Not all the assessments of Robert Kennedy's character or career recorded in "American Journey" are favorable or even kind. But the evidence and the witnesses are overwhelmingly on his side. And much of that testimony comes from those who had once been skeptical or wary.

Thus Dr. Kenneth Clark, psychologist, educator and author of "Dark Ghetto," admits:

"I changed. I did not become an avid Bobby Kennedy devotee or fan, but I respected the complexity of the man. I don't believe that Bobby Kennedy was an angel in any way. But I do think that our original judgment might have been overharsh and severe. Had he lived, he really would have demonstrated a rare combination of courage, clarity and concern about the same issues that concerned me."

Courage, clarity and concern in this age of compromise, confusion and cold-heartedness quite properly outweigh certain unangelic traits that really only served to make Bobby Kennedy more human and often more appealing.

Educator-author Richard Neustadt speaks of one of these when he says: "He was terribly impatient with institutions . . . I'm not sure Bob ever accepted that there were limitations; maybe he did in his last few years, but his notion was that every wrong . . . somehow . . . if you can't right it, you've got to bust in the attempt."

"It's extraordinary," admits Neustadt, and adds: "I've never met anybody like him." Perhaps because there are so few — or no — others of his distinctive stripe.

As Roger Wilkins, a former Justice Department associate, notes sadly: "We've lost that compassion, that understanding, that capacity to grow."

It is speechwriter Walinsky who makes a keen observation: "You know, he's the only one of those people who were associated with John F. Kennedy who grew or who went on living after he (JFK) died. The rest of them just stopped. He was the only one that started a new process of growth."

It took great growth, as his friend Sen. George McGovern points out, for a man in public life to discard all the phoney or trivial issues and to adopt as his bedrock platform something as basic as this objective: "To tame the savageness of man and make gentle the life of the world." That covers it all — Robert Kennedy's great, sometimes overwhelming concern for peace, tolerance, conservation, justice, human dignity, children, etc.

As Rev. Andrew J. Young, the civil rights leader, observed: "A country can't afford to lose, you know, three men like Robert Kennedy and John F. Kennedy and Martin King. It takes too long to build people like that."

The book drives home, too, a deeper realization of the complexity of the American national character. Aboard the funeral train was television's Jack Paar who saw the people standing along the tracks as "scavengers come to stare." But with him rode reporter Sylvia Wright who could see that "people don't mean to be rude. They mean to care."

And the food supervisor for the train who put it simply and more articulately than did the celebrities: "It wasn't curiosity. It was paying respects to someone they dearly loved. I'll tell you that the people who weren't on the train missed something I truthfully think will never be seen again."

And thus the same society that had spawned the violence that had claimed the life of Robert Kennedy and so many others could also produce this outpouring of genuine grief and this demonstration of real respect.

Ivanhoe Donaldson, Institute of Policy Studies fellow, put his fingers on those disparate strains in the American personality: "I remember seeing cops holding young children in their arms so that they could see the train clearly — often times black kids. I just thought, people can be so damn human sometimes, and so destructive at other times. I couldn't understand . . .

"That was the train ride for me. It was like Martin Luther King. It was trying to bridge the gap between the dream and reality. There was the dream, all along the train tracks. But yet, in the last car, in that caboose, was the reality."

And what does "American Journey: The Times of Robert Kennedy" reveal to us about ourselves as we read its pages?

For me there was the surprising awarness of just how emotionally I could still feel the death of Robert F. Kennedy, 30 months after that loss. And reawakened pangs as I experienced anew the realization of just how yawning is the gap created by the insignificant Sirhan Sirhan as he took out his frustrations upon potentially the most significant political figure of our times. The eyes moisten. And the heart aches.

One cherishes Peter Maas' little story about Robert Kennedy's Christmas visit to an orphanage three weeks after President Kennedy's assassination, where a little 6-year-old rushed up to him and blurted: "Your brother's dead! Your brother's dead!" Robert Kennedy broke the shocked silence that followed by scooping up the child, holding him closely for a tender moment, and then telling him reassuringly: "That's all right. I have another brother."

Somehow that seems the measure of Robert F. Kennedy, a man of special sensitivity and great compassion. A man who might have done so much for mankind, had he but lived. And a man who may yet have accomplished much, even though he died. Certainly "American Journey: "The Times of Robert Kennedy" indicates that the people who were touched by Bobby Kennedy during his life still feel very much his influence after death. Perhaps that influence — that heritage — will suffice to help produce a more just society and a more peaceful world. It would be comforting to think that Robert Kennedy, after all, did not live or die in vain.

A PENSIVE Robert F. Kennedy accompanied by a pet waded in the surf in this poignant scene from the motion picture "The Journey of Robert Kennedy." The book "American Journey: The Times of Robert Kennedy," edited by George Plimpton, tells that same story, and the saga of the Robert Kennedy funeral train.

ADELLE DAVIS remains one of the most controversial figures in the strife-torn field of nutrition, on the side of thosewho contend that what we eat is the single most important factor in determining our health, and frequently at odds with the medical establishment, the food processors, et al.

Her books are always huge sellers and appeal particularly to those who also patronize the health food stores, although she is by no means a faddist.

Harcourt Brace Johanovich Inc. has now published a revised, updated edition of one of her most popular books, "Let's Eat Right to Keep Fit," first printed in 1954. With newly developed material incorporated into the original text, Miss Davis discusses in detail the essential nutrients and the foods that supply them.

Be Prepared For Travel To Tropics

Winter time has become vacation time for many.

Increasingly, American families seek the sun in their winter vacations and plan holiday trips to such warm weather places as Mexico, Hawaii, the Caribbean, Central and South America, Australia, New Zealand, even Africa and Asia.

If you're planning to follow the sun abroad this winter, make sure that your vacation is a happy and a healthy one. Far too many travelers fail to take commonsense health precautions before leaving home and, as a result, wind up with a medical emergency, or, at the least, suffer discomfort and inconvenience.

WHAT HEALTH precautions should you take before you set off for the tropics?

Experts in international health surveyed by the Bayer Co. recommend that the time to see your family physician is as soon as you see your travel agent. Consult your doctor at least four weeks in advance, preferably more, to allow time for immunizations to become effective.

Your visit should include a thorough physical checkup.

The only immunization usually required to re-enter the United States is a smallpox vaccination. However, for tropical areas, Hawaii excepted, international regulations may call for immunizations against yellow fever, cholera, tetanus, diphtheria, polio and typhoid-parathypoid.

Other protective injections may be required depending on the specific areas you plan to visit. Your doctor, public health service or travel agent will be able to advise you.

Travel to the tropics may pose some special health considerations. Tropical diseases that have been eradicated from western countries may still be common in underveloped areas, particularly if you travel off the beaten path, away from cosmopolitan cities and into rural areas.

BEFORE HEADING south or west, the Bayer Co. suggests that you put together a practical medical kit so that you can easily dispatch those minor medical problems that you encounter abroad as well as at home.

Your medical kit should include insect repellent, eye drops, suntan and skin creams, aspirin, antibiotic ointment, antacids, a fever thermometer, antihistamines, a first aid kit, a kaolin-pectin mixture for diarrhea, milk of magnesia, liquid surgical sopa, anti-fungus powder and ointment and water purification tablets.

Your basic medical kit will save many a groan in the early morning hours when you suffer a headache or stomach upset.

IN FACT, YOU may find that these items are not always available if you try to buy them on the spot. Even when they can be found, the quality may be doubtful.

Be sure to bring along extra supplies of any medicine prescribed by your physician. Tuck spare eyeglasses into your suitcase. Sunglasses are a must.

To further assure an all-round sunny holiday, experts advise:

Pack light, loose fitting clothes. It's especially important in the tropics to wear comfortable clothes that will give you maximum ventilation.

Wear shoes at all times because of the danger of picking up hookworm.

BE CAREFUL OF tropic sun. Bring along a sun hat or other protective head gear, and use commonsense in acquiring a tan.

Be sure to put on that hat and sunglasses, and apply protective creams.

Be careful of the water. Limit your swimming to the ocean or to swimming pools. Avoid fresh water, such as lakes and streams, because of the possible danger of contracting schistosomiasis.

Be wary of what you eat — again Hawaii and Australia excepted. Avoid salads, sauces and milk products. Eat raw fruits and vegetables only if they can be washed in bottled or boiled water and then peeled. Don't drink fresh milk, boil it first. Stay away from cold salads and bread rolls offered locally.

Don't indulge in the cold platter presented in the hotel lobby in a tropical area.

EXERCISE CAUTION in what you drink. Don't drink water right from the tap. Use bottled water both for drinking and brushing your teeth.

Employ moderation in what you do. Jetting through time zones can distrub your internal biological clock. The result may be headache, fatigue, irritability and loss of appetite — sometimes lasting for days. Take a bath, an aspirin or two, and a nap when you arrive at your destination, and you'll avoid a lot of discomfort.

In general, take it easy on sightseeing, eating, drinking and sports.

Modern Art Is Everywhere In Stockholm

Modern art is very much in evidence in the every day life of Stockholm as well as in its museums.

Stroll down the street in the Swedish capital and you may encounter a smiling construction worker climbing out of a manhole. A closer look and you will discover that the worker is actually a work of sculpture.

The artist, Bejemark, calls his piece "Humor."

STOCKHOLM'S subway stations are also richly decorated. There are mosaics, and tesselations, enamel paintings and works in relief, all helping to add a dash of color to the traveler's waiting time.

The sculptures of Carl Milles are seen all over the city.

"The Singer to the Sun" stretches out his arms from Helgeandsholmen, where the parliament building is located; the magnificent "Orpheus" group adorns the entrance of the Concert Hall, and overlooking the visitors outside the Nordic Museum is the giant wooden statue of King Gustaf Vasa.

The greatest collection of Milles' works is found at the Millesgarden on the Lidingo Island, where his home as well as his collection of antique art are available to visitors.

THE PLAYGROUNDS in Stockholm also have their art. Almost every one has at least one "play sculpture" in bright colors where the children climb and scramble.

Two of Stockholm's museums are devoted mainly to modern art. The Museum of Modern Art on Skeppsholmen features 20th Century Swedish and foreign artists.

TOURISTS IN STOCKHOLM are surprised to discover that what looks like a live workman climbing from a manhole in a city street is actually a piece of modern sculpture that the artist Bejemark calls "Humor."

You Can Go To Church With The Royal Guard

Few of the hundreds of thousands of travelers who every year go to see the Changing of the Guard at Buckingham Palace, London, realize that it's possible to follow the guard to church.

The seven bands of the regiments attached to the Wellington Barracks alternate in playing before and after the 11 a.m. service, as well as accompanying the choir in hymns.

The guard's own chapel is in Wellington Barracks, Birdcage Walk. It seats 500, is open to the public, and offers the only place of worship in London with a regular military band accompanying its services.

Holy Communion is at 8 a.m. and noon on the first Sunday of the month.

WOBBLE TO DEATH by Peter Lovesey; Dodd, Mead, 190 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

The story has its setting gloomy winter in England in 1879 where a six-day free-style walking race is being held in the glass and steel agricultural hall. Fog and mists shroud the place.

A greedy promoter sponsors the Victorian sporting event that has more of the flavor of the days of Roman gladiators. The leading walker has a reputation to keep, and there is only one real challenger. The others in the race are has-beens.

That is the set-up until murder enters, not once, but twice. The shadow of susp cion moves over each figu e in the race, the promoter, his manager and a woman who is the wife of one walker and the mistress of hi. handler.

The walking race — o wobbles — is an almos steady one, with walke taking little time off fc rest, sleep or food. That the mood of the story a the pace of the detectives who unravel the mystery.

There are Gypsies, smuggling, murder and great gobs of continental geography.

There is also a hero, Neil Bowman, who seems a combination Simon Templar and James Bond, yet somehow less interesting than either. And a duke, gargantuan in size and mysterious in behavior, two pretty girls, and assorted villains, both Gypsy and non-Gypsy.

MacLean gives you lots of action, but it all seems a bit overdone. Coming from the author of "The Guns of Navarone" and "Puppet on a Chain," this one is a disappointment. Still, it's already on the best-seller charts. A clear case, it seems, of an author's name sufficing.

This latest little book by Doris Miles Disney, a prolific producer of Crime Club Selections, is a pretty good tale centering around a hard-drinking ladies' bridge club, a pretty young librarian and a would-be rapist.

The ladies, all at least one drink beyond sobriety, decide one evening to invent a girl to enter into a computer dating service.

A real young lady who happens to have the same name as the fictional girl, happens on the scene and narrowly misses coming to the same end.

On The Stereo Scene —

"Duke Ellington's 70th Birthday Concert Recorded Live in England" is a two-LP set on the Solid State label, SS-19000 to be exact.

This latest in the long, long line of Ellingtonia shows no flagging of energy or interest. The live situation adds to the spark, and old regulars such as "Satin Doll" and "Take the A Train" are balanced by lesser-known items like "Fifi," and "Laying on Mellow." There is a 16-minute medley of nine of his greatest and his famous closing speech.

Jeremy Steig is one of the most sensational jazz flutists of today. His gutsy blowing sparks the eight tracks in this abum, several of them originals by Steig. Ask for "This is Jeremy Steig," Solid State SS-18059.

Jazz pianist Andrew Hill has assembled a noteworthy album in "Lift Every Voice," (Blue Note BST 84330). His quintet is joined in some of the tracks by a singing group which is employed in a bolder fashion than usual in such instrumental/vocal group combinations. The wordless vocalese of "Hey, Hey" is especially captivating, and "Two Lullabies" are lovely melodies.

RAY NANCE, long-time stalwart of the Ellington Band, is known as a usual double — cornet and violin. This his first album as a violinist: "Body and Soul" (Solid State SS 18062). The dozen tracks encompass Ellington favorites, originals, and new hits such as "Oh Happy Day." Tiny Grimes and Tommy Lucas share numerous stand-out guitar solos. Essential for jazz fiddle-fans.

Speaking of guitars, Grant Green has long been a leader in that area. His latest is "Green Is Beautiful" (Blue Note BST 84342). James Brown's "Ain't It Funky Now" is the longest and funkiest track of the five extended numbers. The memory of Wes Montgomery is conjured up in "A Day in the Life."

More hits by the 5th Dimension are found on "The July 5th Album" (Soul City SCS 33901). The distinctive, commercial yet very musical harmonies of this popular quintet soar through "Sunshine of Your Love," "California My Way," "Poor Side of Town," and similar others.

SOPRANO SAX has always been a favorite of mine, and so Wayne Shorter's new album "Super Nova" (Blue Note BST 84332) caught my eye and ear immediately. The couple of "new jazz" tracks were a bit unkind to that ear, but the more consonant tracks such as "Dindi" delighted me. Maria Booker is the ethereal wordless voice floating through the last-named tune.

More Of Tchaikovsky

Vox continues unabated with its project to put in the hands of compulsive record collectors the complete everything-by-everybody. This may not be quite all the piano music of Tchaikovsky, but certainly all of it that matters.

Three major works are in the collection: the dramatic "Piano Sonata in G Minor," "12 Etudes Opus 40," and "Six Pieces on One Theme, Opus 21." The latter is a recording first surprisingly, for its Russian-sounding theme is subjected to a variety of interesting variations in settings and moods during the course of the piece.

Among the many other little pieces in the three-LP package will be found such Tchaikovsky "hits" as the "Chanson Triste," "Song Without Words Opus 2 No. 3," "Romanze," and "Humoresque."

Some of these piano pieces seem to conjure up a late 19th Century salon with ladies in yards of white lace, gentlemen in waistcoats, and the pianist and page-turner on the bench of the square piano peering over the tops of their gold-rimmed glasses at the octavo-size sheet music which insists upon falling over and slithering down the music rack at frequent intervals.

Since not being cool is now cool, square old Tchaikovsky can once again be welcomed into our homes without fear of making a faux pas.

By DON KEOWN

AMERICAN JOURNEY: THE TIMES OF ROBERT KENNEDY by Jean Stein and George Plimpton; Harcourt Brace Johanovich Inc., 363 pages, $8.95.

To read "American Journey: The Times of Robert Kennedy" is to experience a series of revelations.

There is a revelation in what it tells us about Robert F. Kennedy, perhaps the most puzzling and almost misunderstood political phenomenon of middle-20th Century America.

It is revealing in its dissection of the society that made possible — or made necessary — a Bobby Kennedy, either idolizing, admiring, fearing or despising him, but rarely simply tolerating this unique product of its crucible.

"He was a man of whom it was almost impossible to say that you were not a lesser man," notes Adam Walinsky, the brilliant young campaign associate. That is a relationship designed to produce either bitter resentment and hatred, or intense devotion.

And it is revealing, too, about ourselves — what we were and what we might have been in the days when Robert Kennedy walked this earth, unruly locks and all. And what we are today, two and a half years after the tragedy that should have made better, more charitable people of us all.

And a man who may yet have accomplished much, even though he died. Certainly "American Journey: "The Times of Robert Kennedy" indicates that the people who were touched by Bobby Kennedy during his life still feel very much his influence after death. Perhaps that influence — that heritage — will suffice to help produce a more just society and a more peaceful world. It would be comforting to think that Robert Kennedy, after all, did not live or die in vain.

A PENSIVE Robert F. Kennedy accompanied by a pet waded in the surf in this poignant scene from the motion picture "The Journey of Robert Kennedy." The book "American Journey: The Times of Robert Kennedy," edited by George Plimpton, tells that same story, and the saga of the Robert Kennedy funeral train.

ADELLE DAVIS remains one of the most controversial figures in the strife-torn field of nutrition, on the side of thosewho contend that what we eat is the single most important factor in determining our health, and frequently at odds with the medical establishment, the food processors, et al.

Her books are always huge sellers and appeal particularly to those who also patronize the health food stores, although she is by no means a faddist.

Harcourt Brace Johanovich Inc. has now published a revised, updated edition of one of her most popular books, "Let's Eat Right to Keep Fit," first printed in 1954. With newly developed material incorporated into the original text, Miss Davis discusses in detail the essential nutrients and the foods that supply them.

For Collectors Of Conradiana

MY FATHER: JOSEPH CONRAD by Borys Conrad; Coward-McCann, 182 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Jack R. Adams.

One would have to be a collector of Conradiana, pretty much, to acquire Borys Conrad's account of "Life Father," which is mainly the gist of this book. It becomes mostly an autobiography, with only occasional glimpses of the artist himself.

The mother might seem to emerge with a more clearly delineated character - a calm, quiet woman of strength and gentle wisdom, doomed to undergo a series of painful operations on an arthritic knee.

It begins with young Conrad's memories of the two houses in Essex and Kent where the family spent most of the time in England. There is some reflection of John Galsworthy, H.G. Wells, Henry James, Stephen Crane and others. There are many hair-raising accounts of the involvement of "J.C." and his son with the early motor cars, including accidents over the years that were miraculous in their lack of injury.

Young Borys' early schooling, his training on the Thames Nautical College vessel H.M.S. Worcester, the story of how the family was almost trapped in Poland at the outbreak of World War I when they set out to visit Joseph Conrad's birthplace, all are mixed in with some chronology of the father's career. Joseph Conrad was already well established in English letters by then, and commanded the attention of the reading public the world over.

Little is seen of his writing habits or the regime he must have set himself.

There are several excellent biographies of Conrad to be had, some of them published in the last 10 years. The heart of this sidelight work by Conrad's son Borys would seem to lie in the prologue to the book itself, where he quotes from John Galsworthy's first meeting with Conrad in Australia and his voyage home to England with Conrad as chief mate of the vessel:

"The word 'loyalty' has been much used by those who write or speak of him. It has been well used. He was always loyal to what he had at heart — to his philosophy, to his work, and to his firends; he was loyal even to his dislikes (not few) and to his scorn."

For this reviewer, the most real indication that we are talking about a giant in this book is contained in the quote from Conrad's letter to his publisher at Doubleday Page & Co., referring to his "Mirror of the Sea."

"Twenty years of my life went into that book; and such an inspiration does not come twice in a man's lifetime. I am not so humble as not to be aware that I have been permitted there to capture the very spirit of the deep — and I am thankfully content."

For even as sparse a light on the character of this true aristocrat Joseph Conrad, the Conrad follower must be thankfully content also.

Generation Waiting For The Cue That Never Came

He fancied himself as the personification of F. Scott Fitzgerald's hero . . . only a 1960 version. He felt he was a product of the days when "the orchestra played all night on the St. Regis roof; Central Park was green and inviting; the bud vases in the horse-drawn hansoms outside the Plaza were filled with flowers. The jazz was hot. The chorus line bold. Plate glass became crystal. Street lights became diamonds. And the rich were still different from you and me."

George Dethriffe was rich. But that was as far as it went, according to George's best friend, Alfred, who was also born into Park Avenue society.

He saw himself and his friends as leftovers from the Army-McCarthy hearings, the Korean War, the Eisenhower Administration: "It was as though we had all been sitting there waiting for our cue, waiting for our generation to be called on stage, waiting politely, we products of the Fifties, waiting to be asked to begin."

It was hard to realize that "we weren't going to be needed after all, that we were, in fact a mothball fleet."

Alice Townsend was the third member of this group. She was George's Zelda, a predatory post-deb who would tick off fraternity pins on her charm bracelet, as though she were collecting scalps.

C.D.B. Bryan, who also wrote "P.S. Wilkinson," tells us about the marriage of George and Alice and how their out-of-date illusions led their union to disaster.

The story is told through the eyes of the best friend, and it is his personality that turns out to be the most interesting. There is a digression in the plot when Alfred goes to Honolulu to visit his brother who just kicked the dope habit. The reader is treated to a fascinating description of a LSD trip on the slopes of the volcano Haleakala.

What ever happened to the brother or Alfred is left up in the air. It seems as though the author got confused half way through the book, and could not decide which way to go.

But Bryan writes exceedingly well, particularly when he allows his unique humor to dominate. It would be a treat if his next book settled completely on comedy or satire..

Yet Another Disciple Of Ernest Hemingway

FESTIVAL by Bart Spicer; Atheneum, 400 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Margaret Terrien.

I am willing to read almost anything about show business, and this book is about the glamorous Cannes film festival; but I was bored, bored, bored.

Author Bart Spicer is a 52-year-old former newspaperman and has published more than a dozen novels. By now he should be doing better.

Granted he knows, how to plot, in a standard, old-fashioned way, and he obviously has done his homework. The book is loaded with insider shop talk. The protagonist, Ethan Allen Chapin, is a "superpublicist"; so, of course, he is really inside.

But Spicer is yet another Hemingway imitator (by now this crowd numbers into world wide millions and spans three writing generations), and he imitates all the wrong things. Because the Master paid meticulous attention to the minutiae of daily living, disciple Spicer makes us watch his super-publicist light a cigarette, blow out the match, dress and undress. We even walk with him to the clothes hamper to deposit his shorts.

This would be forgiveable if the pedestrian detail had a remote bearing on character or story development, but almost none of it does.

Then there is the imitation tough-tender Hemingway hero. He stoically endures the grievous disability of an artificial foot, affects "ain't" in conversation, and strives to do things well and truly.

There are the stock women whom Papa loved so well: one passive-sexy. The latter indulges a sensual appetite so ravenous it could exist only in the fevered dreams of an unwordly 18-year-old male. Where do men writers find these prodigious dames?

Well, read "Festival" if you just have to know more about the Cannes film festival.

Sierra Club Reports On Conference

WILDERNESS, THE EDGE OF KNOWLEDGE edited by Maxine E. McCloskey; Sierra Club, 303 pages, $6.50. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

The Sierra Club, in this book, tells what was said at the Eleventh Biennial Wilderness Conference, held in San Francisco in March, 1969. The report resembles four earlier books reporting the tenth, ninth, seventh and sixth wilderness conferences.

Possibly the most important aspect of the latest volume in the series is its stress on the need for a worldwide wilderness program, and on potential developments in Alaska.

Alas, the very time it takes to get such a voluminous report into print makes it seem a bit like last month's newspaper. Developments, particularly in Alaska, make some of the 27-plus speakers' remarks somewhat out-of-date.

It is of interest, though, to any serious conservationist. Also, "population bomb" Paul Erlich's speech gives the non-informed a good capsule full of what it's all about.

As often happens with so many speakers, not all the speeches were equally brilliant. The black-and-white maps fall far short of real clarity. But it's a book worth keeping for reference.

WOBBLE TO DEATH by Peter Lovesey; Dodd, Mead, 190 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

The story has its setting gloomy winter in England in 1879 where a six-day free-style walking race is being held in the glass and steel agricultural hall. Fog and mists shroud the place.

A greedy promoter sponsors the Victorian sporting event that has more of the flavor of the days of Roman gladiators. The leading walker has a reputation to keep, and there is only one real challenger. The others in the race are has-beens.

That is the set-up until murder enters, not once, but twice. The shadow of susp cion moves over each figur in the race, the promoter, his manager and a woman who is the wife of one walker and the mistress of hi handler.

The walking race — o wobbles — is an almos steady one, with walker taking little time off fo rest, sleep or food. That the mood of the story an the pace of the detectives who unravel the mystery.

With tension and suspense, it is an absorbing story.

CARAVAN TO VACCARES by Alistair MacLean; Doubleday, 259 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This is a "campy" addition to the continuing flow of novels of international intrigue and adventure, that starts poorly and improves — but not enough.

There are Gypsies, smuggling, murder and great gobs of continental geography.

There is also a hero, Neil Bowman, who seems a combination Simon Templar and James Bond, yet somehow less interesting than either. And a duke, gargantuan in size and mysterious in behavior, two pretty girls, and assorted villains, both Gypsy and non-Gypsy.

MacLean gives you lots of action, but it all seems a bit overdone. Coming from the author of "The Guns of Navarone" and "Puppet on a Chain," this one is a disappointment. Still, it's already on the best-seller charts. A clear case, it seems, of an author's name sufficing.

DO NOT FOLD, SPINDLE OR MUTILATE by Doris Miles Disney; Doubleday, $4.50, 183 pages. Reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

This latest little book by Doris Miles Disney, a prolific producer of Crime Club Selections, is a pretty good tale centering around a hard-drinking ladies' bridge club, a pretty young librarian and a would-be rapist.

The ladies, all at least one drink beyond sobriety, decide one evening to invent a girl to enter into a computer dating service.

Although they quickly tire of the scheme after a few weeks, the results are disastrous — one might even say deadly — for one of the members.

A real young lady who happens to have the same name as the fictional girl, happens on the scene and narrowly misses coming to the same end.

Clever police work leads to the discovery of the identity of the murderer and the story ends, leaving only a faintly bad taste in the mouth.

Survival Zero by Mickey Spillane; Dutton, 190 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Rachel Farrara.

If you've read one Mickey Spillane mystery novel, you've read them all. Or so I suspect after reading one of his earliest efforts (being curious), and now his latest.

Mike Hammer is still heroic, still loyal, ever aggressive, obnoxiously persistent, and outspoken, impertinent and irresistible to women, although the Women's Lib ladies may well argue the last point and ask why?

At any rate, our hero is out to discover the why and who in the murder of a nobody named Lippy Sullivan; who unfortunately happens to be one of Mike's old school chums.

Somehow, bull-headedly as usual, Mike Hammer saves the day, sets things straight for good old Lippy, and what else is there to be said?

Oh, he has the last laugh. We all knew he would. (And now, back to Garve and Creasey.)

On The Stereo Scene —

By JOHN SUNIER

Some more recent releases from the Liberty family:

"Duke Ellington's 70th Birthday Concert Recorded Live in England" is a two-LP set on the Solid State label, SS-19000 to be exact.

This latest in the long, long line of Ellingtonia shows no flagging of energy or interest. The live situation adds to the spark, and old regulars such as "Satin Doll" and "Take the A Train" are balanced by lesser-known items like "Fifi," and "Laying on Mellow." There is a 16-minute medley of nine of his greatest and his famous closing speech.

Jeremy Steig is one of the most sensational jazz flutists of today. His gutsy blowing sparks the eight tracks in this abum, several of them originals by Steig. Ask for "This is Jeremy Steig," Solid State SS-18059.

Jazz pianist Andrew Hill has assembled a noteworthy album in "Lift Every Voice," (Blue Note BST 84330). His quintet is joined in some of the tracks by a singing group which is employed in a bolder fashion than usual in such instrumental/vocal group combinations. The wordless vocalese of "Hey, Hey" is especially captivating, and "Two Lullabies" are lovely melodies.

More Of Tchaikovsky

Vox continues unabated with its project to put in the hands of compulsive record collectors the complete everything-by-everybody. This may not be quite all the piano music of Tchaikovsky, but certainly all of it that matters.

Three major works are in the collection: the dramatic "Piano Sonata in G Minor," "12 Etudes Opus 40," and "Six Pieces on One Theme, Opus 21." The latter is a recording first surprisingly, for its Russian-sounding theme is subjected to a variety of interesting variations in settings and moods during the course of the piece.

Among the many other little pieces in the three-LP package will be found such Tchaikovsky "hits" as the "Chanson Triste," "Song Without Words Opus 2 No. 3," "Romanze," and "Humoresque."

Some of these piano pieces seem to conjure up a late 19th Century salon with ladies in yards of white lace, gentlemen in waistcoats, and the pianist and page-turner on the bench of the square piano peering over the tops of their gold-rimmed glasses at the octavo-size sheet music which insists upon falling over and slithering down the music rack at frequent intervals.

Since not being cool is now cool, square old Tchaikovsky can once again be welcomed into our homes without fear of making a faux pas.

RAY NANCE, long-time stalwart of the Ellington Band, is known as a usual double — cornet and violin. This his first album as a violinist: "Body and Soul" (Solid State SS 18062). The dozen tracks encompass Ellington favorites, originals, and new hits such as "Oh Happy Day." Tiny Grimes and Tommy Lucas share numerous stand-out guitar solos. Essential for jazz fiddle-fans.

Speaking of guitars, Grant Green has long been a leader in that area. His latest is "Green Is Beautiful" (Blue Note BST 84342). James Brown's "Ain't It Funky Now" is the longest and funkiest track of the five extended numbers. The memory of Wes Montgomery is conjured up in "A Day in the Life."

More hits by the 5th Dimension are found on "The July 5th Album" (Soul City SCS 33901). The distinctive, commercial yet very musical harmonies of this popular quintet soar through "Sunshine of Your Love," "California My Way," "Poor Side of Town," and similar others.

SOPRANO SAX has always been a favorite of mine, and so Wayne Shorter's new album "Super Nova" (Blue Note BST 84332) caught my eye and ear immediately. The couple of "new jazz" tracks were a bit unkind to that ear, but the more consonant tracks such as "Dindi" delighted me. Maria Booker is the ethereal wordless voice floating through the last-named tune.

Two drummers and two guitarists add to the unique sound of Shorter's album.

The popular Southern California rock group Canned Heat raise an upside-down U.S. flag (a symbol of distress) on the surface of the moon on the cover of their album "Future Blues" (Liberty 11002). Their bouncy blend of good-time music and blues pervades tracks like "That's All Right, Mama," and "Shake It and Break It." The group's interest in the ecology move-

A PICKET fence painted white makes an attractive framework for the house. And if you are the least bit handy with tools, you can erect your own fence with the help of Easi-Bild's pattern. Send $1 to Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and ask for Colonial Fence and Gate Pattern No. 315. Include your zip code number. The pattern covers a variety of pickets and provides full-scale templates for cutting the ornate ends. The directions also simplify the construction of the matching gate. All the materials specified in the pattern are stock size and readily available at lumber yards and building supply dealers. A fence 38 inches high is suggested, but it can be built higher or lower to suit your needs.

The Message From Your Mailbox

What does your milk box or mailbox say about you?

The message can be: "Somebody special lives here," or, conversely, "He is strictly humdrum."

It doesn't take much labor and lumber to make an everyday appurtenance into a conversation piece. And it's an excellent family project.

Take mailboxes:

You could start with a design contest and have each member of the family draw up a rough sketch of his idea. After the selection is made, a trip to the lumber dealer will garner the odds and ends of western wood required.

One basic plan suggests implanting four two-by-four inch posts, spaced so they'll clasp a homemade wood mailbox of regulation size. A similar box below it will hold newspapers.

The fun is dressing it up by the use of spacers or combining short ends of two-by-fours in ornamental designs. Carving the address on an attached slab is another embellishment.

You may want to add a lantern to light the entry of the driveway at night.

WOODEN BAFFLE SCREENS serve a useful purpose in controlling the movement of the air, as well as providing privacy. Home owners can choose from several western wood lumber sizes in building screens such as this — one-by-ones, one-by-sixes, one-by-twos, two-by-fours. Other fencing ideas are suggested in a free gift-page booklet that can be obtained by writing Wood Products Industry Fund, 1240 Bayshore Highway, Burlingame, Calif., 94010.

A Corner For Homemaker To Plan And Do Her Jobs

A plan-and-do-it area for the busy homemaker can be tucked into a corner in most houses and many apartments — in the family room or utility area — where she can be close to tots at play or the kitchen.

A well-planned corner will include a desk, sewing counter, and plenty of drawers and cabinets, all easily fashioned in western lumber.

Here the homemaker can concentrate her sit-down tasks: record-keeping, bill paying, meal and party planning and sewing.

The desk area will store records and correspondence and house a foldaway typewriter and perhaps an adding machine. Where it can be done, locate desk on an outside wall to utilize space under a window.

When it comes to sewing, the homemaker will enjoy working at a counter-like divider opposite the desk. The sewing machine might even be mounted on a heavy door which swings up into a wall cabinet to form its door.

The counter on which it rests could have a depressed section into which the door would fit when it is down.

The Favorite Flowers Are The Annuals

Your favorite flower may be the African violet, rose, gladiolus, chrysanthemum, dahlia, iris or camellia.

However, the cheapest, and in many ways most satisfying of all home plantings and the most popular of all, are the annual flowers grown from seeds. Then, too, there are the easily grown biennials and perennials that bloom the first year from seeds.

Zinnias, petunias, marigolds and snapdragons are planted more widely and in far greater numbers each year than any or all of the other favorites. They really are the home garden choices.

PLANT BREEDERS are producing improving varieties of many kinds. The new varieties in All-America Selections trials each year intrigue thousands of visitors. They see, along with the judges, the differences among and any superiorities over the nearest and most competitive varieties growing along side the new entries.

There are now 30 AAS resident judges for growing and rating on the new flowers as they perform in the different soils and climates of North America. A new All-America award winner is judged to be the best of its type and color so far in existence. It is recommended to you by experts.

There are zinnias of many types wearing the All-American crown. Plant heights range from six-inch Thumbelinas with one-inch blooms to plants three feet with blooms of five or more inches across.

THE NEWEST AND most exciting type is called Peter Pan. It grows quite uniformly, as a new hedge or low border plant, about 12 inches high and eight inches wide. The double flowers cover tops of the plants with three to four-inch beauties.

Peter Pan Pink is of two-tone coral or salmon-pink. Peter Pan Plum is a deep or purplish rose shade.

Be sure to plant some of these Peter Pan zinnias this year. Seeds may be started early in little peat pots for setting out when soil is warm. Or, sow seeds directly where you want their bloom. They are vigorous hybrids.

Cherry Buttons is the latest of the 12 to 15-inch plants with one-and-a-half to two-inch flowers in profusion.

The giant cactus-flowered leaders are the hybrid Zenith series, with Torch and Rosy Future as newest winners.

THERE ARE SO many excellent, all-season blooming petunias that it has become extremely difficult to improve on their colors and growth.

Comanche and Red Satin were the first hybrid red petunias and are still leaders in the two-and-a-half to three-inch dwarf or mound-shaped multiflora plants of 12 to 14 inch height.

Appleblossom is yet to be surpassed in the larger flowered, hybrid grandiflora class. It is light pink and very weather resistant.

Many other colors of the far superior hybrid petunias are now available, in seeds and in bedding plants.

HYBRID MARIGOLDS of the new hedge or semi-dwarf type now lead the large flowered favorites. They areearlier to bloom, and flowering is on top and sides of compact plants instead of down in the foliage.

Orange Jubilee and Golden Jubilee are recent winners, as is First Lady in bright yellow with somewhat smaller flowers on smaller 16 to 18 inch plants.

Bolero is the winning double French marigold, with bicolored red and gold flowers on 12-inch bushy plants.

The double button type is represented by the Petite series. Little bushy plants of six to eight inch height cover themselves with inch or smaller blooms. Colors of yellow, gold, orange and bicolors with mahogany red are all attractive, separate or mixed.

SNAPDRAGONS ARE among the "Big Four" of the flowers. The summer-flowering hybrid Rocket series brought new garden popularity. In many colors, they are still the leading tall or two-and-a-half to three-foot varieties. Dwarfed varieties also are available.

THE NEW annuals for 1971 include these two introduced in the Burpee Seeds catalog for this year. At top is the Empress Marigold, a giant-flowering plant, and at bottom the Emperor Zinnia, a semi-dwarf hybrid.

Then came Bright Butterflies, tall and striking Rocket type but with open-faced flowers for greater color display. Crossed with double-flowered varieties, Madame Butterfly gives double-centered, open-faced flowers.

Little Darling is the new 1971 open-face type with dwarf 12 to 15 inch plants in mixed colors.

The most dwarf of the snapdragons are the Royal Carpet series. Plants grow only six inches high, but with up to 25 spikes and with five or six blooms each at a time.

Other annuals deserve their popularity along with perennials that bloom the first season from early-started seeds.

Probably no other flower reached the instant popularity attained by hybrid geraniums. They come true from seeds, flower as quickly as from cuttings, need no pinching back and are disease-free.

Plant the Carefree geraniums: Scarlet, Deep Salmon and Bright Pink have been award-winners.

FOR 1971 YOU can have for the first time a giant hybrid mallow from seeds. For probably the largest flowers in your garden with "dessert plate" or seven to 10 inch size flowers, plant the giant hibiscus Southern Belle.

It is a hardy perennial and will bloom the first season from early started seeds. Tops die down with killing frosts but heavier plants to over four feet come back each summer with increased blooms in white, reds and pink shades.

Silver Puffs is the first dwarf annual hollyhock. Silvery pink powder puff flowers on two-foot plants is an unique novelty for 1971.

Dianthus or garden pinks were old-time favorites. Recent winners have again popularized them. China Doll with clusters in red shades and with white edgings was a 1970 winner. Now 1971 brings the first hybrid with rich red clusters on 12 to 15 inch, upright plants in the best of all the dianthus, the Queen of Hearts.

MANY OF US want a quick flowering vine for trellis, patio or fence. And, morning glories are foremost.

We still like Pearly Gates and Blue Star or Clark's Early Heavenly Blue, but the new larger-flowered, earlier and longer-blooming Early Call Rose now takes precedence. The color is a deep and bright rose.

Morning glory seed coats are hard, so soak seeds overnight in warm water before planting.

Look for the red, white and blue All-America winner shield on seed packets for the best recommendations. Or, look for the All-America Selection or AAS logotype in the seed catalogs.

Taking Mystery Out Of Winter Pruning

Garden Pages

There is something about pruning a shrub or a tree that hints of mystery to many gardeners. They know it is desirable but don't know why.

Pruning is all important, not only to shape trees and shrubs, but especially to encourage new growth and the production of fruit or flowers. Purning also controls size and can guide the new growth in the direction desired.

With this understanding, much of the mystery of pruning is removed.

The winter months, while they are dormant and leafless, is the time to prune roses, bushes, fruit trees grapes and berries. Flowering trees can be pruned when they are in bloom — to provide lovely arrangements for indoor use.

Spring-flowering shrubs, however, should not be pruned until after they bloom. To cut them back now would only reduce the number of soon-to-bloom flower buds.

Techniques of pruning may be learned by observing demonstrations or by reading books. In both cases, nurserymen are of help to gardeners. And in addition, they have books on pruning — and on other aspects of gardening.

Pruning a fruit tree will vary with the variety. Cherries, apples and pears require less annual pruning, and established apricots and plums should have older wood removed each year.

When pruning peaches and nectarines, a thorough job should be done each year, as fruit is borne over a great deal of new wood. If in doubt, solicit the advice of a nurseryman.

Roses bloom only on new growth, which explains the need for pruning each year. By getting rid of the older and larger canes, you encourage new growth. Remove crossing branches and attempt to open up the center of the plant so sun can penetrate and push new growth.

Mid-January is the time many rosarians begin purning their roses.

After pruning the deciduous plant materials use a dormant spray to control overwintering pests and disease. Your nurseryman can recommend the proper spray to use, but follow instructions implicitly and do a thorough job of covering all parts of the trees and shrubs — including the saturation of the soil beneath the plants.

A Vegetable Invades The World Of Flowering Plants

An invader from the vegetable world is becoming a popular ornamental plant for flower lovers.

You won't find it on the vegetable stands in the supermarket but "Flowering Cabbage" is becoming quite a conversation piece in the home or backyard. Formally known as brassica oleracea acephala, Flowering Cabbage is a thick-leaved, glaucous perennial of European ancestry.

When you think of cabbage, you get a definite vision of a rounded, solid green bit of produce. But Flowering Cabbage is quite different. It has loose, spreading leaves forming an open rosette with striking shades of ivory-white to rosy-purple in the center.

In short, it is a large, showy flower.

This pretty cabbage is equally suited for use as in a pot plant or flower bed. Paul Rutter, chief horticulturist at Florida Cyprus Gardens, says it is easy to grow.

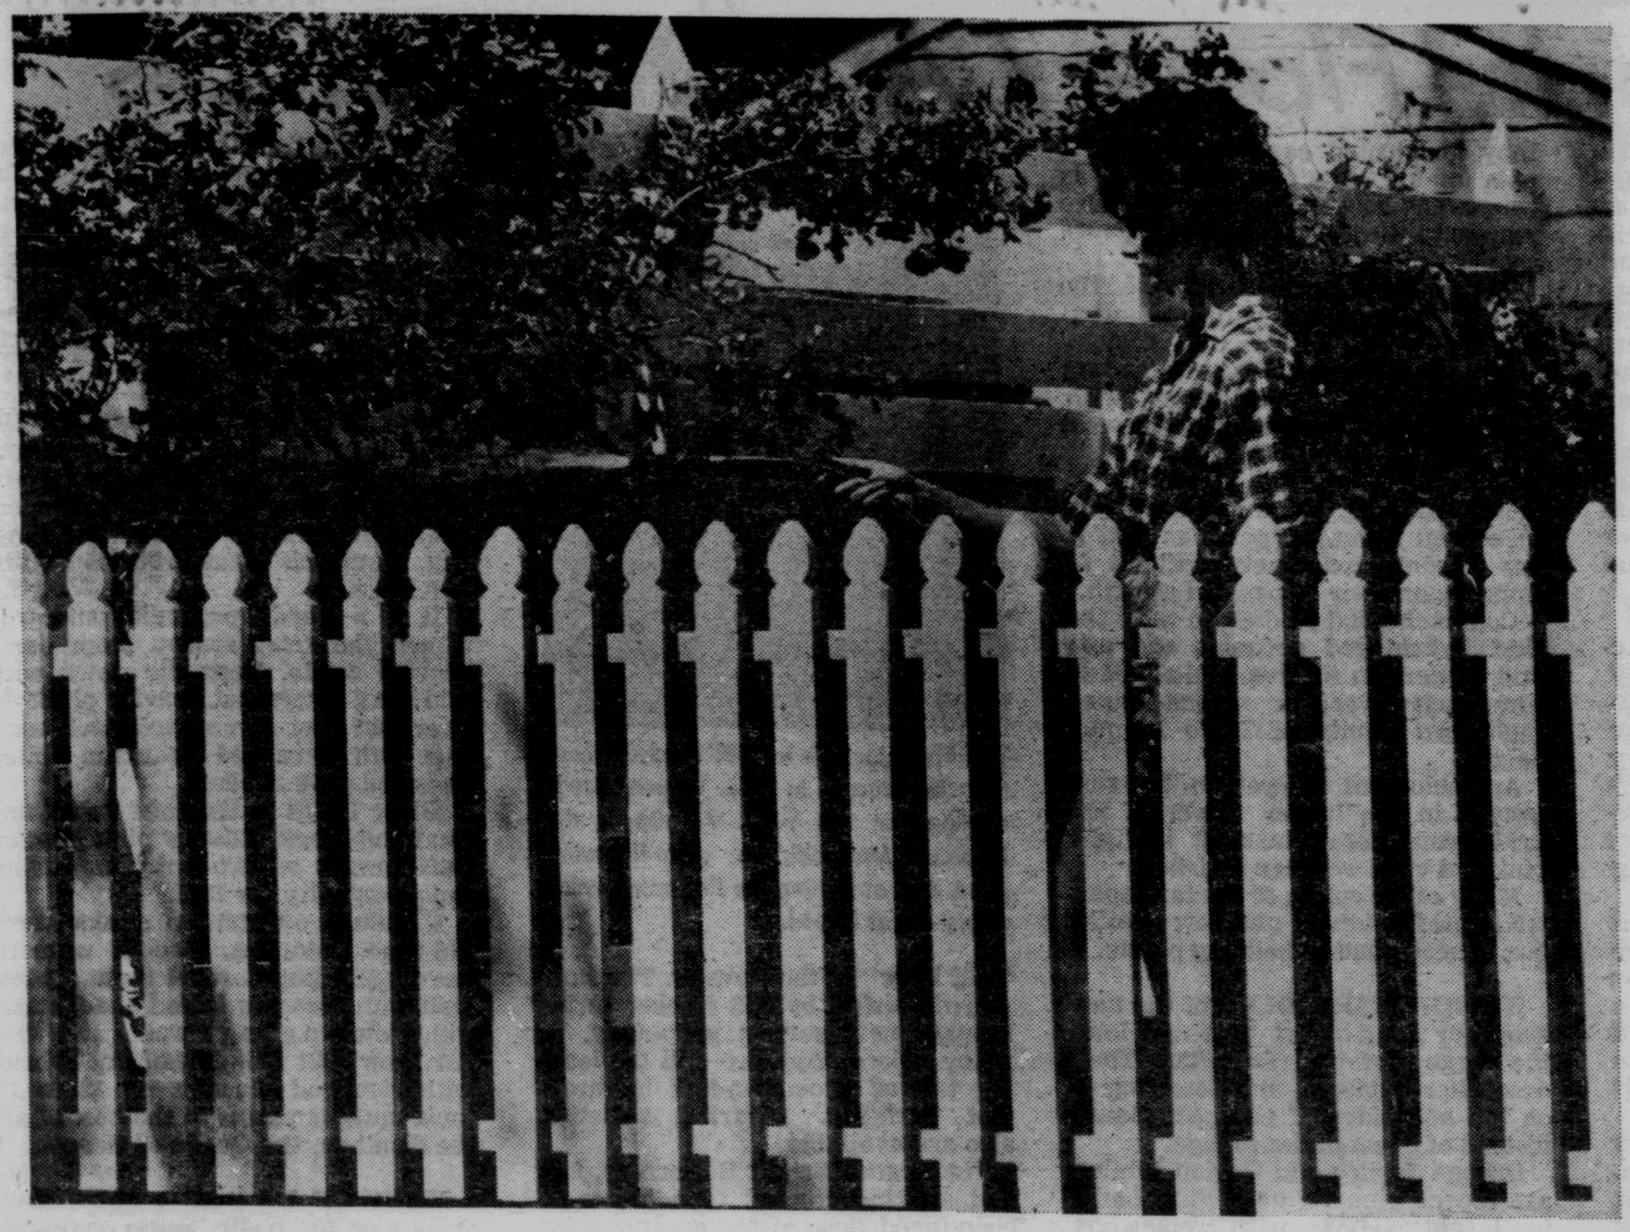
Most of all it needs full sun, a moderately fertile soil and bi-weekly applications of a water soluble fertilizer with a high nitrogen-potash, low phosphorus ratio to produce the best results.

"Propagation is most easily accomplished by planting seeds in a sterile media, later transplanting them when they have developed two or three leaves," Rutter explained.

A hybrid between Flowering Cabbage and ordinary kale is Flowering Kale, of Japanese origin. The cultural requirements are the same. The major is that the kale's leaf edge is much more lacy.

920-Year-Old Rose

A rose tree that grows beside Hildesheim Cathedral in Germany is reported to be approximately 920 years old. The tree burned to the ground during a World War II bombing raid but survived and is now 30 feet tall and has a 40-foot span.



Handyman's Page

A PICKET fence painted white makes an attractive framework for the house. And if you are the least bit handy with tools, you can erect your own fence with the help of Easi-Bild's pattern. Send $1 to Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and ask for Colonial Fence and Gate Pattern No. 315. Include your zip code number. The pattern covers a variety of pickets and provides full-scale templates for cutting the ornate ends. The directions also simplify the construction of the matching gate. All the materials specified in the pattern are stock size and readily available at lumber yards and building supply dealers. A fence 38 inches high is suggested, but it can be built higher or lower to suit your needs.

The Message From Your Mailbox

What does your milk box or mailbox say about you?

The message can be: "Somebody special lives here," or, conversely, "He is strictly humdrum."

It doesn't take much labor and lumber to make an everyday appurtenance into a conversation piece. And it's an excellent family project.

Take mailboxes:

You could start with a design contest and have each member of the family draw up a rough sketch of his idea. After the selection is made, a trip to the lumber dealer will garner the odds and ends of western wood required.

One basic plan suggests implanting four two-by-four inch posts, spaced so they'll clasp a homemade wood mailbox of regulation size. A similar box below it will hold newspapers.

The fun is dressing it up by the use of spacers or combining short ends of two-by-fours in ornamental designs. Carving the address on an attached slab is another embellishment.

You may want to add a lantern to light the entry of the driveway at night.

WOODEN BAFFLE SCREENS serve a useful purpose in controlling the movement of the air, as well as providing privacy. Home owners can choose from several western wood lumber sizes in building screens such as this — one-by-ones, one-by-sixes, one-by-twos, two-by-fours. Other fencing ideas are suggested in a free gift-page booklet that can be obtained by writing Wood Products Industry Fund, 1240 Bayshore Highway, Burlingame, Calif., 94010.

A Corner For Homemaker To Plan And Do Her Jobs

A plan-and-do-it area for the busy homemaker can be tucked into a corner in most houses and many apartments — in the family room or utility area — where she can be close to tots at play or the kitchen.

A well-planned corner will include a desk, sewing counter, and plenty of drawers and cabinets, all easily fashioned in western lumber.

Here the homemaker can concentrate her sit-down tasks: record-keeping, bill paying, meal and party planning and sewing.

The desk area will store records and correspondence and house a foldaway typewriter and perhaps an adding machine. Where it can be done, locate desk on an outside wall to utilize space under a window.

When it comes to sewing, the homemaker will enjoy working at a counter-like divider opposite the desk. The sewing machine might even be mounted on a heavy door which swings up into a wall cabinet to form its door.

The counter on which it rests could have a depressed section into which the door would fit when it is down.

THE CASCADE, shown here, a 1971 All-American Gladiolus Selection, is just one of the Many beautiful "glads" that can be grown from corms now in the nurseries and awaiting "green thumbers." It is a tall growing hybrid that produces pure white flowers, and the florets have a delicately ruffled texture.

Glads Are Waiting At The Nurseries

It is an understatement to say Gladiolus blooms are exquisite, just as it is to say Glads are p o p u l a r with Marinites.

These flowering favorites have earned their popularity. The bulbs are easy to grow and the colors create a sensation in the garden — up close as from far away. And as cut flowers, Glads excel again.

Visit any nursery right now and y o u ' l l find a breathtaking array of Gladiolus bulbs (a c t u a l l y corms) and the choices are all tempting while the selection is at its best.

BY PLANTING glad bulbs every two w e e k s, from now to May you can have armfuls of fresh cut flowers for your home and a magnificent display in your garden — well into August.

Set out later plantings in a semi-shaded area so that the flowers will be protected from the sun.

For planting now, select sunny locations. Set the bulbs four to six i n c h e s deep, depending on their size. Use them for displays in borders, bold clumps or groups are best.

IN FULL BEDS, scatter the bulbs for a natural effect.

There are standard varieties which will provide much enjoyment, but don't overlook the newer hybrids. The hybrid introductions boast unbelievable shades of color and color combinations and/or markings.

If this isn't enough enticement, consider that the shapes of blooms can vary with the individual variety — and that the bloom spikes can boast scores of florets up to 36 inches or more.

The 1971 All-American Gladiolus Selections demonstrate the accomplishments of hybridizers:

ANNIVERSARY has huge light lavender florets; and tall-growing pure white Cascade boasts delicate ruffled florets. Little Tiger is a bronze novelty with bronze red "tiger spots" on the lower petals. The fourth All-American, Orange Chiffon, has a formal double row of florets. It's a tall grower and the rich orange-salmon combination is a real eye-stopper.

For sheer enjoyment and delight, plant plenty of standards and hybrids, which are sold u n d e r the trade names of Super, Califlora and All America.

Easy To Spot Garden Tools

Paint those tools a bright color — such as red.

Then, when in use, they will be easy to spot, even when left lying among high weeds. You won't run over them with the mower. And you'll have no t r o u b l e rounding up strays at the end of a day.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✔ Plant artichokes, asparagus, rhubarb and other vegetables from divisions or from seedling flats this month.

✔ Finish cleaning up all debris and leaves that have fallen. Haul away this material as some of it may harbor over-wintering pests.

✔ Winter daphne is coming into bloom now with it's fragrant pink and white flowers. Select yours and plant it in a well-drained spot near the house where you can enjoy it.

THE EARTH LIFE

This is not a suggestion that you consume a peck of dirt, as each person supposedly does in a lifetime: But Organic Gardening Magazine reports that soil holds the highest concentration of "life power" on earth. At a depth of six inches, one-eighth acre of typical farmland contains several tons of bacteria, a ton of fungi, 200 pounds of protozoa (one-celled animals) and 100 pounds each of algae and yeasts.

THE CASCADE, shown here, a 1971 All-American Gladiolus Selection, is just one of the Many beautiful "glads" that can be grown from corms now in the nurseries and awaiting "green thumbers." It is a tall growing hybrid that produces pure white flowers, and the florets have a delicately ruffled texture.

Glads Are Waiting At The Nurseries

It is an understatement to say Gladiolus blooms are exquisite, just as it is to say Glads are popular with Marinites.

These flowering favorites have earned their popularity. The bulbs are easy to grow and the colors create a sensation in the garden — up close as from far away. And as cut flowers, Glads excel again.

Visit any nursery right now and you'll find a breathtaking array of Gladiolus bulbs (actually corms) and the choices are all tempting while the selection is at its best.

BY PLANTING glad bulbs every two weeks, from now to May you can have armfuls of fresh cut flowers for your home and a magnificent display in your garden — well into August.

Set out later plantings in a semi-shaded area so that the flowers will be protected from the sun.

For planting now, select sunny locations. Set the bulbs four to six inches deep, depending on their size. Use them for displays in borders, bold clumps or groups are best.

IN FULL BEDS, scatter the bulbs for a natural effect.

There are standard varieties which will provide much enjoyment, but don't overlook the newer hybrids. The hybrid introductions boast unbelievable shades of color and color combinations and/or markings.

If this isn't enough enticement, consider that the shapes of blooms can vary with the individual variety — and that the bloom spikes can boast scores of florets up to 36 inches or more.

The 1971 All-American Gladiolus Selections demonstrate the accomplishments of hybridizers:

ANNIVERSARY has huge light lavender florets; and tall-growing pure white Cascade boasts delicate ruffled florets. Little Tiger is a bronze novelty with bronze red "tiger spots" on the lower petals. The fourth All-American, Orange Chiffon, has a formal double row of florets. It's a tall grower and the rich orange-salmon combination is a real eye-stopper.

For sheer enjoyment and delight, plant plenty of standards and hybrids, which are sold under the trade names of Super, Califlora and All America.

Easy To Spot Garden Tools

Paint those tools a bright color — such as red.

Then, when in use, they will be easy to spot, even when left lying among high weeds. You won't run over them with the mower. And you'll have no trouble rounding up strays at the end of a day.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✔ Plant artichokes, asparagus, rhubarb and other vegetables from divisions or from seedling flats this month.

✔ Finish cleaning up all debris and leaves that have fallen. Haul away this material as some of it may harbor over-wintering pests.

✔ Winter daphne is coming into bloom now with it's fragrant pink and white flowers. Select yours and plant it in a well-drained spot near the house where you can enjoy it.

THE EARTH LIFE

This is not a suggestion that you consume a peck of dirt, as each person supposedly does in a lifetime: But Organic Gardening Magazine reports that soil holds the highest concentration of "life power" on earth. At a depth of six inches, one-eighth acre of typical farmland contains several tons of bacteria, a ton of fungi, 200 pounds of protozoa (one-celled animals) and 100 pounds each of algae and yeasts.

Special Award For All-Pros

Joe Brown, sculptor and member of the Princeton University fine arts faculty, is creating a special award to be given players named to the 1970 TV Guide all-professional team selected by the Professional Football Writers of America.

Merrill Panitt, TV Guide editor, said the team to be announced next week, is being selected by votes of two writers covering each of the 26 franchise cities in the National Football League. William Guthrie, sports editor of the New Haven Journal-Courier, is president of the writers' group.

FRANK SINATRA plays an advertising agency president while Dean Martin is cast as his business associate and friend in the romantic comedy movie "Marriage on the Rocks," to be seen Friday at 9 p.m. on Channel 5.

Merv Griffith's Schedule Provides For Relaxation

Talk show host Merv Griffin is possessed of the ultimate status — two swimming pools.

Griffin leased a Beverly Hills home for a year while his show emanates from Hollywood. In addition to the pools, the genial Griffin also has a tennis court on his property.

That's as it should be. His grandfather, uncles and father were all tennis champions. Merv is at home on the courts, too.

On weekends when he isn't required to work he and his wife, Julann are off to a resort near San Diego where they relax, swim and play tennis with son Tony, 10.

Griffin, a native Californian, still has an apartment in New York which was robbed a day or two after he headed West. The decision by CBS to transfer his show to Hollywood was so swift he didn't have time to do more than lock the front door.

He also owns a 28-acre farm in Califon, N.J. a sanctuary from the pressures and pace of New York.

Most television stars envy Griffin's schedule. And with good reason.

He arises every morning to play tennis and go for a swim. Thereafter he pursues a hobby-avocation that may become his principal occupation.

Some of the film is shown on the air as part of Merv's program.

SWIMMING IN OCTOBER

In this month of opals,
The Fall of the year,
I stand by the shore in the Fall of my life
Watching the January people
Totter towards the foam
Fearful,
While the spring creatures
Huddle and haver
Under the bare trees;
But I, in my Fall
(fallow years gone
Feathering in flight ago),
Running, cleave the coming wave —
Sharp sweet salt
On skin sun-warmed.
Then turned westering
I lie in Bay waters —
Exultant,
Perhaps grateful
For one more Fall . . .
May the Winter be short.

TIBURON — ELISABETH ST. DAVIDS

THIS DAY REMEMBERED

Winter's first snow,

Stillness across the fields;
Snow fences guard the road —
Homeward bound.

The old iron gate covered white,
Up the snow-clad path;
Snowflakes flurry about — Gently touching us.

Noble snowman in the yard,
Crackle of dry wood burning;
Warm hearts by the fireside —

This day remembered.

LARKSPUR — DORIS M. RUT

Special Award For All-Pros

Joe Brown, sculptor and member of the Princeton University fine arts faculty, is creating a special award to be given players named to the 1970 TV Guide all-professional team selected by the Professional Football Writers of America.

Merrill Panitt, TV Guide editor, said the team to be announced next week, is being selected by votes of two writers covering each of the 26 franchise cities in the National Football League. William Guthrie, sports editor of the New Haven Journal-Courier, is president of the writers' group.

The award created by Brown features two football players. One is an offensive back carrying the ball; the second is a defensive player seeking to tackle the running back.

FRANK SINATRA plays an advertising agency president while Dean Martin is cast as his business associate and friend in the romantic comedy movie "Marriage on the Rocks," to be seen Friday at 9 p.m. on Channel 5.

Merv Griffith's Schedule Provides For Relaxation

Talk show host Merv Griffin is possessed of the ultimate status — two swimming pools.

Griffin leased a Beverly Hills home for a year while his show emanates from Hollywood. In addition to the pools, the genial Griffin also has a tennis court on his property.

That's as it should be. His grandfather, uncles and father were all tennis champions. Merv is at home on the courts, too.

On weekends when he isn't required to work he and his wife, Julann are off to a resort near San Diego where they relax, swim and play tennis with son Tony, 10.

Griffin, a native Californian, still has an apartment in New York which was robbed a day or two after he headed West. The decision by CBS to transfer his show to Hollywood was so swift he didn't have time to do more than lock the front door.

He also owns a 28-acre farm in Califon, N.J. a sanctuary from the pressures and pace of New York.

Most television stars envy Griffin's schedule. And with good reason.

He arises every morning to play tennis and go for a swim. Thereafter he pursues a hobby-avocation that may become his principal occupation.

Some of the film is shown on the air as part of Merv's program.

SWIMMING IN OCTOBER

In this month of opals,
The Fall of the year,
I stand by the shore in the Fall of my life
Watching the January people
Totter towards the foam
Fearful,
While the spring creatures
Huddle and haver
Under the bare trees;
But I, in my Fall
(fallow years gone
Feathering in flight ago),
Running, cleave the coming wave —
Sharp sweet salt
On skin sun-warmed.
Then turned westering
I lie in Bay waters —
Exultant,
Perhaps grateful
For one more Fall . . .
May the Winter be short.

TIBURON — ELISABETH ST. DAVIDS

THIS DAY REMEMBERED

Winter's first snow,

Stillness across the fields;
Snow fences guard the road —
Homeward bound.

The old iron gate covered white,
Up the snow-clad path;
Snowflakes flurry about — Gently touching us.

Noble snowman in the yard,
Crackle of dry wood burning;
Warm hearts by the fireside —

LARKSPUR — DORIS M. RUTI
